CLOUDBURST WRECKS DAM IN A PARK AND 50 TO 75 PERISH IN THE FLOOD

JEANNETTE, PA.—The thriving, bustling, glassmaking and coal mining town in Westmoreland county, has almost duplicated the great disaster at Johnstown 14 years and a few weeks ago. First reports are that from 50 to 75 lives have been lost in a torrent caused by a cloudburst breaking a dam in Oakford park, Jeannette's pleasure resort. In view of the extent of the flood and the number of persons overwhelmed by it, it is probable that the first estimate is below the mark. The first night after Johnstown's flood the dead were estimated at from 300 to 1,000, but the final roster showed over 3,000. At Jeannette the electrocution of drowning victims added to the horror. The recovery of the bodies will be the work of days, if not of weeks, and it will take still longer to estimate the property loss, which has been sustained by a wide area.

Everybody knows how the showers predicted for yesterday, by the United States weather bureau at Washington, developed into a great cloudburst, and to make up for the slip the bureau promises fair weather for today. Unfortunately, warmer weather, too, is forecasted, although before the storm yesterday the weather was about as warm as any one cared to have it. The sun rose at 4:34 a. m. cloudy, and set cloudy at 7:30 p. m. The daily report, furnished by the weather bureau, follows:

DISASTER AT JEANNETTE IS ALMOST AS TERRIBLE AS THAT AT JOHNSTOWN

Cloudburst at Pretty Oakford Park Wipes Out the Lives of Scores of Men, Women and Children.

CAR CROWDED WITH PEOPLE SWEPT INTO RAGING TORRENT

Restaurant Pavilion, Sheltering 40 Persons, Collapses and Is Carried Away---Drowning Victims Electrocuted by Grasping Broken Trolley Wires.

[From a Staff Correspondent.]
[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

Jeannette, Pa., July 5.—Fifty to 75 men, women and children perished by a cloudburst in Oakford park today. The majority were drowned or their lives beaten out against the rocks in Brush Creek, but quite a number were electrocuted.

Oakford park is a mile out of Jeannette, toward Greensburg. It is a favorite resort of the best class of residents, not only of Jeannette, but of a number of neighboring towns. The hot weather of today had drawn a large crowd to this resort, the great forest trees and the immense body of water making it cool in the hottest days. Today at least 800 persons were there seeking relief from the heat.

Brush Creek is dammed at this point. The dam is 200 feet wide, backs the water for 1,000 feet and is usually about 30 feet deep at the breast.

It was almost exactly 4 o'clock this afternoon when a cloud burst directly over the still waters of the dam.

At the base of the hillside, upon which the park is laid out, is the car barns and a large frame restaurant, the latter being constructed mainly with a view of sheltering the park visitors from the rays of the sun and from summer showers. Those who were in the neighborhood of these buildings ran to them for shelter from the sudden downpour, while others, and, of course, the greater number sought the hillside. Many did this to secure the shelter of the forest trees, and others because they did not care to be below the level of the dam, and but little above the dry season level of Brush Creek.

It was but a few moments later when the dam began rising ominously. It was but a few minutes later when 40 feet of the dam gave way, and a solid wall of water, 20 feet high, rushed down and completely filled the narrow ravine, with its car tracks, car barn and retaurant.

In front of the car barn stood a car containing from 50 to 70 passengers, many of them seeking to return to Jeannette, others using it as a temporary shelter.

With the immense body of water behind it, the crest of the flood bore down with irresistible force. As it swept down the narrow ravine it carried with it in its embrace the loaded car and the crowded restaurant. The flood was filled with men, women and children struggling for their lives.

The poles carrying the heavily charged trolley wires were uprooted and strewn along the grounds. In a number of instances—how many is not yet known—the victims of the flood, grasping for anything that might save them from the fury of the water, seized the trolley wires and met death by being electrocuted instead of being drowned. Several bodies have already been recovered that show that death was the result of this cause.

Forty persons were in the restaurant when it collapsed. A much greater number were in the car barn when it was flooded, and it is not known how many were drowned there. The car, with its 50 to 75 passengers, was swept into Brush Creek. The first estimate of 50 to 75 lives lost seems inadequate, but the excitement and sorrow is so intense that it cannot be determined how many managed to escape what seemed to be inevitable death.

Among those known to be lost, although it is very difficult to secure names, is one party composed of Henry Fink and wife and the Misses Gertrude Keefer and Lucy Crum, all of Jeannette.

The flood kept on down Brush Creek to about 300 yards east of Jeannette. Here the Pennsylvania railroad embankment, which is very high at this point, checked the torrent, now a deep and comparatively quiet lake covering over 20 acres of ground. It is here, as the water swirled and eddied before losing its torrential force, that it is expected the greater number of the bodies of victims will be found. It will be several days before the flood subsides sufficiently to allow a satisfactory exploration of this lake of death.

There was no staying the flood. The torrent coursed down through Jeannette and flooded the south end of the town. No lives were lost here, however, although many had narrow escapes. There were a great number of heroic rescues from flooded homes, which at any moment were liable to topple over or be carried away by the flood.

Bull Creek joined its forces with Brush Creek, and together they continued on their progress of destruction.

Penn, but a short distance from Jeannette, was the next victim. Here, in part of this busy glass town, the water was 20 feet, and here there are known to be three victims. Mrs. Nigga, with her seven children, occupied a small frame house. The building was carried away and but three of the children saved. The mother and the other four children were drowned and their bodies have not yet been recovered.

Great destruction of property resulted at Manor and Larimer, and Greensburg suffered still more severely. The greater part of the latter little city was under water, but no human lives are reported lost. At the Greensburg race track 25 valuable race horses were drowned.

At Irwin the freight depot was washed away, entailing a loss of several thousand dollars.

VIVID STORY OF GREAT DISASTER

Began With a Cloudburst and Followed by Fierce Hurricane.

TERRIBLE SCENES IN THE PARK

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

Jeannette, Pa., July 5.—Oakford park proved a death-trap for scores of pleasure-seekers this afternoon. The disaster began with a cloudburst and was followed by a tempest of rain that lasted nearly two hours.

The park is operated by the Pittsburgh, McKeesport & Greensburg Railway Company. It is in Penn and Hempfield townships, Westmoreland county, in a natural ravine, steep hills rising on both sides. Through it the main branch of Brush creek flows, and at the eastern end of the park is Lake Placid, a body of water 30 feet deep at the retaining dam. The lake is 1,000 feet long and 200 feet wide at the breast or dam.

Over 800 persons went to the park from Greensburg, Jeannette, Irwin, Penn and Youngwood this afternoon, the attraction being the Boys' orchestra of Jeannette.

Sought Places of Safety.

A greater part of the pleasure seekers were grouped about the band stand, and when low-lying clouds began to empty their contents the entire throng made for places of safety. Many gathered in the dancing pavilion, others made for the park entrance to await cars for their homes.

The rainfall had not continued more than a half hour when fear was expressed that the dam of the lake would not be able to retain the volume of water that was being emptied into the reservoir. Attorney Jay R. Spiegel of Greensburg had taken refuge in the woods across the lake and was compelled to cross the breast of the dam to reach a point of safety. He told attaches of the park that the dam was in danger of being swept away, and efforts were made to allow the water to escape by the sluiceway. The water gained rapidly upon them and they were compelled to leave their task unfinished. The water had risen to within one foot of the top of the dam, and an alarm was immediately given throughout the park.

Warned Just in Time.

The warning came just in time for the park employes had barely reached the side of the lake when the water came over the dam. Directly beneath the dam are grouped a number of the more slightly constructed buildings. As the water escaped from the dam it carried with it the merry-go-round, a shooting gallery, a biograph exhibit and a laughing gallery.

As the wall of water swept over the dam it carried with it the sluiceway and tore an immense hole in the dam near the center. Across the park the water, now over 20 feet high, fairly raced. Half way to the entrance it struck the school of mines, a substantial frame building erected by the Park Amusement Company of Pittsburgh at a cost of $20,000. The big building was lifted from its foundation and carried with the flood, only to be completely wrecked before it had been taken 100 feet.

Arrival of the Torrent.

A hundred persons were awaiting cars at the entrance to the park. A great part of them were from Jeannette, the Greensburgers having taken cars for home just five minutes before. The small waiting room was packed to suffocation, and a number of the throng went to a nearby eating room. Others became alarmed at the sudden rise in Brush creek, and made for the hillsides. At least 40 stayed.

From around a curve in the roadway that leads from the entrance to the summer theater the big flood of water came with the speed of a Niagara. Everybody rushed from the structure only to be

LAST SACRAMENT IS ADMINISTERED TO DYING PONTIFF

Princes of the Church of Rome Surrounded His Couch as Solemn Words of Absolution Are Spoken by His Confessor.

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

Rome, July 5, 2 a. m.—"God's will be done. Who would have believed it, when only 10 days ago I was presiding over a public consistory?" feebly murmured Pope Leo as he felt himself late last evening sinking into a sleep which lasted about three hours, until excruciating pain brought the dying pontiff back to consciousness. He groaned and complained of pains on both sides of the thorax. Tenderly Dr. Lapponi, assisted by Pope Leo's valet, Pioccetta, and the physician's second assistant, De Castro, lifted the frail form, and, changing the position, succeeded in giving the patient some relief.

Though hovering on the brink of death, the life of the pontiff is still prolonged by means of strong stimulants and concentrated nourishment.

Rome, July 5, 10 p. m.—During the afternoon the strength of Pope Leo XIII began to fail him so rapidly and his condition became so critical that it appeared that only a few hours of his life remained to him. It was, therefore, deemed wise to advise him of his grave condition, and this was done with tender precaution. Pope Leo was thus prepared for his last communion, which was administered tonight, with the participation of all the cardinals now in Rome, and the whole of the pontifical court.

The solemn, yet gorgeous ceremony of administering the last sacrament took place at the bedside of Pope Leo. The central figure was the dying pontiff, whose long life's journey is nearly over, calmly preparing to enter the dark valley. His pale and emaciated face, almost as white as the pillows on which it rested, showed little sign of life, except the keen glittering eyes, always his most striking feature.

Around the bed were grouped the noble guard in their glittering uniform, the Knights of the Cloak and Sword, in their picturesque medieval costume of black with white ruffs, 25 cardinals, all the members of the Sacred college who are present in Rome, stately and venerable figures in their sweeping crimson robes; the whole forming a scene of rich, subdued coloring, a fit subject for the pencil of Rembrandt. The whole of what is called the pontifical family, headed by Cardinal Rampolla and including all the private chamberlains, were there. Next to the bed stood the imposing tall figure of the cardinal grand penitentiary, Serafino Vannutelli, with the pope's confessor, to hear the last confession of the departing pontiff. Then the great prelate approached bearing the viaticum to give the last communion and administer the extreme unction, assisted by the grand penitentiary.

Pope Leo feebly recited the confession of faith, as formulated by the council of Trent, and finally the words of absolution and the formula of indulgence in articulo mortis were solemnly pronounced by the grand penitentiary. The heads of the great religious orders, who were present, granted the pope the special indulgences which they have the privilege of conferring. Then came the solemn prayers for a passing soul and part of the gospel of the Lord's passion. As the last words died away, all fell on their knees. The pontiff, raising his almost transparent fingers with a feeble effort, pronounced in scarcely audible words his benediction on the sacred college, and on all present and then sank back on the pillows. There was scarcely a tearless eye in the whole assembly, the sobs of the pope's relatives were plainly heard. Deep silence followed, only broken now and again by a murmured prayer or a pious ejaculation.

In the portion of the loggia of Raphael, adjoining the papal apartments, were the families of Count Ricardo Pecci and Count Mercoli, the pope's nephews.

LIST OF KNOWN DEAD AND FEW OF MISSING

Names of Victims of the Disaster Slowly Coming In—Enough Already to Show Extent of Catastrophe.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

Jeannette, Pa., July 5.—Tomorrow a bureau will be opened to register the names of the identified dead recovered, descriptions of those bodies recovered but not identified, and the names of the missing. The dead and missing, so far as known, are as follows, but only daylight can determine the extent of the disaster:

THE DEAD.

MISS GERTRUDE KEEPER, aged 24 years, of Jeannette; body recovered.
JOHN FLEMING, stable boy at the old fairgrounds, Greensburg.
GEORGE WHITMAN, a boy of West Jeannette.
JAMES WESTWOOD, aged 35 years, of West Jeannette.
MRS. LEVI BAKER of West Jeannette.
JOHN M'GURKY, aged 40 years, of West Jeannette.
GEORGE WILLIAMS, aged 35 years, of Jeannette.
ALEX VICTOR, Jeannette.
MRS. NIGGA ND FOUR CHILDREN of West Jeannette.
UNKNOWN WOMAN, found at Manor.
UNKNOWN CHILD, found at Manor.
UNKNOWN MAN, found at Penn.
EDWARD SMITH, aged 10 years, newsboy of Jeannette.
DAUGHTER OF FRED DAVIS, aged 13 years, of West Jeannette.

THE MISSING.

MISS LUCY CRUM, who was with Miss Keeper of Jeannette.
JOHN AND LAWRENCE O'NEIL, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Barney O'Neil.
CURTIS MOORE, Jeannette.
SAMUEL VOGLE, Jeannette.
MR. AND MRS. HENRY FINK, Jeannette.
ED O'BRIEN, Greensburg.
COUNCILMAN JOHN Z. LIGHT AND FAMILY of Greensburg. Were at the park, and at a late hour tonight had not been accounted for. They are said to have been in the waiting room.
TWO SILKS SISTERS of West Jeannette.
ALFRED SIPE, aged 9 years, of West Jeannette.

MANY WERE RESCUED BY BRAVE ONES

Stories of Pathos and Terror Numerous at Scene of Flood.

HERO LOST HIS LIFE

Jeannette, Pa., July 5.—Stories of the survivors and spectators of the death-bearing flood are full of pathos and terror. The torrent is casting up its flotsam and jetsam of corpses on the banks, but is bearing many more away upon its raging bosom.

Reports are being made to the relief headquarters momentarily. They are brief but full of action.

Eight boys were playing cards in a stable at Penn when the flood came. George Whitman of West Jeannette was killed and his body was washed away in the water. The seven other boys were rescued.

James Westwood, aged 35, was drowned in the flood after he had done all he could for his wife and three children, who were also caught in the rush of water. By strenuous efforts their more lucky neighbors were able to get the wife and children from the torrent before they had been drowned.

The case of Mrs. Levi Baker was pathetic. She was ill in bed when the flood came, but was unable to move when the warning was given that the wall of water was heading for her house. As a result she was caught and was drowned.

John McGusky, aged 40, was drowned.

George Williams, aged 35, was drowned, but his wife was saved.

Also Victor was hurled against a tree by the torrent and was so badly injured that he died.

The Nigra family, consisting of the mother and seven children, was caught in the flood and the mother and four of the little ones perished. Three of the children were rescued from the flood while they were still alive and while the house was floating down the creek.

Boy of Unknown Woman.

An unknown woman's body was found at Manor. She had been drowned and her body had been washed a considerable distance. Several persons viewed the remains, but none of them could identify them. Her age was about 36 years.

Beside the unknown woman was found the body of a child, aged 5 years. No one could be found who could identify this body, either.

At Penn station two street cars filled with people were caught in the flood. All of the people were rescued, but they had exciting times as several had to swim and be dragged to safety.

John Sowers, manager of the Kelly & Jones works at Greensburg, was rescued with his wife with much difficulty by P. W. Pickett. Both were in a critical condition when taken from their danger.

At Penn Station was found the drowned body of a man, but no one could be found who could identify him, although many viewed the remains.

A crowd of people at the Brush creek bridge, Manor, had a narrow escape. They were all on the structure when the flood came. However, all were saved.

Mrs. Lilian Schroeder, aged 50, who had been afflicted with typhoid fever, died about an hour before the flood came. When the rush of water took place all other persons in the house got away, but the could not take the body with them, as they had trouble escaping. The body was washed away by the flood.

Live Stock Washed Away.

A large number of horses and much live stock of all kinds were washed away at Jeannette. Thirty horses and 25 or 30 head of cattle perished in the flood at Penn.

Edward Smith, a 10-year-old negro boy who lived near the park, was caught and washed away before he could be rescued, although several persons said they could hear his cries as he perished in the waves.

The 13-year-old daughter of Fred Davis of West Jeannette was drowned and the body was recovered.

The two Silks sisters of West Jeannette are missing and are thought to have been drowned in the flood.

Alfred Sipe, aged 9, of West Jeannette, is missing, and as he was last seen where the flood went down the valley, he is thought to be among the drowned.

Sidney McClain of Greensburg was caught in the flood, but managed to reach dry land. It is likely he will die from the bad burns he received from a live wire.

R. B. Lemon, James Cox and Charles Crock did heroic work in rescuing people. They were at the park when the flood came and struck a street car containing 14 persons. They set to work and finally managed to get out all who were in the coach. It was stationed near the fatal waiting room at the park.

Some Thrilling Rescues.

There were a large number of thrilling rescues reported, and a number of acts of bravery took place, the heroes being persons who risked their lives to save others. One man, whose name could not be learned, was seen by several persons to make a hard effort to rescue a woman, presumably his wife, shortly after the flood struck the waiting room. The man was in an apparently safe position among some saplings. In his struggles to get to the woman he lost his hold, and both were swept away with the torrent and probably lost.

Hugh Kornbauer, chief of the fire department of Jeannette, was in charge of the rescue party that was organized, and he and his men performed many rescues.

Joseph Gundy of Jeannette was rescued at the mouth of the culvert under the railroad track. He had a narrow escape from death by being washed against the masonry of the culvert. When taken from the flood he was completely exhausted, and could not have battled much longer.

Mrs. Kate Kounice had an exciting ride on a raft and finally was rescued. She had gone a considerable distance on the raft, and when taken off the frail structure t Penn station she was so exhausted and overcome by fright that she could hardly talk.

Too Many Inquiries for Friends.

One noticeable feature around Jeannette last night was the small number of people who were making inquiries about people injured or lost in the flood. This was accounted for partly by the fact that many people were attending to the wants of those who were injured.

Several large manufacturing plants were flooded and badly damaged by the water. Besides the heavy loss of the Pittsburgh, McKeesport & Greensburg Street Railway Company, which owns the park, the works of the Jeannette car wheel works were badly damaged, the Carbon Manufacturing Company's plant was considerably wrecked, the Westmoreland Specialty Company's works suffered heavily and the German Foundry and Machine Company will be a large loser.

M. A. Coffee, superintendent of the traction line, said he had no idea how many persons had been lost in the flood. He declared he had no means of finding out the number by the small amount of data on hand. JAMES L. QUINN.

Will Visit Pittsburgh.

LENOX, MASS., July 5.—(Special.)—Mrs. George Westinghouse and Mr. George Westinghouse, Jr., will leave Erskine park tomorrow for Pittsburgh for a week's visit.

VIVID STORY OF THE GREAT DISASTER

caught in the flood and swept down the valley. Frantic efforts were made to escape, but the waters were filling with the debris of the demolished structures and carried their victims onward to be crushed to death by the heavy timbers or drowned.

Only One Escaped.

Only one person in the waiting room escaped. There were no opportunities to rescue, as the wall of water swept past the plant of the Farady carbon works and on through the valley until the debris lodged at the big fill of the Pennsylvania railroad, west of the Jeannette passenger station. The flood swept through a small colony of homes of workmen at the carbon works and the neighboring glass works, but so sudden was the coming of the waters that the owners of the homes and their families were barely given time to escape to the hillsides.

This one person rescued was Mrs. George Sauber of Greensburg. She was swept by the home of Joseph Grundy, just at the edge of the water, and her hair caught upon a projecting portico. Mr. Grundy was able to reach her, and pulled her into his home, where she was resuscitated after great efforts. She is badly bruised, and it is feared that she received internal injuries in her awful race down the valley.

Damage Done to Plants.

For over 300 feet at the Pennsylvania railroad fill the debris was piled. A small culvert allowed a portion of the water to escape and to the north of the tracks a number of the victims were seen struggling in the water. The flood raced madly through the Class City, inundating the Jeannette bottle works, the plant of the Jeannette Planing Company and the big plants of the American Window Glass Company and the National Glass Company.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of damage was done to property. The planing mill is moved from its foundations, and valuable pots and moulds at the glass plants have been completely destroyed. For over 100 feet the No. 1 track on the big railroad fill was completely washed away, and service was seriously interfered with for over an hour. The plant of the Greensburg Foundry and Machine Company was also badly damaged.

Cars Caught by Torrent.

The Greensburgers who had left the park just a few minutes before the dam broke had reached a siding three miles west of Greensburg when the cloudburst occurred. The siding borders on Brush creek, and the car was soon completely surrounded by water to the depth of several feet. All were taken from their perilous position by means of ropes.

Great alarm was felt in Greensburg for their safety, and when the news of the disaster reached Greensburg, there was a general outpouring for the park. All traffic on the street railway was cut off, and hundreds of prominent professional and business men, whose children had been at the park during the day, started along the railroad tracks for Grapeville, the nearest point to the park. Among the number was Judge Alexander D. McConnell, whose 6-year-old son, Robert, had gone to the park with the maid of the McConnell family.

Hero of the Disaster.

Clyde Huffman of Jeannette is the hero of the disaster. He was one of the throng about the entrance when the dam burst, and was a witness to the carrying away of the waiting station. Fourteen persons had sought refuge from the downpour of rain in a car that was standing on a siding. It was not in the direct path of the wall of water, but had been completely encompassed by the flood, and its occupants were unable to wade through the torrents of water that swept by the car. Huffman secured a rope and tossed it to each inmate of the car. All were taken to points of safety.

W. M. Rollins of Greensburg had a narrow escape from being washed to death. Rollins and a companion, Ed O'Brien, were in the repair car near the entrance, and when the flood of water came down the valley crawled upon it. The car was swept away, but Rollins succeeded in battling with the flood until he reached a point from which he could wade to a hillside. O'Brien could not be found tonight, and it is feared that he lies in the pile of debris at the Pennsylvania railroad fill.

No sooner had the big volume of water swept through the valley than hundreds lined the banks to search for the victims. The work was difficult during the first hours of the search, for the branches of Brush creek were pouring their contents into the stream and the flood was still racing down the valley, piling additional debris upon the graves of the victims.

Three hours after the cloudburst the first victim was dragged from the water. It was Miss Gertrude Keefer, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Keefer of Gaskill avenue, Jeannette. Her remains were taken to the undertaking establishment of A. L. Bethune, Jeannette, and prepared for burial. Coroner C. A. Wynn visited the morgue during the evening and viewed the body preparatory to holding the inquest.

Search Abandoned for Night.

At 11 o'clock, all systematic efforts to find the remains of the victims were practically abandoned. A score or more of fathers, members of whose families were missing, waiked about the debris and ventured far out upon it in search of the lost, but at midnight they had not been rewarded with the recovery of the bodies they sought. All of the bodies will not be recovered for weeks, if at all. The debris at the Pennsylvania railroad tracks is piled to a depth of 20 feet, a tangled mass of heavy timbers and structural steel.

The Pittsburgh, McKeesport & Greensburg Street Railway Company is the heaviest loser by the disaster. It came into possession of the park three years ago, when it merged with the Greensburg & Hempfield railway. At least $100,000 was spent in improving the resort, almost one-half of which was devoted to permanent improvements this year.

Park Completely Wrecked.

The park is completely wrecked, the only structures left standing being the dancing pavilion, the restaurant and the summer theater being partially wrecked. The car barn was also badly damaged. All along the line their tracks were badly washed and it will be weeks before the line can be in operation again.

Valuable stock was lost by the Jeannette Brewing Company and the Jeannette Storage and Transfer Company. Ten horses were drowned in the stables of the former concern and eight by the transfer company.

The storm was also severe in Greensburg, and at the old fair grounds many horses belonging to the members of the Greensburg Driving club were drowned by the sudden rising of Jacks creek. The horses belonging to Lloyd B. Huff, Henry Coulter and Henry Sarver, John Fleming, a stable boy was also drowned. All of the horses were valuable, several of them having been purchased this season for sums approximating $1,000.

JAMES D. CRAWFORD.

DAMAGE TO RAILROAD.

Company Places Loss at Over $200,000 — Bridges Are Washed Away.

The railroad officials stated last night that it would take at least 24 hours before the four tracks could be repaired sufficient to be used. The reports show damage at various places between Bradenville, 44 miles from Pittsburgh, and Larimer, 20 miles. Between these two points the tracks were covered at Jeannette, Penn, Donahoe, East Rodabaugh, Beatty and Morrellville.

Including the washouts and the damaged culverts, together with the bridges washed away, company officials place the damage at over $200,000. It will take several days to repair the roadbed and several weeks to complete the repairs on the culverts and bridges.

IMMENSE DAMAGE DONE BY FLOOD AT IRWIN

Three Bridges and Pennsylvania Railroad Freight Station Are Washed Away.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

IRWIN, PA., July 5.—The damage done by the flood in and around Irwin will amount to more than $300,000. At 9:15 tonight the Pennsylvania railroad freight station was swept away, and this destroyed the bridge to North Irwin. The force of the water carried away the steel bridge over the Yough branch, and the iron bridge further down, cutting off the town from the main line of the railroad. Five loaded coal cars on the bridge were swept down the street.

There is still a big volume of water held back by debris at Manor. This may break at any moment.

The cloudburst east of here and the heavy rain caused Brush creek to rise higher than ever known before. It first caught the Westmoreland Coal Company car shops and flooded them. The debris was overpowering in bulk. Everything from railroad ties to houses came down to lodge against the Pennsylvania railroad freight station on the old line. The building could not stand the pressure, and the east end of it was crushed in. The rushing water swept the freight stored there out into the creek. Tracks on this part of the line are all under water.

The worst damage was done in West Irwin in the manufacturing district. The heavy losers are the Hickinsmith Company, Irwin Lumber Company and the Penn Electric Manufacturing Company. These establishments are several feet under water. Everything around the buildings was swept away. The damage all along the creek west to Larimer is immense.

Scores of people barely had time to escape from their houses, so sudden was the rise of the stream. The town tonight is without light and water. The creek is still rising, and the greatest damage, it is feared, has not yet been done.

WEST VIRGINIA ALSO FEELS STORM'S FORCE

Great Damage is Done Along B. & O. Railroad in Vicinity of Parkersburg.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

PARKERSBURG, W. VA., July 5.—This section was visited this afternoon by one of the most severe thunder and rainstorms in its history. All of the small streams are raging and transportation and telephone lines suffered heavy loss.

The Ohio division of the Baltimore & Ohio is the worst damaged, a trestle being washed out at Letart and several washouts and slides are reported, both north and south of here. At Jackson station, on the Grafton & Parkersburg branch a big fill was washed out and a yard crew discovered it in time to flag the west-bound accommodation and the east-bound express, narrowly avoiding a bad wreck. At Briggs, on the Marietta branch, a cinder fill was washed out.

The interurban street car line has two washouts extending along a line of 700 feet. Neal's run rose so rapidly as to flood houses on the south side, and the property loss will be considerable. The West Virginia Telephone Company had 15 telephones burned out and communication with the Little Kanawha Valley is cut off.

The street car service in this city is badly demoralized. The weather bureau reports the rainfall at two inches. A later report at Neals runs says the advance wave that came down was fully eight feet above the level of the Kanawha.

Capt. Milton R. Lowther, one of the most prominent timber men in this section, was caught on a lockage of six rafts of timber and washed out into the Ohio, where he was rescued by a steamer.

THREE RIDE ON TENDER; ONE DEAD, TWO INJURED

Fatal Collision Between Two Electric Cars at Irvindale Park.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

WARREN, PA., July 5.—As the result of an accident on the Warren Electric Traction Company's road at Irvindale park, three miles outside this city, shortly after 12 o'clock Sunday morning, Arch Striciers, aged 20, is dead; John Jenson, aged 20, will die, and Alfred Graham, aged 20, is seriously injured.

A heavily loaded car, on which the men were riding, collided with another coming in the opposite direction. Striciers, Jenson and Graham were standing on the forward fender. Graham jumped and Striciers and Jenson were caught between the cars, and their bodies crushed.

The former died before reaching the city, and the latter is injured internally and cannot recover.

ONE MAN DROWNED AT HOLLIDAYSBURG

HOLLIDAYSBURG, PA., July 5.—(Special.)—A disastrous cloudburst flooded streets and houses in Gaysport, this county, tonight. The fire alarm whistle was blown and the householders were conveyed in wagons to places of refuge. Much property loss was caused. There was one fatality: John Frank, a blacksmith, was caught while crossing a railroad bridge to escape the storm by a car and instantly killed.

Three Men Pounded a Policeman.

John Clarity, Martin Jordan and Martin Walsh of the West End, were sent to jail yesterday by Magistrate J. H. Vitchestain to await the injuries of Policeman Michael Halvey, who was beaten by them at the Point bridge, Saturday evening. Halvey was struck on the back of the head with a large clinker and received a severe scalp wound. He is at his home in McKnight street, in a serious condition and will make an information against the men when he is able to get out.

Six Thousand Baptists Expected.

ATLANTA, GA., July 5.—The annual convention of the Baptist Young People's union of America, which will be attended by delegates from all sections of the United States and Canada, will begin in this city next Thursday. It is expected that the attendance will be 6,000 people.

OFFICIALS GO TO JEANNETTE

Robert Pitcairn Ordered Special Trains to Flooded District. Wires Were Down.

RAN WILD SEVERAL MILES

Under the direct orders of Robert Pitcairn, resident assistant to President A. J. Cassatt, two special trains were hurried to Jeannette as soon as word was received of the disaster. The first train pulled out of the Union station about 7 o'clock and had on board Superintendent S. C. Long, Assistant Engineer G. W. Snyder, Passenger Trainmaster E. C. Stewart and Division Operator S. B. Murphy. They took with them telegraph instruments and apparatus to repair the wires so that communication could be re-established.

The first word received in Union station stated that over 200 people were drowned, and almost before a secon message could be taken off the wires the special train was on its way to the devastated district. The train had to run wild after it passed Pitcairn, as all the wires were washed down. In spite of this fact and the grave danger of the tracks being undermined, the special made better time than the average through train. The officials upon arriving on the scene took full charge of train operations and gave many orders by telephone, wherever possible.

A message was sent to Pitcairn for the wreck train and the wreck train at the Twenty-eighth street roundhouse was also sent to the flooded valley. On each train were as many men as could board them. Besides railroad employes, hundreds of young men were invited to go, so that every assistance could be given the people in distress.

Just as the wreck train was passing Irwin the flood had reached that place. As the last car was pulling from the Irwin curve the Youghiogheny bridge loosened from its foundation and shortly after was carried down the swollen stream. The old Irwin passenger station was caught in the ravaging waters. It was carried several yards from off the foundation on which it had rested for many years. The foot bridge at this place was carried down the rapid flowing stream as though it was a cork spinning over the water fall.

About 9 o'clock another special train was run to Jeannette. Its passenger list was largely made up of newspaper men and telegraph operators. Gazette correspondents boarded the train, accompanied by artists, photographers and telegraphers. Hundreds of people at Union station watched the train as it pulled out. The officials were appealed to to allow several young men to board the train as relief workers.

After the first special arrived it was not long until one of the wires was repaired and communication had with the Pittsburgh office. From then until midnight the wire was kept hot in exchanging messages. About 11 o'clock another wire was repaired and put in working order.

The entire Pittsburgh force of railroad telegraphers was called out. Some were sent to Pitcairn to take the places of those who left their positions to go on the wreck train. Others were retained in the Pittsburgh office.

HOUSE IS TORN DOWN BY AN ILLINOIS MOB

White People Seek Life of Negress Who Seriously Beats White Boy.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

PEORIA, ILL., July 5.—A mob of 300 white people sought the life of Minnie Pearl, colored, who beat Perry Combs, a white boy, aged 11, with a club this afternoon, until his body was covered with deep cuts and welts.

The woman was arrested and taken to the police station before the mob could reach the house. When the mob discovered that she was gone, they tore down her house and threw the furniture into the river.

The attack on the boy was made because he led a mule across the woman's lot.

HANNA EXPECTED.

Ohio Senator and Party Will Be Guests at Roosevelt Home This Week.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 5.—Senator Hanna, accompanied by Mrs. Hanna and a small party of friends, is expected at Sagamore Hill early this week. The party will arrive in a yacht in which Mr. Hanna proposes to take a short cruise, and will take luncheon with the president and Mrs. Roosevelt and their house guests. Assurance is given that the senator's call will be purely social and will have no political significance.

Clarence H. Mackay has presented to President Roosevelt a small section of the new Pacific cable. It is beautifully mounted and rests in a handsome mahogany case.

SATOLLI AT FRASCATI.

Cardinal Takes Possession of His New See Amid Great Enthusiasm.

ROME, July 5.—Although the pope has been sinking, Cardinal Satolli left Rome yesterday before the critical nature of the pontiff's illness became known. He made a triumphal entrance today at Frascati into the possession of the new see conferred by the pope at the last consistory. He was received with great pomp and rejoicings by the authorities and people and went to the cathedral, where he officiated at mass and blessed and addressed the people. Although the see of Frascati is one of the highest bishoprics conferred on cardinals, it is passive and has no income attached to it.

FIRE IN HANNA MINE NOW UNDER CONTROL

HANNA, WYO., July 5.—It is believed the fire in the mine which was the scene of the recent explosions and consequent heavy loss of life, has been brought under control. The work of removing the debris from the slope is progressing favorably. It is not believed, however, that an attempt will be made to remove the bodies of the entombed miners for several days to come.

Threw a Lamp in His Face.

James Kirby and Michael Bell of No. 3465 Charlotte street, were arrested yesterday on charges of keeping a disorderly house and selling liquor illegally by Capt. C. F. Ford of No. 3 police station. One of the women claims there a lamp in the officer's face and made her escape in the confusion.

TWO LIVES LOST RESULT OF FIRE

Main Building of Hammond Packing Plant at St. Joseph Is Destroyed.

LOSS MORE THAN A MILLION

Carcasses of Thousands of Hogs, Cattle and Sheep Being Prepared for Market Are Consumed—Other Plants Were in Danger.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

ST. JOSEPH, MO., July 5.—The main building of the Hammond packing plant was destroyed by fire this afternoon. The loss is estimated as high as $1,500,000. It is entirely covered by insurance.

Two men lost their lives in the flames. One of them is reported to be Charles Miller, fire marshal at the plant. This could not be verified. Three men were injured, one of them seriously.

For a time the entire stock yards district was threatened. By hard work the Nelson Morris plant, 300 feet north of the Hammond plant, was saved, and this saved the Swift plant, which is north of the Nelson Morris building.

The fire started a little after 2 o'clock. By 9 o'clock most of the building was gone. The greatest danger was at 6 o'clock, when part of the north wall fell, and the fierce flames were shot toward the Nelson Morris building.

The carcasses of 4,500 hogs, 1,800 cattle and 800 sheep were burned. Nearly 100,000 pounds of oleomargarine were destroyed. The contents of the smokehouse were consumed.

The origin of the fire is a mystery. There was no fire in the eating department in the eastern part of the building, where the fire started.

Daniel Smalley, foreman of the can department, fell from the car sheds on the north of the building, and suffered serious injury.

The fatalities occurred about 5 o'clock. By that time nearly the entire building was on fire. A man with a hose, said to have been Miller, was seen at one of the windows on the north side of the hog department. He walked back into the building and a few seconds later those on the outside heard terrible cries. The man did not appear again, and is believed to have been killed.

Two young men who were in the room and left a few minutes before said that two failed to escape, but they did not give the names of the men, who were said to be employes of the company.

The buildings and machinery were covered by insurance to the amount of $550,000, and the stock was insured for about $650,000.

NEW BAPTIST CHAPEL.

Branch of the Sandusky Street Church, Allegheny, Was Dedicated Yesterday.

The Judson Baptist chapel, in Kennedy avenue, near Perrysville avenue, Allegheny, was opened and dedicated last night. The chapel and the ground on which it is located cost about $4,000, and both land and building are gifts from Francis T. Torrance, president of Allegheny select council. The chapel is a branch of the Sandusky Street Baptist church.

The Rev. William H. Barker, associate pastor of the Sandusky Street church, had charge of the exercises, and delivered the opening prayer. Addresses were made by the Rev. B. F. Woodburn, D. D., pastor of the Sandusky Street church; Mr. Torrance and Howard L. Gemmell, superintendent of the chapel Sunday school.

Mr. Torrance spoke of the past achievements of the Baptist church in Allegheny and hoped that the chapel would so extend the usefulness of the church that the building would soon be too small to accommodate those who will attend the services there.

The Rev. W. E. Pritchard of the Pittsburgh Baptist association made a short address on the work of the association. The Sandusky Street church choir furnished the music.

CASSINI IS HOPEFUL.

Russian Ambassador Wishes Continuance of Good Relations With United States.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, said tonight that he would sail from New York on Tuesday. It is evident that nothing will be done further by Russia to show that it regards the Kishineff matter as a subject on which it cannot and will not receive communications from any other country. Count Cassini would not discuss this phase of our relations with the imperial government at St. Petersburg, but he said, in answer to a question as to his view of international relations on the eve of his departure:

"I can only say that I am going away for the summer and that I hope and trust that nothing will occur to mar the relations which have been so friendly for so many years between my country and the United States of America. I also make free to voice the expectation that the tornado which has been disturbing public sentiment in this country for the last seven weeks will spend itself without causing any embarrassment, either in Washington or St. Petersburg. I earnestly desire that the friendship which has prevailed during the five years I have been at this post will in no way suffer a strain."

ARE FOR FILIPINOS.

Gov. Taft Alleged to Have Said Those Who Don't Like It Can Leave.

WASHINGTON, PA., July 5.—(Special.)—Rawley M. Cook and wife returned today from a tour of the world. They were away six months and spent a large portion of their time in the Philippines. Mr. Cook, in an interview here today, says that Gov. Taft, in charge of affairs in the island, is very unpopular among the Americans, although he is liked by the Filipinos.

He says that Gov. Taft, while he was in Manila, stated that: "The Philippines are for the Filipinos, and if the Americans located here are not satisfied with the government they can leave."

This and similar statements, according to Cook, have alienated the Americans, but made good friends of the Filipinos.

Allegheny Places Raided.

Lieut. John Boland, Detective John King and Special Officer Benjamin Ehrhardt raided two alleged speakeasies in Allegheny yesterday. The first was a shantyboat at the foot of Western avenue, known as the "Fifth Ward Independent Club," and 10 persons were arrested and locked up in Central station. The proprietor of the place could not be found. The other raid was at the place of George Weimar, at 601 Preble avenue. The proprietor and 12 visitors were arrested and locked up.

Miss Buys' Body Recovered.

ERIE, PA., July 5.—(Special.)—The searchers today recovered the body of Miss Margaret Buys, 25 years old, who was drowned last evening at the harbor by the overturning of a launch. The grappling hook badly disfigured her face.

EXCITEMENT AT UNION STATION

Hundreds of People Begged to Be Taken to the Flooded District.

ROUNDABOUT ROUTES USED

The first news of the cloudburst near Jeannette that reached Union station had it that the Grapeville dam had broken. This caused great excitement among passengers waiting to take trains for the east. Every person in the building apparently wanted to purchase tickets for Jeannette, and the police were unable to keep the crowds back to prevent a jam. The train caller was instructed to notify the passengers that no train could be sent to Jeannette until after one arrived from that place. All the trains coming from east of Jeannette were held up beyond the flooded district.

About 1 o'clock word was received at the Pittsburgh office that one track was cleared and that Train No. 31 had started for Pittsburgh. This caused much relief among the passengers who lived at Jeannette and points in that vicinity.

Several persons at the station had come to Pittsburgh to spend the Fourth, and they were anxious to learn if any of their relatives and friends were numbered among the dead or injured.

As time rolled by the crowds at the station increased. People from all parts of the city came to the station until it was so crowded that it was almost impossible to pass in or out. When it came time for the first train to leave, at 10:30 o'clock, the crowd became very impatient. The people were persistent in forcing their way through the gates, thinking that the railroad men were only permitting a selected few go on the train.

A bulletin was posted stating that trains Nos. 5, 25, 27 and 1 had been sent by way of Kiskiminetas Junction and over the West Penn and the Allegheny Valley branches. The first train that pulled into the station by that route reached here after 11 o'clock. Every passenger that stepped off the train was accosted by numerous questions about the disaster, but as the train left the main line at Blairsville intersection, the people on the train did not know as much as was known in Pittsburgh.

The excitement was intensified when the train caller announced the time for the departure of trains Nos. 14 and 6. All were under the impression that they would run through Jeannette. Several purchased tickets for points between here and that place, but the gatemen refused to let them pass through, as the trains were sent over the Allegheny Valley and the West Penn, on the same route as the western trains were brought to the city.

The first train to leave east over the main line was the Fast line, which left Union station at 10 o'clock. The officials were advised that one track had been cleared and they considered it expedient to send the train over its proper route. Many asked that the fast line be stopped at Jeanette, but the officials absolutely refused to allow it to stop there.

The first train to leave Union station for Jeannette should have left at 10:30 o'clock, but it was after 12 o'clock before it got away. It was filled to its utmost capacity and the engineer was given slow orders on account of the uncertainty of the tracks owing to the heavy rains.

PLAYING FOR TIME.

Colombian Advocates of Canal Treaty Hoping to Win Opponents Over Later On.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(Special.)—According to reports reaching the Colombian legation from Bogota, the discussion of the canal treaty will certainly be continued into the regular session, which meets July 20.

It is the scheme of the opponents of the canal to force a vote at the earliest possible moment, as they are confident of a majority. The government's supporters realize the overwhelming sentiment in and out of congress is at present opposed to the treaty, but hope later on to win over by some means a sufficient number from the opposite side to push the treaty through.

Thus the work of the senate has been largely occupied in the appointment of committees, and so far as the Colombian legation has heard there has been no extensive discussion on the canal in that body. There have been several spirited debates in the house, which show the opposition to the treaty has lost none of its bitterness.

HUFF'S GOOD WORK.

Developed Championship Baseball Team at University of Illinois—Football Next.

CHAMPAIGNE, ILL., July 5.—(Special.)—George A. Huff, graduate manager of athletics at the University of Illinois, has just led the baseball team through the most remarkable season in its history. The team won 17 out of 18 games, winning the championship and scoring 200 runs to 50 scored by opponents.

Coach Huff's wonderful ability in developing a team was never more clearly demonstrated than during the present season. Five of the stars of the 1902 team were gone, and Ludtzen, pitcher of the Chicago National league, was one of them. Mr. Huff, however, considers this year's team superior to that of last year.

He will take a few days rest, after which he will begin active preparations looking to the organization of the football team for the coming season.

Boat Pumper Drowned.

Michael Gallagher, a boat pumper employed on a float at the foot of Wilkins street, Allegheny, was drowned in the Ohio river early yesterday morning. He was a married man, 56 years old, and lived at Carey alley and South Eighteenth street.

B. & O. Loses $200,000 by Fire.

CHICAGO JUNCTION, O., July 5.—Sixty-five loaded cars, the transfer house and a number of smaller buildings, the property of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, were destroyed by fire today. The loss is estimated at $200,000. Three cars of powder were drawn from the transfer house before the fire reached them.

MERCY TEMPERED STERN JUSTICE

Fourth of July Peccadilloes Looked Upon Lightly by the Police Magistrates.

MANY WENT NOT PUNISHED

Light Fines Imposed Upon a Number of Prisoners—A Few Real Bad Men Got the Limit—One District's Patrol Alarm Disabled and Telephones Used.

Justice was tempered with mercy at the police court hearings of the cases arising yesterday morning. Hangover, aching heads and uneasy stomachs were considered sufficient punishments for many prisoners, while a number were released upon the payment of nominal fines.

Eighty-five prisoners out of 125 were discharged by Magistrate T. D. Stewart at Central station. He fined four men $25 and costs each for carrying loaded guns. They were John Sweers, George Furland, John Lambo and John Quinon. Victor Galdiva, a waiter at the Hotel Henry, was fined a like amount for stealing a watch from a guest at table. Bart Wood was fined the same amount for striking a man with a blunt instrument.

There were 37 prisoners arraigned before Magistrate J. J. Kirby at the Twelfth ward station. Steve Kraiel, who was arrested for firing a loaded revolver on the Fourth, was fined $50 and costs. He gave Detectives Cole and Lew, who made the arrest, a hard fight and hit Detective Cole on the head. The other prisoners paid light fines or were discharged.

There were 42 cases at the Thirty-third street station. Not in the last 20 years has the patrol wagon made as many trips in one night as on Saturday. All the patrol boxes were temporarily rendered useless by the storm and all the calls were made by telephone. Magistrate Thomas P. Kane fined Frank Shuster $50 and costs for beating his wife. The other prisoners were mostly violators of the ordinance against shooting and were let off with light fines.

Joseph Gordon, a Pole, of No. 900 Wilkinsburg street, South Side, was held for court by Magistrate J. H. Verner-Smith at the Desmet at the South Thirty-sixth street station. He is charged with stealing money and clothing from the house where he boards. Forty-four other cases of disorderly conduct and drunkenness were heard and most of them were required to pay small fines.

Police Magistrate Samuel Abernathy disposed of 42 cases at Allegheny Central station yesterday morning. Joseph Bail of Petrel street, was fined $25 and costs for threatening to shoot and curse up Officer Charles Webb. Ten persons arrested in an alleged gambling house in River avenue were discharged, no evidence that they were gambling being produced. The other cases were common Fourth of July drunks and disorderlies.

Civil Service Examination.

The United States civil service commission announces that a special examination will be held in this city July 15. Applications will be received up to the hour of the examination. Persons who desire to compete should apply at once in person or writing to James E. Cowen, secretary of the local position board of examiners, room No. 1, postoffice. The examination is open to all citizens of the United States who comply with the regulations. There are a number of positions available, appointment to which will be made as soon as the papers have been examined by the commission.

Senor Pulido Made Secretary.

CARACAS, VENEZUELA, July 5.—A decree issued today appoints Senor Pulido, who has acted as charge d'affaires recently, secretary to the Venezuelan legation at Washington. The son of Gen. Hernandez ("El Mocho"), the new minister at Washington, and Senor Para are appointed attaches of the legation.

A. C. Cass Dead.

A. C. Cass, first vice president and traffic manager of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Company, died Saturday night at Redstone, Cal., in the summer home of John C. Osgood, where Mr. Cass had been visiting. Death was due to a general breaking down of the system from overwork. Mr. Cass was born in Wisconsin in 1836. The body will be taken to Denver for interment.

JEALOUS NEGRO KILLS RIVAL

James Edwards Shoots Clinton Banks for Waltzing With Sweetheart at Borland.

OFFICER WAS HELD AT BAY

Edwards and Negroes Forced Deputy to Hold Inquest in Bridgeville, Driving Him from the Scene—Assassin Made His Escape.

Jealous of a rival because he could dance, James Edwards, alias "Black Jim," shot and killed Clinton Banks, 22 years old, at a negro dance hall in Borland station, Upper St. Clair township, Allegheny county, late Saturday night. After killing his rival Edwards terrorized the white portion of the community at the point of a revolver.

When Deputy Coroner Frank J. Rehan went to hold the inquest yesterday he was unable to get any of the residents of Borland station to serve as jurors. Later he secured six men from Bridgeville, who agreed to view the dead man, unknown to Edwards and his friends, and then return to Bridgeville and testify as to having viewed the remains of the dead man.

Later Rohan attempted to place Edwards under arrest, but he was driven back by the revolvers which the murderer and some of his friends leveled at him. It took diplomacy on Rohan's part to get the body of the dead negro removed to an undertaking establishment in Bridgeville.

Both Edwards and Banks are negroes and both came from Virginia three months ago to work in the Tom Run mine.

Jealousy Caused Tragedy.

The tragedy was the outgrowth of jealousy over Carrie Miles, a pretty 18-year-old mulatto, who was living with Edwards. It is said she deserted her husband in Virginia three weeks ago to live with Edwards. Edwards is a gambler and 26 years old. He refused to do any work. Banks was a miner, aged 22 years, and was considered the "dandy coon" of the village.

Saturday night the colored miners had a dance. Banks was the best dancer and also the best dressed man of the affair. Edwards could not dance and was compelled to sit and watch his sweetheart waltz with others.

Banks was her partner for almost two hours. This enraged Edwards. Later he called Carrie and took her home. Banks paid no attention to this. Edwards returned to the dance hall after a few minutes and called Banks out.

"Nigger, I want to talk with you," he said. Banks was armed, but unmindful of any danger, walked out in the yard with Edwards. The latter drew his revolver and without a word of warning shot Banks through the chest.

Banks staggered back to the dance hall and fell dead. Edwards returned to his sweetheart. Later in the night he joined in a card game and played until daylight, while the body of his victim lay within 100 yards of him. The other negroes refused to have anything to do with the affair, saying that "Black Jim" was a bad man. Earl Banks, a brother of the dead man, became frightened and hid himself in the woods after the killing, fearing that Edwards would also make short work of him.

Danced in Presence of Death.

The dead body of Banks was laid on the porch of the dance hall and the dancers continued their pleasure until daylight. Word was carried to the main village, but the residents refused to interfere, fearing the negroes. Word was then sent to Bridgeville and Coroner McGeary was notified. Deputy Rehan was detailed to make an investigation of the case. When he arrived at Borland's he was confronted by some of Edwards' friends, who demanded to know what his business was. Then they went down the hillside and notified Edwards that the officer was after him.

Deputy Rohan followed three of the negroes and when he came in sight of the gamblers Edwards and two others drew their revolvers, flashing them at Deputy Rohan, ordered him away, saying: "Get out of here, you white ——." Deputy Rohan walked away.

Deputy Rohan then tried to get a jury to hold the inquest. Not a resident of Borland dared to serve. They said the negroes would kill them if they attempted to do anything that would lead to the arrest of Edwards. Deputy Rohan then went to Bridgeville and got men to serve as jurors. One by one these men walked to the place where Banks' body lay and, gazing on the dead man, returned to Deputy Rohan and testified to viewing the remains.

Woman in the Case Arrested.

Later in the afternoon the brother of Banks was found and he told Deputy Rohan of the shooting. Edwards remained about the vicinity until late in the afternoon, and after winning considerable money to defray his expenses, disappeared.

Under the belief that she was merely wanted to identify Banks' body, Deputy Rohan persuaded Carrie Miles to go to Bridgeville with him. After getting her there she was placed under arrest. A friend of Edwards agreed to go with the girl to Bridgeville, and when he realized what had been done, attempted to shoot Deputy Rohan. "What did you do with that girl?" he said. Then he got away.

There are about 15 white families living in Borland, and about 200 colored. The negroes had this place terrorized last night, refusing to permit a white man to come within their section of the village.

ASLEEP ON TRACK; IS BADLY MANGLED

NEW CASTLE, PA., July 5.—(Special.)—Abraham Grim, a section foreman on the Pennsylvania, was probably fatally injured late this afternoon under the wheels of a New Castle & Sharon interurban car, bound for this city. He was lying asleep on the street car track a mile north of here, but was not seen by the motorman until the car was almost upon him. His left leg was severed below the knee, his skull fractured, his right arm almost torn off, and many cuts and bruises were received on all parts of his body. He lives two miles north of this city.

James M. Foust of Altoona.

ALTOONA, PA., July 5.—James Foust of this city, recently accorded a promotion by the state pure food department from inspector to general agent, oversees all the inspection work in 31 counties of the commonwealth for the pure food department. He has under him six assistants. James Foust has become a well-known and influential figure in Republican politics of the state. He is a popular leader and hard worker in the important position now held by him. He was elected coroner of Blair county in November, 1895, and resigned at the close of the year to become chief of police of Altoona in January, 1896, under the administration of Mayor H. C. Barr. He held the position acceptably for the entire term of service and on April 10, 1900, was made a pure food inspector. Since serving in this capacity he secured over 700 different food samples for inspection, also instituted between 500 and 600 prosecutions and procured fines amounting to $7,000. His new official position went into effect June 1, 1903. The counties in which he now has charge of inspecting work are Perry, Juniata, Mifflin, Huntingdon, Fulton, Blair, Bedford, Center, Clinton, Tioga, Potter, McKean, Cameron, Elk, Clearfield, Somerset, Fayette, Westmoreland, Greene, Washington, Beaver, Lawrence, Mercer, Warren, Venango, Forest, Clarion and Jefferson.

GREAT DAY FOR LITTLE FOLKS

Children Will Be Royally Entertained at Homewood Carnival Tomorrow Afternoon.

WILL BE FIVE-CENT ADMISSION

Boys and Girls Under Fifteen Years of Age Who Clip First Page Heading from the Sunday Gazette Will Be Lucky.

Admission to the big shows of the Homewood carnival and street fair can be had by all little folks tomorrow afternoon for the mere payment of 5 cents and the presentation of the head and date line cut from the first page of yesterday's issue of The Sunday Gazette. Through a regrettable mistake the coupon announced to appear on the second page of The Sunday Gazette was omitted, and in lieu of this the first page head will be used.

The Gazette regrets the fact that the coupon was left out, but the oversight will not result in any child under 15 years of age being left out in the matter of seeing the great sights in the Homewood carnival. The Gazette wants to be the friend of all the little people, just as it has always held the esteem of their grandfathers and great-grandfathers; so if all the boys and girls will clip out the head of the first page of the first section of yesterday's paper, and watch that the little star appears in the date line, they will have only to present that heading with their nickel, and the man in each show where the ticket is given will see that they are made perfectly at home.

And it will be a great show that the little folks will see. It will be just like a trip around the world, and they will see all the sights without waiting to go 'round the big globe in 80 days, either. First, they will see many of the wonders of the great world's fair in Chicago, the delights of the wild west and the Indian fighters, the famous house upside down and the mirror maze, where people stand on top of themselves.

Then they will travel far across the sea. They will see what Germany is like and hear the sweet singers and see the funny dancers. Then down they will go into Africa, into the country along the Nile, where thousands of years ago they found the boy Moses, who led the tribes out of Egypt and then turned to see their pursuers swallowed up in the Red sea.

But times have changed along the Nile since those days. The people there today are principally noted for their strange music and the odd way they have in dancing. The little people will see all this if they go to the "Streets of Cairo," but it is more likely that they will want to see the big animals of the jungles of Africa. They will find these in the wild beast show and will see seven big lions and two baby lions.

There will be no end to the families of playful monkeys—monkeys that ride bicycles, drive dog teams and eat with knife and fork just like big people at a banquet. Every boy and girl who has watched the antics of the Coon Hollow people in The Sunday Gazette will see in the wild beast show two coons and a pair of bears very much like those that beat up the bad wolf so unmercifully once every week. Besides this there is a python—a snake as long and as thick as the bannister of the stairs at home, where every boy, and even some of the girls, take great delight in coasting. A woman goes into the snake's cage and wraps it around her body. It's a tame snake, though, and is generally on its good behavior.

All the little folks like fairy tales and all have read of the beautiful mermaids that live in the sea and swim about with the fish and the whales. At the Homewood show are several real live mermaids.

Fall May Prove Fatal.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Charles D. Dickinson, a broker whose home is Woodstock, New Brunswick, Canada, fell to the floor in the rotunda of the general postoffice early today and sustained injuries to his head which may result fatally. The injured man could remember nothing concerning the manner in which he was hurt, but it is believed that he had an attack of vertigo.

Celebrated Fiftieth Anniversary.

NEW BRIGHTON, PA., July 5.—(Special.)—Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Couch of Fifth avenue, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Saturday. The couple resided here ever since their marriage. Only the children and relatives were present at the anniversary celebration.

MOTHER'S LOVE COSTS HER LIFE

Hurrying to Prepare a Meal for Her Son, Mrs. McClure Finds Death.

EXPLOSION OF KEROSENE CAN

Woman Dies Almost Instantly, Her Husband is Seriously Hurt and Another Man Receives Painful Burns—Tragedy in the Oakland District.

Haste, prompted by a mother's love, yesterday afternoon resulted in Mrs. Mary McClure being burned alive in her home at No. 5 Utica place, Oakland. In order to prepare an early supper for her son, who had sent a message saying that he would be called out of the city, Mrs. McClure used a can of kerosene to light the fire and an explosion followed, burning her to a crisp and causing severe injuries to Robert McClure, her husband. Frank Miller, a boarder in the house, was severely burned about the hands while extinguishing the flames, which threatened to destroy the building.

Mrs. McClure died instantly. She was 45 years of age and was quite well-to-do. Her husband was taken to the Mercy hospital and his condition is serious. Miller's injuries are slight.

Mrs. McClure was devoted to her son, who was the child of her former husband, James Archibald. The boy, whose name is likewise James Archibald, will reach his twenty-first birthday next month, and his mother was eagerly looking forward to that date, as then he would succeed to a legacy which had been left from his father's family. He is employed by the Oakland Livery Company and yesterday afternoon was required to make a trip out of town. He sent word to his mother that he would be at home at 4 o'clock, and a short time before that she went to the kitchen to kindle a fire in the range. She poured part of the contents of a two-gallon can of oil upon the coal and wood and a terrific explosion followed. With agonizing screams the woman ran into the adjoining room, where her husband and Miller and his wife were seated.

The flames from Mrs. McClure's clothing ignited the wall hangings and the carpet, and in an instant the entire room was ablaze. Miller first opened the door and thrust his wife out into the street, while he assisted McClure in an attempt to save the woman's life. A tablecloth was taken and wrapped around her body, but it only added fuel to the flames. Pieces of clothing and rugs were next used, but all efforts proved useless, and, throwing her arms frantically above her head, Mrs. McClure dropped dead below a picture of her first husband, which hung burning in its frame.

McClure's clothing caught fire and every piece of furniture in the room was ablaze. Miller dragged the second victim out of the room and extinguished the fire, which threatened to consume him. McClure was terribly burned about the legs and face.

An inspector for the Pittsburgh Railways Company turned in an alarm from the box at Craig and Forbes streets, but when the firemen arrived the fire had been put out. The news of the accident spread quickly, and among the crowds in Schenley park it was reported that a disaster had occurred in which a score of people had been killed. This rumor was followed by a stampede toward the house, and Policeman J. F. Toole struggled for half an hour to keep the crowd back, and finally cleared away the curious sightseers who tried to enter the house.

McClure is an employe of the Pittsburgh Ice Company. The family had resided in the house about eight months. McClure has no children.

HORROR CHARGED TO NEGLIGENCE

Attorney Watterson Arraigns Pittsburgh Railways Company Employes of Carelessness.

ORDERS ARE DISREGARDED

Repetition of Lincoln Bridge Accident, He Declares, Is Likely to Occur at Any Time Under Present Conditions—Danger at Other Points.

The accident of last Saturday morning, when one of the open cars of the Pittsburgh Railways Company jumped the track on the Lincoln avenue bridge and plunged over the edge of that structure down to the Beechwood boulevard, a distance of 75 feet, causing the almost instant death of three persons, will, it is said, be most thoroughly investigated by the coroner's office. Thus far no steps have been taken in that direction. Various explanations are given of the cause of the accident. The following communication is from Attorney A. V. D. Watterson:

To the Editor of The Gazette:

Sir—I assume that the officers of the Pittsburgh Railways Company sometimes ride in their cars and that they are, therefore, forced to see and hear some things. I presume, too, that they are aware that the people ride in their cars, not from choice, but from necessity, and that these people are not like the idols of the heathens—have eyes and see not; ears, and hear not, etc.

I live on Lincoln avenue, about a square west of the bridge, and now and then take a street car when the steam cars do not suit my convenience. I was present at the scene of the accident on the Lincoln bridge a few minutes after it occurred on the morning of the Fourth. There is absolutely no one in our district who has not looked for a horror of this kind for months with reasonable certainty, and there is no one who was surprised at its occurrence; the only surprise being in the small loss of life. The cars are run down Lincoln avenue at a speed equal to that of an express train. The motormen turn on full power after they pass the curve above Meadow street, and the speed down past my house is frightful. I have frequently seen the motormen try to stop the cars at Shetland avenue, and have been on cars at such times, when the cars have run almost to the brides before a stop could be effected. The pounding of the brakes on such occasion is like a small earthquake, and the fact is that the cars shook all the plaster off the ceiling in my reception hall. I am not complaining of this especially, and I never mentioned it to the company—life is too short to war with it over my own troubles.

What I am complaining of now, is the condition of affairs at the Lincoln bridge and its approaches. The public should know that this company is not doing its duty, and that more disasters and those of a more serious nature are soon to come if the trouble is not rectified.

The officers of the company say the accident yesterday was caused by a broken axle. It was nothing of the kind. The accident was occasioned by pure negligence and recklessness. The tracks are out of order just at the approach to the bridge and there is also a depression, or dip, at the same place, and these conditions have prevailed for at least two months past. It was here that the car left the track. There are two signs at this place, one above the track reading "Stop," and another at the right side of the track approaching the bridge from East Liberty, reading "Slow."

I have frequently been on a car going over and I never knew a motorman to stop and I have more frequently stood and looked at the cars going over, and I never saw one of them stop. The incontrovertible fact is that if the car had stopped on the Fourth it could not have gone off the bridge. It left the track on the bridge within three feet of the end of the bridge and under normal conditions it could not, in the distance it traveled, have secured momentum sufficient to carry it across the bridge to the side where it went down. An inspection of the left rail itself, with the deep dents in it, will show the force of the impact. Exactly at the end of the bridge there is a ridge of Belgian blocks just adjoining the right rail, and the car, in its surge, when it struck the depression, evidently hit these blocks, was deflected to the left immediately, crossed the bridge and went over, standing upright in the clay at the bottom of the ravine to the left of the boulevard.

Another statement made by an officer of the company was that outbound cars must stop and put up the running board before going on the bridge. There is no doubt such instructions are given to the employes, but, bless the official's innocent soul, if he does not know better than that, let me inform him that the conductor and motorman do that act five squares away, before they leave the double track in Frankstown avenue to go down the single track in Lincoln avenue. If he wishes proof of this, from me, I will give him the car I came out in from church today, car No. 1,843, at 12:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, July 5. They almost always do this at that place and we must get out at the left side of the car. Let me inform him, too, that there is a signal at the corner of Lincoln avenue and Lowell street and another just near the engine house in Lincoln avenue, a short distance above the bridge. Every day the motormen disregard these signals and speed some place or other between these points and then there is a prodigious swearing match between the motormen, which the passengers and neighbors do not pay for and do not want.

Within an hour after the accident on the Fourth three cars met on the bridge—poor, miserable old thing, scarcely able to bear one—and they all had to run up the hill on the east side to the switch to clear the track. Now, it makes absolutely no difference what precautions the company takes to avoid accidents, if it does not see that its rules are observed. The employes are doing the things I mention every day. If the company had officers to go about and observe these things accidents might be averted. The ordinance officers of the city could see the fast running, too, if they looked. The same kind of an accident may happen at any time at the Center avenue bridge from fast running, and any of us may be on the car which will land on the Pennsylvania railroad tracks.

Somebody is to blame for these awful accidents. They can be averted if due precautions are observed. If the company had used the same celerity in repairing the tracks and in rectifying the evils complained of that it used in getting rid of the avidsences of its negligence this accident would not have occurred. A. V. D. WATTERSON.

PROTEST FROM BELMAR.

Residents of That Section Want Protection in the Way of Police and Light.

A meeting of those living in the residence section known as the Belmar plan, in the Homewood district, has been called for tomorrow evening, at the Belmar school house, to protest against the lack of police protection in that section. It is likely that at this meeting a committee will be appointed to wait on Superintendent of Police McTighe, and ask that something be done.

The determination to hold this meeting of protest was brought about by the assault made on Robert E. Long of No. 7236 Race street last Thursday night, by a young colored man who not only robbed him of $35, but beat him until he was unconscious. Long is still at his home in a serious condition. It was the most daring crime ever reported from the Homewood district.

It is said that the residents of Belmar plan number about 5,000, and yet none of the streets in the plan are patrolled by police. It is further said that by the orders of some one in authority several of the electric street lights have been removed, leaving some of the long streets in Belmar entirely dark. Had there been a light in Race street near where Long was assaulted, it is probable that Long would have been discovered long before the time when he was found unconscious.

Christening Was Like a Riot.

Policemen Elmer Crooks and William Jones raided an Italian boarding house in Omega street, East End, yesterday afternoon and lodged 24 prisoners in No. 6 police station. A christening was being held and the happy father had supplied the necessary trouble in the shape of a barrel of beer and a jug of whisky. About 5 o'clock the affair reached such a stage that the neighbors began to fear that murder would result or the house collapse, and called in the police. Magistrate E. C. Negley gave the crowd a special hearing last night and fined Daniel Archey, the boarding house keeper, $10 and costs, and the 23 others $1 and costs each. All the fines were paid.

Monday, July 6, 1903.

Yesterday's storm was one of the most severe that ever passed over this section, causing damage in every direction from this city. Worst of all was the catastrophe at Oakford park, Jeannette. The death list is not accurately known at this writing, but it is large enough to be appalling. The dam that burst was maintained for pleasure purposes, the pool being used for boating and bathing at the resort known as Oakford park, operated in conjunction with the interurban street railway. Aside from the loss of life there was heavy damage to property all along the Brush Creek valley, and residents far below Jeannette had narrow escapes from their homes. In some respects this disaster resembles that at Johnstown, particularly in its cause, and the conclusion is inevitable that if large reservoirs of this sort are to be maintained there ought to be some standard of strength and some system of inspection established for the public protection. We believe the owners of the dam at Jeannette, like the owners of that at South Fork, assumed it to be perfectly safe. An extraordinary rainfall, or cloudburst, however, has proven the contrary. The structure melted away under pressure of nature's forces and death and destruction followed. No explanations can assuage the grief of friends of the victims or restore life to the dead. It is possible to construct reservoirs safely, and none ought to be permitted unless they are made safe by the surest means known to engineering skill. No one is definitely to blame for this accident, but some one will be to blame if the state neglects the duty to fix standards for the future for the construction of artificial lakes.

News from Rome concerning the condition of Pope Leo XIII. is of a nature to cause the gravest apprehension. At the age the distinguished prelate has attained, pulmonary hepatization takes on a serious aspect. The medical bulletins, however, indicate that the change in structure has not been rapid and may be arrested. Science can do much in these days to ward off the angel of death. Youth cannot be restored, but final dissolution is often postponed for weeks, or even for years, in cases where a few years ago hope would have been abandoned and all effort directed towards making the last hours as comfortable as possible. Pope Leo has lived a long, active and useful life, yet the world will part with him unwillingly. His influence has been strong for peace and good will on earth.

Speaker-Elect Joseph G. Cannon is out in an interview opposing currency legislation at the coming session. Mr. Cannon is quoted as saying the country has money enough for its needs and that it needs no more laws on the subject. We do not agree with the new speaker of the house of representatives, and we do not believe he will use his official position to prevent amendment of the currency question. The country has money enough, but the trouble is that this money is going into the national treasury faster than the government can use it, leaving the banks bare when commercial demands are more urgent. The system is inelastic and needs alteration to better meet the uses of the business public. Under the present system the currency becomes congested in spots.

Prof. Langley in one of his scientific monographs has predicted that the day will come when the desert of Sahara will become a great manufacturing region, from the copious supplies of force for solar engines furnished there by the heat of the sun poured down from cloudless skies. Long prior to that period, which is to be brought in by the exhaustion of the coal beds, northern Africa may become an important center of iron production. A recent consular report states that iron ore found in the Sudan yields 42.47 per cent of pure iron. From time immemorial Africa has been an iron-smelting country, and in Bongoland the natives are all more or less artificers in iron. They make arms and tools of excellent quality with rude appliances, and the metal they turn out is pronounced excellent in homogeneity and malleability. As the construction of railways proceeds in Africa and progress is made in its industrial development, the iron industry, already an extensive native art, might readily acquire great commercial importance. The work of construction on the Cape-to-Cairo railway, suspended during the South African war, was recently resumed, and the northern portion of its line will traverse the Sudan and make its ore deposits accessible for shipment.

Adjournment of the corporations committee by the desertion of members without fixing another time for meeting amounts to a hold-up of the Pennsylvania railroad ordinance. The members who broke the quorum were among those who opposed taking the ordinance from the committee a week ago. Apparently, their purpose is obstruction, if not defeat of the ordinance. Meanwhile the tracks remain in Liberty avenue to the detriment of the best interests of the city, and there is a probability that while action is being prevented the railroad company may change its mind and decide to remain where it is. It is simply another illustration of the futility of leaving the negotiation of important business agreements to large irresponsible bodies, composed of opposing political factions, instead of creating a responsible board of estimates. The public business and the public's interests suffer while ward representatives wrangle.

Opposition to electrical mining machinery is manifested by the head of the bureau of mines at Harrisburg. He regards it extremely dangerous, both in the matter of workmen coming in contact with naked wires, and in the possibility of causing explosions in gaseous mines. Undoubtedly, compressed air is a safer mine power. In the event of an explosion taking place it may be the means of saving life. In fact, in the Johnstown mine horror it so served. Electrical machinery, however, is more economical under favorable conditions. There should be regulations for its use to secure the safety of mine workers, but we hardly think it good policy for the state to prohibit its employment. Electric haulage has been a feature of the development of the Fairmount field in West Virginia, and Pennsylvania mines have been driven to adopt it to meet competition from that quarter on anything like favorable terms.

A Dead Issue.

Tammany Hall had two Independence day orators who have more than a sectional reputation, and their addresses added to the hardly believable evidence that the Democracy will seek to make an issue again of the Philippine islands. The orators were Charles A. Towne of Minnesota, who was one of Mr. Bryan's running mates, and Senator Bailey of Texas, who, a few weeks ago, was mentioned in dispatches from Texas as having been featured in a newspaper owned by a friend as a presidential possibility. Both Towne and Bailey in addressing the so-called braves of the Tammany society dwelt largely on the alleged "partial imperialization of the Constitution of the United States," and "repudiation of the Declaration of Independence," involved in retaining sovereignty in the far east, and on the policy of the federal government in ruling the Philippine islands with "the sword instead of with the Constitution." The last quotation is from Bailey; the other two from Towne. The only importance attaching to their declarations is the revelation they make of the poverty of issues of the Democratic party.

The questions involved in the occupation and government of the Philippine islands by the United States are old straw. It has been so thoroughly threshed over that the people are tired of the subject, and it is really surprising to find two Democrats who pretend to deal with live issues going at it again with the flails of their oratory on a Fourth of July threshing floor in New York City. If there is anything that the people are as well satisfied with as they are with protection to American industries it is the protection that their government is giving to the lives, liberties and property of the people of the Philippine islands. The course of the United States in the islands is heartily approved, with a large-hearted and non-partisan approval that rises high above the pettiness and narrowness of vision of the Townes and the Baileys. There are few who do not consider that the Filipinos are in great luck to have the fostering care of such a nation as this. If the Democrats, who know they are beaten in advance on the tariff issue, can't find better ground to stand on in the campaign of 1904 than opposition to continuance of American government in the Philippine islands they might as well let next year's election go by default. There is no Philippine question now and there will be none unless there should happen to be a serious intention to pull down the American flag at Manila and quit the islands. Then there would, indeed, be a Philippine question, born of popular indignation, that would give promoters of the intention a headache.

More Than a Million.

Having earned congratulations by momentarily getting down to argument one day last week, the Dispatch has gone up again into the realms of expletive. Because The Gazette does not agree with it on the subject of compensation for the Duquesne way railroad franchise, and takes a broader view into the future for the welfare of the Greater Pittsburgh, the Dispatch sums up the case by calling The Gazette an organ. The Gazette is the organ of Pittsburgh public opinion and is not ashamed of the fact.

Recurring to the Dispatch contention that the "for the further protection and security of the persons and property of the citizens" clause of the Liberty avenue franchise can or will make the continued occupation of that street innocuous, it need only be said the Dispatch itself admits this clause has been of no value during 50 years past. It further intimates that the present administration cannot be trusted to give that clause the magic power it attributes to it. In its admission our contemporary is accurate. The fact stands out so boldly it would be futile to attempt to dodge it. The Gazette bases its argument upon the fact that the Liberty avenue tracks have been a nuisance and a bar to the progress of Pittsburgh for 50 years, and that they will so continue for another 50 years, unless the railroad company is given a valuable consideration to remove them. Our contemporary admits under pressure that the Liberty avenue franchise cannot be abrogated, and inferentially concedes the point that the courts in practice hold that what cannot be done directly must not be done by indirection, though it carefully refrains from quoting this plain proposition. Instead, it covers the absurdity of its case by mauling the city administrations during the past half century for not rendering harmless the unwise grant of an ancient council containing a "wise" clause "for the further protection," etc.

The Gazette has led in the public demand for compensation for the grant of public franchises. It has not changed its opinions or attitude. The Gazette has repeatedly spoken out on this subject when the Dispatch remained silent. The latest instance was the demand of The Gazette alone for an adequate rental from the Baltimore & Ohio depot site, resulting in an annual rental of $10,000 and the continued use of the wharf by the public. Likewise, The Gazette has been foremost in demanding compensation from the Pennsylvania railroad for the practical amendments guaranteeing the prompt removal of tracks from Liberty avenue and saving the city from all costs and damages. The Gazette, however, recognizes practical limitations. It accepts the freedom of Liberty avenue from an incubus unwisely allowed as a larger compensation to the city than a million in cash. It realizes that an expenditure of a million, in addition to the estimated cost of the proposed elevated road down Duquesne way, would secure freight terminals for the Pennsylvania above Eleventh street, and leave it in perpetual possession of Liberty avenue. The Pennsylvania once began to option property in the section above Eleventh street with a view to establishing a second terminal, without abandoning that at the Point. Consequently, The Gazette favors taking the Pennsylvania management in its present mood to rid Liberty avenue of obstruction, because that can be done without detriment to Duquesne way.

As to joint use of the elevated tracks, we believe it impractical. We cited one instance of failure of such a plan the other day. Our contemporary argues that joint use is the only means to limit onerous switching charges, which are the heaviest burden borne by Pittsburgh traffic. Again we must dissent. The city has undoubted power to fix a maximum charge that shall be reasonable. That is more practical than joint use of tracks. It is infinitely more sensible than the proposition that in the event of failure of another company to make satisfactory terms with the owner of the tracks for their use, the terms shall be fixed by the mayor of the city and the chief officer of the company to be accommodated. In view of our contemporary's lack of faith in the administrations of 50 years, why not give the power to fix the terms to the president of the rival corporation and be done with it?

The German Elections.

A letter in The Sunday Gazette from our Berlin correspondent illuminates in some degree a point that has been touched on before, viz.: that the Socialist successes and the large Socialist vote for members of the reichstag in the recent elections in Germany will be subject to considerable qualification when all the underlying facts are understood. Socialism is much mixed up in Germany at the present time with mere democratic sentiment, and sentiment hostile to militarism and the autocratic tendencies of the kaiser and the members of his cabinet and to the dominance of Agrarian sentiment. But perhaps the larger part of it seems at bottom to be hostility to a government policy rather than to the imperial constitution and monarchical and aristocratic forms, though it may be easily transformable by association and discontent into hostility to the forms, as well as to their products. It appears in the Berlin letter that a large issue in the campaign for members of the reichstag was the new German tariff, which the industrial population has been led to fear will cause a further advance in the price of foodstuffs. The new tariff is a government measure, largely designed as a weapon of retaliation against other nations, and as Germany is a large importer of food products, the portion of the population that would suffer from higher prices of food fears that the retaliatory clauses may have unpleasant consequences. Saxony is one of the more congested states of the empire and here was the most notable Socialist success. It would appear that the people of Saxony, who must pay for food with other products, rose en masse against the thought of having to do more work to stave off hunger, and the same causes undoubtedly operated in the other regions of Germany where the Socialist vote increased largely. The Socialist gains, therefore, seen in this light, take on the form of a practical protest against a government policy, rather than of a sudden new born devotion to theories subversive of present forms of government, however much the Socialist success may tend in that direction. Such sentiment as exists against present governmental forms is at the moment strongly reinforced by sentiment that takes little account of government forms, but is strongly disposed against a particular government policy. Whether the alliance shall be permanent depends, of course, on what may develop.

POLITICAL DRIFT.

It is the opinion of the Buffalo News (Rep.) that if Judge Parker has captured the south he is as good as nominated. It says: "Judge Parker is down south and the Democratic papers of the north that are friendly to him remark that he has won the hearts of that section. If he has done so he is the nominee without any question, for whatever the men of the south decide upon becomes law to the Democratic party. Its principal fighting force in the north is Tammany Hall. The great body of the party is below the line of the Potomac and naturally men must go exploring in that region who would make the race for the nomination of the national party."

"The intimation that Beveridge or any other spellbinder could carry Alabama for Roosevelt is so absurd as to be almost funny," says the Montgomery Advertiser (Dem.). "Scores of men in Alabama, and not all of them are Republicans, who are believers in a protective tariff, because their interest lies that way, but there are few Democrats who would vote the Republican ticket solely because of their tariff sentiments."

"There is concern in administration circles over 'Uncle Joe' Cannon's animosity toward financial reform. It is feared his powerful opposition as speaker of the next house may block any enactment for the revision of currency laws, particularly the Aldrich bill, as remodeled," says the Washington Post (Ind. Dem.).

"We say that the Republican party has been coherent and effective in administration," says the Des Moines Register and Leader (Rep.). "It not only holds together in contesting for power, but is able in power to carry out ante-election promises and conduct the affairs of the country along definite and consistent lines."

Speaking of Senator Hanna's positive declaration on the vice presidency the Philadelphia Bulletin (Rep.) says: "Speculations as to the possibility that the convention will name him as Roosevelt's running mate are, perhaps, somewhat fanciful at this stage of the game. But it is reasonably safe to predict that no one to whom Hanna is averse is likely to be nominated. In 1900 Ohio and New York formed an easily winning combination. If the order should be reversed next year it would not be surprising. Besides Hanna there are Taft and Herrick to be considered among the Ohio men. Yet neither of them is to be compared in national prominence with the shrewd and not unpopular campaigner who handled McKinley's canvass twice in succession with an ability that astonished the old stagers in politics."

Speaking of the postoffice department scandals the New York Sun (Rep.) says: "The most confident and circumstantial statements alleging the president's intention to mitigate his activity in certain directions in the matter of punishing rascality in the postoffice department—if such be proven—fail to shake to the extent of the thousandth part of a hair-breadth of vibration our belief that he will let no guilty man escape."

IN THE EYE OF FAME.

The house in the Place des Vosges in which Victor Hugo lived is now the property of the municipality of Paris.

John Gray Foster, New Hampshire's only major general in the civil war, is to have a monument at Nashua.

Admiral of the Fleet the Hon. Sir Henry Keppel, G. C. B., who celebrated another birthday recently, is a very remarkable survival. He, Mr. Gladstone and the late Lord Tennyson were all in their cradles in the same year, 1809.

The departure from Russia of Dr. Gustav Tammann, professor of chemistry at the University of Dorpat, to accept a chair at Gottingen, has been much commented on, because he was the last remaining eminent instructor at that once famous seat of learning.

The first American baby born in the island of Guam is the daughter of Eugene Dewey Ryan, paymaster in the United States navy. The distinguished little stranger is now between 1 and 2 months old. Paymaster Ryan, who was on the Concord at the battle of Manila, has been in Guam about a year.

Negroes North and South.

One cannot quarrel with Mr. Clark Howell, of Atlanta, for the promptness with which he draws a comparison between his section and the north, Illinois especially, in the matter of treatment of negroes, says the New York Times. There has been a good deal of earnest and sometimes hot-headed criticism of the south on this subject lately, and the offenses of the north are quite serious enough to warrant any southern journalist in calling emphatic attention to them. Nor is this "you're another" style of comment likely to prove as barren of results as it is unquestionably childish. The more the people of either section accuse those of the other of unfair and cruel conduct toward the blacks, the more clear will become in each section the proper standard of decency and humanity. A community, like an individual, cannot keep up a practice condemned in another without a certain sense of shame.

For our own part we are free to admit that the extreme prejudice that does exist in the north in some classes, and is manifested in the acts to which Mr. Howell refers, is much less excusable and more discreditable than that found in the south. In the latter section there are not only the antipathies inherited from the time of slavery, but the risks of political supremacy in some parts, the memories of the dark days of the reconstruction, and the contact with phases of life that we know only by report. In the north the animosity shown is for the most part simply ignorant and stupid.

Asking Justice for the South.

The southern people are not rejoicing because lynchings occur in the north, but they would like the northern people to be frank and fair in the discussion of the lynching evil. They don't want the opprobrium of the lynching evil saddled wholly upon them when northern people are as quick to resort to the most barbarous kind of lynching as they are.—Savannah News.

THE LIGHTS OF THE CITY.

I see them twinkling across the hills,
Where a far-off city lies;
Like sunbeams glinting on rippling rills
They dance before my eyes.
And I ask myself, "Is Paradise
Beyond that distant line,
Or Hades, haunted with sobs and sighs,
Where the lights of the city shine?"

The sound of silvery laughter seems
To echo from over there;
Suggesting nothing but raptured dreams
And freedom from cruel care—
Then I heard a cry of intense despair—
A piteous, pleading whine;
Gaunt poverty crawls o'er the thoroughfare
Where the lights of the city shine.

And then I know, as I should have known,
That search for it as we may,
There is no spot where pleasure alone
Holds undisputed sway.
The joy that may consecrate your today,
The grief that may darken mine,
Walk hand in hand o'er the crowded way
Where the lights of the city shine.

ERASMUS WILSON.

You may have noticed a news item in the papers yesterday to the effect that Robert J. Burdette has abandoned the lecture platform and taken to the pulpit.

Well, that is our Bob Burdette. Those who know him well will not be surprised at this announcement, for he is not only a good Baptist, but a good Christian. There isn't a vicious hair on his head, nor a drop of bad blood in his veins.

Nor will the occupation be entirely new to him, for he has done preaching stunts for years past, being an ordained deacon with license to preach. He likes to preach, and people like to hear him, for he is a good preacher—a better preacher than theologian, maybe.

He knew that his humorous lecturing and preaching wouldn't mix very well, so he kept them separate and apart, but all the time feeling that he would wind up in the pulpit.

The stories you hear about him are like the stories they tell about all public characters, and are to be taken with many grains of allowance. That he never was a drunkard is known to everyone who knows him well, and that he never was given to bad habits is also known to his intimate acquaintances.

He was subject to the blues, which is not uncommon to humorists, poets and musicians. On the contrary, it is so common that its absence is almost conclusive proof of the absence of special talent. Lonesomeness was sure to bring on a fit of the blues, and his remedy for this was, sometimes, worse than the disease.

"Our Bob" is all right, and there are none who will dare to say that in this he is playing to the galleries. Not a bit of it. He is in it because that is where his heart is.

* * * * *

Do you recollect that railroad story of his, in which he treated of the various roads leading to heaven? It was published in the Burlington Hawk-Eye, and was one of the things that made him famous. It is so good, and will be read with so much interest just now that it is herewith given in full:

On the road once more, with Lebanon fading away in the distance, the fat passenger drumming idly on the window pane, the cross passenger sound asleep, and the tall, thin passenger reading "Gen. Grant's Tour Around the World" and wondering why "Grove's August Flower" should be printed above the doors of "A Buddhist temple at Benares." To me comes the brakeman and seating himself on the arm of the seat says:

"I went to church yesterday."

"Yes?" I said, with that interested inflection that asked for more. "And what church did you attend?"

"Which do you guess," he asked.

"Some union mission church?" I hazarded.

"Naw," he said, "I don't like to run on these branch roads very much. I don't often go to church, and when I do I want to run on the main line, where your run is regular and you get on schedule time and don't have to wait on connections. I don't like to run on a branch. Good enough, but I don't like it."

"Episcopal?" I guessed.

"Limited express," he said, "all palace cars and $2 extra for a seat, fast time and only stop at the big stations. Nice line, but too exhaustive for a brakeman. All train men in uniform, conductor's punch and lantern silverplated, and no train boys allowed. Then the passengers are allowed to talk back at the conductor, and it makes them too free and easy. No, I couldn't stand the palace cars. Rich road, though. Don't often hear of a receiver being appointed for that line. Some mighty nice people travel on it, too."

"Universalist?" I suggested.

"Broad gauge," said the brakeman; "does too much complimentary business. Everybody travels on a pass. Conductor doesn't get a fare once in 50 miles. Stops at all flag stations and won't run into anything but a union depot. No smoking car on the train. Train orders are rather vague though, and the train men don't get along well with the passengers. No I don't go to the Universalist, though I know some awfully good men who run on that road."

"Presbyterian?" I asked.

"Narrow-gauge, eh?" said the brakeman, "pretty track, straight as a rule; tunnel right through a mountain rather than go around it; split level grade; passengers have to show their ticket before they get on the train. Mighty strict road, but the cars are little narrow; have to go in a seat and no room in the aisle to dance. Then there is no stop over tickets allowed; got to go straight through to the station you're ticketed for, or you can't get on at all. When the car's full no extra coaches; cars built at the shops to hold just so many and nobody else allowed on. But you don't often hear of an accident on that road. It's a run right up to the rules."

"Maybe you joined the Free Thinkers?" I said.

"Scrub road," said the brakeman, "dirt road bed and no ballast; no time card and no train dispatcher. All trains run wild, and every engineer makes his own time, just as he pleases. Smoke if you want to, kind of a go-as-you-please road. Too many side tracks and every switch wide open all the time, with switchman sound asleep and the target lamp dead out. Get on as you please and get off when you want to. Don't have to show your ticket, and the conductor isn't expected to do anything but amuse the passengers. No, sir, I was offered a pass, but I don't like the line. I don't like to travel on a road that has no terminus. Do you know, sir, I asked a division superintendent where that road run to and he said he hoped to die if he knew. I asked him if the general superintendent could tell me, and he said he didn't believe they had a general superintendent, and if they had, he didn't know anything more about the road than the passengers. I asked him who he reported to, and he said 'nobody.' I asked a conductor who he got his orders from, and he said he didn't take orders from any living man or dead ghost. And when I asked the engineer who he got his orders from, he said he'd like to see anybody give him orders; he'd run that train to suit himself, or he'd run it into the ditch. Now you see, sir, I'm a railroad man, and I don't care to run on a road that has no time, makes no connections, runs nowhere, and has no superintendent. It may be all right, but I've railroaded too long to understand it."

"Maybe you went to the Congregational church?" I said.

"Popular road," said the brakeman, "an old road, too; one of the very oldest in the country. Good road bed and comfortable cars. Well managed road, too; directors don't interfere with division superintendents and train orders. Road's mighty popular, but it's pretty independent, too. Yes, didn't one of the division superintendents down east discontinue one of the depot stations on this line two or three years ago? But it's a mighty pleasant road to travel on. Always such a splendid class of passengers."

"Did you try the Methodist?" I said.

"Now, you're shouting," he said, with some enthusiasm. "Nice road, eh? Fast time and plenty of passengers. Engines carry a power of steam, and don't you forget it; steam gauge shows 100 and enough all the time. Lively road, when the conductor shouts 'all aboard,' you can hear him to the next station. Every train light shines like a headlight. Stopover checks are given on all through tickets; passenger can drop off the train as often as he likes, do the station two or three days and hop on the next revival train that comes thundering along. Good, whole-souled companionable conductors, ain't a road in the country where the passengers feel more at home. No passes; every passenger pays full traffic rates for his ticket. Wesleyanhouse airbrake on all trains, too; pretty safe road, but I didn't ride over it yesterday.

"Perhaps you tried the Baptist?" I guessed once more.

"Ah, ha!" said the brakeman, "she's a daisy, isn't she? River road; beautiful curves; sweep around anything to keep close to the river, but it's all steel rail and rock ballast, single track all the way and not a sidetrack from the round house to the terminus. Takes heap of power to run it though, double tanks at every station, and there isn't an engine in the shops that can pull a pound of coal or run a mile with less than two gauges. But it runs through a lovely country; these river roads always do; river on one side and hills on the other, and it's a steady climb up the grade all the way till the run ends where the fountainhead of the river begins. Yes, sir, I'll take the river road every time for a lovely trip, sure connections and good time, and no prairie dust blowing in at the windows. And yesterday, when the conductor came around for the tickets with a little basket punch, I didn't ask him to pass me, but I paid my fare like a little man—25 cents for an hour's run and a little concert by the passengers thrown in. I tell you, Pilgrim, you take the river road when you want—"

But just here the long whistle from the engine announced a station and the brakeman hustled to the door, shouting:

"Zionsville! This train makes no stops between here and Indianapolis!"

Talked of in New York

GEORGE C. JENKS.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, July 5.—Summer evangelistic work opened this evening in New York in more than one place. The gospel tent "Glad Tidings," which will be conducted by the presbytery of New York this summer, is pitched near the upper entrance of Central park at One Hundred and Tenth street and Eighth avenue, and it was crowded this afternoon at 4 o'clock when the Rev. John Baldwin Shaw, a minister pretty well known in Pittsburgh, preached the opening sermon. In the evening the Rev. C. F. Schaeffer was the presiding minister. Besides the gospel tent there was another summer campaign against the devil opened tonight in Carnegie hall. The Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, the English evangelist, who was first brought to the United States by the late Dwight L. Moody, led the opening meeting this evening. There was a large attendance and the exercises were conducted much on the plan of those in charge of Mr. Moody in this same hall a few years ago. Dr. Morgan is identified with the Northfield extension and will speak in Carnegie hall every day in this month. The meetings are entirely undenominational and all seats are free. There is a collection, of course, and the way the dimes and nickels roll in is always encouraging enough to convince the managers that expenses will be met. Dr. Morgan had a busy day, for he preached at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church both in the morning and afternoon, besides delivering the main address at Carnegie hall tonight. He has just returned from Seattle, where he has conducted a revival worthy of Mr. Moody himself, numbering his converts by the thousand.

Sunday a Day of Recreation.

While religious services were progressing in the churches of this town this day, the boys of crowded districts were enjoying themselves playing baseball, "one old cat," and other sports which have the sanction of healthy youth everywhere. Since a New York magistrate declared, as he did lately, that Sunday baseball is legal, there has been more disposition to allow boys to play in vacant lots and side thoroughfares on Sunday. It is true that ministers do not approve of this kind of thing and talk sadly about the proneness of New York toward the "Continental Sunday," but the boys want their fun and so long as the police do not interfere the youngsters are not afraid of churchly anathema. It is a truth apparent to anyone that there are more games played in New York on a Sunday than there were a few years ago, and that the disposition to make it a day of recreation is growing apace.

Maiden Voyage of the Arabic.

Persons interested in shipping will have an opportunity this week to inspect the newest vessel of the White Star line, the Arabic, which came in today on her maiden trip to the west. She is somewhat smaller than the Celtic and the Cedric, but is in other respects the same kind of ship. She will make her first start from New York for the eastern run on Friday next. She will be open for public inspection on Wednesday.

Preparing for Fall Trade.

With the passage of the Fourth of July the year has turned. That is to say, people are beginning to think about fall trade, and the interests, social and commercial, that will come up as the summer wanes. New York prides itself on being a go-ahead city, and in nothing is this disposition shown more than in the advertisements of merchants, particularly in wholesale lines. They are respectively the attention of buyers to the goods which will be ready for the fall trade within a week or two and it is expected that representatives from many cities will be in town this week to see what is to be picked up for the establishments with which they are connected. Pittsburgh sends its full share of buyers at all times and now that the Fourth has been properly celebrated and packed away for a year there will be a rush of busy men from Western Pennsylvania wide-awake for bargains and novelties.

Enterprising Thieves in West Street.

Down in West street, which runs along the shore front of the North river, they have a lot of enterprising thieves who do not find anything too big to be "lifted." They are fond of stealing horses and wagons. They find a rig whose owner is temporarily absent and mounting to the high seat they just drive the whole outfit into one of the ferryhouses and are away to Jersey before the owner knows he has been robbed. It is said that not less than 40 horses and wagons have been stolen in West street in the last two months. The thieves generally alter the appearance of the wagon with paint, and transmogrify the horse by docking his tail and touring him up in other ways, so that no one would recognize him for the same horse unless very familiar with him. In this shape the rig is sold at a bargain and that is the end of it. The police are paying particular attention to this kind of thievery now, however, and it is expected that a few arrests and penitentiary sentences will put a damper on the industry.

West Street a Lively Thoroughfare.

West street is about the most confusing thoroughfare in all Manhattan. It is about 150 feet wide to begin with and on a business morning it is one wild, seething maelstrom of trucks, horses, drivers, policemen, longshoremen and sailors. All are on the move, and the movement of each is in direct opposition to those of anything or anybody else. I suppose West street averages 500 scraps on any bright morning, when things are going lively. Some of these scraps are only verbal and others do not call for the interference of the police, but the policemen on post along the thoroughfare have their full share of arrests credited to them notwithstanding.

Clerks May Suffer for Loyalty.

A big shake-up is imminent in the dock department. It is not that the employes there have laid themselves open to charges officially, but that the investigations have made the district attorney's office generally suspicious. If the clerks who hold their positions, as most of them do, through the civil service commission, can be removed only after charges have been made against them and after they have replied to them. But the only accusation which can be made, according to the wise ones who keep tab on the municipal government, is that some of the clerks have tried to hamper the assistant district attorney, who has been trying to get to the bottom of Tammany irregularities. So loyalty to their old friends may prove the downfall of some of the subordinates who fancied themselves entirely safe.

It Is Well to Tip the Driver.

It is well for the casual visitor to New York who takes a ride on a Fifth avenue stage—a capital way of looking over the city, by the way—to remember that the rubber-tired driver of the machine who makes room for you to sit by his side is not averse to receiving a tip for his courtesy. It is not usual to tip a trolley car conductor or motorman, and it might be supposed that a Fifth avenue stage driver would be in the same category; but he isn't. So, when he shows you a little courtesy and points out the objects of interest along the route, why, give him a quarter and say you do not want the change. It is a good investment of 15 cents.

With last evening's rain the atmosphere should be cooled somewhat this morning, but we can't promise. The government weather bureau predicts that it will be fair today, with a probable continuance for the week, but as Our Own Washington Bureau was closed down over the Fourth we can't be sure what will develop, as the wheels are likely to be rusted from disuse.

By Wireless Telegraph.

HADES, July 5, 1903.

Message received. Place all ready for Carl-rides Cane Man. He gets center of circle with 10,000 of my most ghoulish satellites around him, keeping up continuous performance of explosions.

Will keep him in sound-proof vault to prevent annoyance of ordinary sinners. SATAN.

One of Bob Burdette's.

Though Robert J. Burdette is to take up preaching as a regular occupation, it is to be hoped that he will not allow sober thought to drive the humor entirely from his mind. Mr. Burdette has always been popular with ministers, especially those of the Baptist faith, and on his lecture tours was always sure of receiving ministerial callers wherever he stopped.

On one occasion, when a party of half a dozen well-known divines were seated in his room discussing obscure subjects, Burdette solemnly placed his hand on the knee of the nearest brother.

"Do you know that the South Sea Islanders do not have that bone in their knee?" he asked.

"Never heard of it," replied the ministers in chorus. "Is that a fact?"

"It certainly is," replied Bob. "Otherwise how could it be here?"

All Others Dropped Out.

"I see that the Iowa Republicans stood pat at their convention the other day."

"Yes, it seems that Allison stacked the cards, and he proved to be such an expert that everyone else dropped out and allowed him to get away with the deal."

The Bright Side.

There is an optimist in Pittsburgh. He is the genuine article, and to prove that statement it is only necessary to mention that he can see some good coming out of the vast amount of rain we are getting.

"This rain will certainly clean up the streets and alleys," he said yesterday evening while I Plumbo was working over time. "For the water pounding out of that roof? Yesterday it was black, today it is almost as clear as crystal. That's fine for the city. With the streets clean and clear water running from the roofs, you can see what a valuable thing a succession of hard rains is for the city. I like it."

He seemed so happy I didn't the heart to chuck him out of the window into the rain. Perhaps his size also had something to do with it—he weighs two ton.

Patient Too Far Gone.

LINCOLN, NEB., July 3, 1903.

Dear Doctor: Having used with great success your Wonderful Nerve Tonic through two very trying periods of my life, and having reached the point where my political doctor thinks I am on my last pegs, I write to ask if you think your Elixir of Political Youth will do me any good.

If you think I can be revived, send me a dozen bottles C. O. D. with full directions for using. Yours in hope,

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

Another Myth Gone.

One by one our childhood's beliefs were knocked into a cocked hat. Santa Claus is now but a memory of the days we were kids, and as we grew older we lost our faith in the ability of rabbits to lay Easter Eggs.

And now comes still another blow. If there was such a thing as a fool killer—and I have always been taught that there was—how does it happen that it is always the innocent bystander that is killed?

I wonder if we will finally have to admit that the innocent bystander is also a myth?

Modern Language Maker.

"Ah, gwan; yer sufferin' from de heat!"

Thus do the street urchins prove their right to the palm as producers of expressive pentences.

The above contains a world of information. It is the old "you must be crazy" improved upon. That you are suffering from the heat implies that you are a little daffy, for the time being, but that it is only temporary, and if you live you may hope for the return of your right mind.

If you want to learn the possibilities of the English language listen to the street boys. They could give a professor of English points.

The Full Dinner Pail.

If the Memphis Commercial-Appeal were familiar with labor strikes it would not make the assertion that "with half a million men in this country on strike under the Roosevelt administration the less said about the full dinner pail the better." Instead of being proof of hard times and a scanty supply of dinner pail, says the Washington Post, the prevalence of strikes is prima

'SQUIRE TATEM PASSED AWAY

Former Well-Known Allegheny Alderman Died After Many Years of Suffering.

INVALID FOR EIGHTEEN YEARS

Was a Civil War Veteran and Lived 55 of His 65 Years of Life in This Vicinity. Related Many Reminiscences of Early History.

Thomas H. Tatem of Perrysville avenue, Allegheny, died yesterday afternoon at 12:15 in the 65th year of his age. He was born in Philadelphia and came to Pittsburgh when but 10 years old. Until the civil war broke out he assisted his father in the shoe business. When the initial call for volunteers was issued by President Lincoln he was among the first to enlist, being assigned to Company G in the old Twenty-eighth Pennsylvania volunteers. The term was for three months and upon its expiration Mr. Tatem re-enlisted, being assigned to Company A, One Hundred and Forty-seventh Pennsylvania volunteers. This enlistment was for three years and six months, and he served about three months over the term, being unable to leave the army.

During his army life Mr. Tatem had many narrow escapes. Among the battles in which he took part were Antietam, Chancellorsville, Bull Run, Gettysburg, Wilderness, Lookout Mountain and Spotsylvania. His brother Joseph was killed in the battle of Stone River. Mr. Tatem had an excellent record and could tell of many interesting incidents of army life. Upon his return from war he entered the Pittsburgh postoffice as a letter carrier during the administration of Postmaster Von Bonnhorst. This position he held for a year, when he was elected alderman of the First ward, Allegheny, for a term of five years.

Differed From Many Aldermen.

Mr. Tatem was a great advocate of peace. It has often been said that he could not keep a constable, as he would generally give advice to the culprits and discharge them without even the payment of costs. He always tried to settle domestic affairs before formally holding a Hearing and generally he was successful. He was known as 'Squire Tatem, the peacemaker.

After his term as alderman expired Mr. Tatem accepted a position as toll-keeper on the old Sixth street suspension bridge. This position he held for nearly 17 years. During that time he became very popular. There was scarcely a man who crossed the bridge that did not know the squire. He was always affable. The army life of Mr. Tatem had undermined his constitution and the position at the bridge, exposing him to all kinds of weather, proved too much for him and he had to resign with reluctance.

This was 18 years ago, and since that time he had been unable to leave home. For almost 16 years Mr. Tatem had been confined to a rolling chair until a few days ago, when he could not leave his room. His complaint was locomotor ataxia and it gradually developed until his death. About 6 o'clock Saturday evening it was noticed that he took a sinking spell, which resembled a paralytic stroke. He became unconscious at midnight, in which state he remained until he gave up the fight.

Suffered for Many Years.

He was a great sufferer ever since his health gave way. During his last few years of life he spoke entertainingly of the many changes that have taken place in the two cities. He told of pranks played on the teamsters hauling coal down Webster avenue from the mines in Edgecliffe; of the many delightful days spent around the old water basin, where now stands the cathedral, which is to be removed; of the delight he took in watching the workmen engaged in the foundry, where now stands the Park building; of his delight when the Allegheny Valley railroad was built into Pittsburgh, when the council refused to allow the coaches to be brought to the Point by locomotive engine and the company had to use horses, and of many other changes.

Scarcely a day passed but that some of Mr. Tatem's old acquaintances visited him and discussed events of his early days and of the civil war. He was a great reader and read over 2,000 books of the Allegheny Carnegie library since it was opened. His favorite literature was history and he had all the movements of the civil war memorized. Mr. Tatem's name was enrolled in the lists of several secret societies, among them Monument lodge, No. 421, I. O. O. F.; Pittsburgh Encampment, No. 2, I. O. O. F.; Allegheny lodge, No. 34, Order of United Workmen; McKinley lodge, No. 318, F. & A. M.; Allegheny chapter, No. 217, R. A. M.; Allegheny council, No. 217, R. E. & S. M., and Allegheny commandery, No. 35, K. T. Besides belonging to these societies Mr. Tatem was a member of Abe Patterson post, No. 85, G. A. R., which post will conduct services at the grave. No arrangements have been made for the funeral. The deceased Alleghenian is survived by a widow and four children. They are Thomas M., Jr.; Mrs. W. J. Smith, Mrs. Edward Rutledge and Miss Edna E. Tatem, who is at home. Two brothers and a sister also survive him, A. K. Tatem, Salem, O.; Jeremiah Tatem, Fredericktown, Miss., and Mrs. Jessie M. Wilson, Detroit, Mich.

Mrs. Sarah Fitzpatrick.

Mrs. Sarah Fitzpatrick, one of the oldest residents of New Castle, died Sunday afternoon. She was in her 71st year and had been ill for some time with the infirmities incident to old age. She is survived by her husband and several children. She was a consistent membe. of St. Mary's Catholic church.

Maj. Justus Scheibert.

Major Justus Scheibert, the military editor of the Kreuz Zeitung, is dead at Berlin. He accompanied General Lee's army during the civil war in America as an observer of the operations and wrote extensively interpreting the military lessons to be drawn from them.

Mrs. Calhary Morris.

Mrs. Calhary Morris, wife of the well-known financier, is dead at the family summer home in Wickliffe, a suburb of Cleveland. Death followed an operation for appendicitis. Her husband and one daughter survive.

Obituary Notes.

FINAL SERMON BY DR. LITTELL

His Pastorate in Second United Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, is Ended.

CHURCH WANTED AN ORGAN

Pastor Refused to Stay Because His Creed Does Not Admit of Instrumental Music in Religious Services—Speaks of Those Who Preceded Him.

The Rev. David S. Littell last night concluded his pastorate of the Second United Presbyterian church, Pittsburgh. Dr. Littell tendered his resignation as pastor because the congregation voted to install an organ. Dr. Littell's creed does not admit of any instrumental music in connection with religious worship and he resigned.

For 17 years he was pastor of the Second church and during that length of time not once were heard the strains of music from any kind of instruments in the church. All hymns were sung without any accompaniment whatever. Dr. Littell's resignation was accepted by the Monongahela presbytery last week and the pastoral relations were dissolved. He was appointed to fill the pulpit yesterday as stated supply. Next Sunday an organ will be heard in this church for the first time.

Dr. Littell's final sermon was from the text Hebrew xiii:7, "Remember them that had the rule over you, which spake unto you the word of God and considering the issue of their belief imitate their faith." During the course of his sermon Dr. Littell said in part:

The text gives you ten pastors to remember today—Joseph McElroy, D. D., 1816-1824; Joseph Kerr, D. D., 1825-1829; Joseph R. Kerr, 1830-1843; John N. McClaren, D. D., 1846-1850; John Elkin, D. D., 1854-1857; James Presely, D. D., 1858-1866; Thomas Hanna, D. D., 1867-1873; Joshua Rohl, 1876-1879; Andrew H. K. Hershaw, D. D., 1881-1883. The present pastorate began August 1, 1886.

But the theme of all true pastors, what we all want remembered when we are forgotten is: "Jesus Christ the same yesterday and today and forever." First of all that tells us who Jesus Christ is. That is a most important question. "Who say ye that I am?" He asked the apostle. "What think ye of Christ?" He asked the scribes.

After being taught by ten of Christ's ambassadors for 87 years what is Christ to you? The text expresses that He is eternal and unchangeable. It implies that He is God. Thomas came out of all his gloom into the light and called the crucified and pierced One: "My Lord and my God." In Hebrews i:1, it is said of Him, "By whom also He made the worlds." In John i:1-2, "The Word was God. All things were made by him."

I hope you have learned to esteem Jesus Christ with deepest admiration and reverence. But the same Person we find in the gospels suits for the trust and love of men and women and children. He does it by teaching them, healing them, weeping with them and for them, and forgiving them and dying for them, to redeem them. Then by rising from the dead to make intercession for them, to be their shepherd and lead them on their heavenward journey. And the He is still the same forever. Dear brothers and sisters get to know Jesus Christ, how trustworthy He is and trust Him, how loving and lovely He is, how supremely great He is, and obey Him. Pastors may come and pastors may go, but "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday and today and forever."

GIFTS TO MANKIND HAVE BEEN MANY

Sermon by the Rev. John A. Jayne of Observatory Hill Christian Church.

The Rev. John A. Jayne, pastor of the Observatory Hill Christian church, Allegheny, preached a sermon yesterday morning on "Success Chips From the Workshop of the Apostle Paul." His text was from Acts xxiv:ii, "Thou art permitted to speak for thyself." During the course of his sermon Mr. Jayne said:

Three distinct characteristics separate man from the best of the field—the erect form, the ability to reason and the use of speech. What a privilege it is God gives to man. To stand erect, look his brother man squarely in the eye, to reason from cause to effect and effect to cause and then speak with intelligence the mighty convictions of the soul. We speak of the beauties of nature, of the glory of the stars, the majesty of the sun, the music of the sea as it breaks in harmony upon the sands of the shore, but above all and beyond all these stands man, the final and the complete work of the Almighty God.

And how wonderful is man. Allied on the structural side of his nature to the beast, but on his higher, his moral side allied and kin to God. Man more beautiful than all other things in nature. Every part adapted to its specific use. Bone playing into socket, eye looking forth with intelligence, tongue swung into position reaving thought of heart and singing praise to God. Man more glorious than the stars, more majestic than the sun, measuring the stars, controling the energy of the sun. Man, mightier than the seas, sweeping through its waves, carrying their inhabitants, compelling its tide to harness, doing his work.

How wonderful is man. In form like unto a god, in intellect divine, in speech like a king. This is man at his best. It is the thought of the possibilities wrapt up in the young man that compels our admiration, of what man middle aged is achieving, that challenges our attention, of what the old man has done that compels our respect. This is what it is in the life of the Apostle Paul that wins the growing respect of the centuries.

DR. PARTRIDGE GIVES A PATRIOTIC ADDRESS

The Rev. Dr. Warren G. Partridge, pastor of the Fourth Avenue Baptist church, Fourth avenue and Ross street, delivered a patriotic address in the church last night to the Junior Order United American Mechanics and the Daughters of Liberty. The church was handsomely decorated with flags and excellent patriotic music was rendered by the new quartet.

CORNER STONE LAID FOR NEW A. M. E. CHAPEL

The corner stone of the new Brown chapel of the African Methodist Episcopal church, Boyle and Hemlock streets, Allegheny, was laid at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The exercises were under the auspices of the Grand United Order of Odd Fellows' lodges, Union Western Star No. 1515, A. F. Rice, marshal, and Bond of Love, No. 2814, George Zimmerman, marshal, both of Allegheny.

PASTOR CELEBRATED 25th ANIVERSARY

The Rev. P. M. Reidenbach, pastor of St. John's German Lutheran church, Fortieth street and Howley avenue, last night celebrated the 25th anniversary of his pastorate. The Rev. Rudolph Reidenbach of Union City, Ind., a son of the pastor of St. John's, delivered a short address in English, after which his father read a report, giving a brief history of the church. At the morning service the Rev. A. W. Warder of Wheeling, W. Va., occupied the pulpit and preached in the German tongue.

TENNESSEE TREATMENT OF NEGRO EMPLOYES

One of Them Tells of Methods in Vogue in a Southern Mining Camp.

Tennessee methods of handling the race question were graphically described by Robert Grudger, a negro, of Arnold City, Fayette county, at the morgue yesterday.

Grudger, with Andrew Finley, another negro of Crawford street, this city, visited the morgue and identified the body of Luther Watson, the negro who died at the Homeopathic hospital last Thursday of a fractured skull, with which he had suffered, it was said, for 12 years.

Grudger and Finley say he was injured 14 years ago. In 1889 they worked with Watson in a Tennessee coal mine for Roust Thompson, a contractor. Watson and another man had trouble about a woman. Thompson ordered Watson to leave the camp saying, "You have five minutes to go and your time's half up." With that he hit Watson on the head with a revolver and broke his skull. A brother of Thompson was the doctor of the camp and attended Watson until he was well, when he was driven out and came north. Watson settled in Arnold City, where his wife still lives.

Deputy Coroner John Carney asked Grudger if nothing was done to Thompson and he replied:

"For killing a nigger? Not down there. They shoot him, sell a mule and buy another nigger."

Grudger said he had heard Thompson had died about a year ago.

BOYHOOD DAYS OF THE PRESIDENT

Aged Resident of Oyster Bay Recalls Mr. Roosevelt's Youthful Pranks.

HE WAS ALWAYS STRENUOUS

Amos Boerum, Who Carried the Mail 46 Years, Greeted by Distinguished Man Who Long Ago Played About the Village in "Short Pants."

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

OYSTER BAY, L. I., July 5.—"Lord, I kin remember jest like it was yestidy how I used to take him under the arms and hist him up into the coach that I used to drive between here and Syosset. Yes, sir; he was a right lively boy, and I'll tell you what that oldest boy of his is another Teddy right over."

It was Amos Boerum, one of the patriarchs of Oyster Bay, talking after he had hobbled by the secret service men at Christ Episcopal church this morning and was warmly greeted by the president. He is not the oldest inhabitant of Oyster Bay, but he has a memory from which have slipped but few of the incidents in the 83 years of his life. His beard is grizzled.

"I knew his father mighty well," went on Mr. Boerum, as he stood in the doorway of his little fruit store and gazed on the quiet street. "His father used to rent a house near Sagamore Hill every summer. I druv the coach and carried the mail between here and Syosset and East Norwich for 46 years, and except for just one month I never missed a trip or lost a bag in all them years. There warn't no mail road to Oyster Bay. It run only as far as Syosset, and all the Roosevelts who lived around here, and there were a lot of them, too, had to drive over to Oyster Bay. I first saw the president when he was a little youngster. He was so much as 10 year. No, he wasn't wearin' kilts, he was wearin' little short pants.

Was Fond of Animals.

"I've heard tell how he wasn't strong when he was young, but I remember he was a pretty lively boy. Lord, he was fond of animals. Didn't make any difference what they were—bullfrogs, chipmunks, squirrels. He used to catch them himself, and then he used to buy them from the boys in the village. He used to play around in the village considerable. Generally rode a horse down from his father's house. He liked horses ever since he was old enough to straddle one. My horse used to play with him. I carried him back and forth to his father's house every summer up to about 10 years ago, when the railroad came in here.

"When he come back from Cuba he looked pretty bad, not anywhere near so fine like he looks now. I never saw him looking better than he was today. That oldest son of the president, Teddy, Jr., looks and acts just like the president did when he was that age. He's goin' to be the same kind of man, too, I'll bet.

"He'll fix these people in the postoffice department before he gets through. He's already done one good thing here on Long Island, and that's to break up this business of mail contractors farming out their work. I know all about the mails, and it's a mighty good thing that the contractor has got to do the work himself. Every time he goes to the railroad station he rides in that open wagon, whether it's rainin' or not. All the years I've known him I never saw once that he went in a close carriage."

Fooled His Guardians.

A young villager walked into the store just then.

"The president fooled the secret service men," he said. "When the rig got about a half mile from church he got out and walked home, sending the family out to the hill in the wagon."

Amos Boerum laughed.

"That's just like him."

The entire Roosevelt family accompanied the president to church in an old-fashioned wagonette with seats on the side.

CATHOLIC FEDERATION WAS APPROVED BY POPE

Official Call Is Issued for Convention at Atlantic City August 1.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

CINCINNATI, July 5.—National Secretary Anthony Maire of the American Federation of Catholic Societies today sent out the official call for the third national convention at Atlantic City August 1.

The call says the federation is carrying out the mission laid down in the encyclicals of Pope Leo XIII, whose blessing has been bestowed upon this Catholic movement. The call also announces that the federation now has the approbation of the papal delegate, eight archbishops and 45 bishops.

Among the national organizations to send delegates are the Catholic Order of Foresters, Ancient Order of Hibernians, Catholic Knights of America, Catholic Mutual Benefit association, Catholic Knights and Ladies of America, Knights of St. John, Young Men's institute, the state federations of Ohio, Indiana, New Jersey, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Vermont, Louisiana, Georgia, Texas, Pennsylvania and hundreds of county federations, state leagues and other organizations. Several Indian tribes and the Porto Rican societies will also send delegates.

The business sessions will be presided over by President T. B. Minahan of Columbus, and every evening there will be open meetings with prominent speakers. There will also be in attendance the presidents of the leading Catholic colleges, many of whom will deliver addresses.

Sunday Gazette's Brilliancy Rivaled Fireworks of the Fourth

The Sunday Gazette yesterday was as bright, speedy and varied as the Fourth of July fireworks that it told about in its seven sections and 46 pages. Unlike the fireworks, however, The Sunday Gazette is not similar to a flash in the pan—a sudden illumination, a crash and a brilliant display followed by darkness. The Gazette's brilliancy is strong, steady and lasting. There is nothing erratic in its course, like is the flight of a skyrocket. Beside, there is no aftermath with The Gazette corresponding to the old cry of "Look out for the sticks." The Gazette's correspondents and reporters are so careful and the editing by The Gazette force is so thorough that The Gazette prints the news when it is news, puts it before its thousands of readers in a pleasing style and so thoroughly investigates all items and their sources that their reliability can be banked upon.

All of the news of this vicinity, every bit of information worth printing from all points of the state, the important doings all over the United States, and what is interesting the people of other countries, especially in a political way, appeared in the broad pages of The Sunday Gazette. In addition to posting and instructing its readers The Sunday Gazette devoted much space to entertaining and amusing them by providing most of the features of an up-to-date magazine.

Each succeeding Sunday during the year The Sunday Gazette has had a large increase in its circulation and several columns additional to its advertising patronage. These things show that efforts in the right direction are appreciated by the discriminating public.

Some of the features of The Sunday Gazette yesterday were another write-up of many interesting places, Poland, Ohio, and its quaint institutions being fully described by pen and picture; all the departments of a well-regulated paper have led in the best possible manner, Roosevelt Can Make Ireland a Cardinal, The Labor World, Books and Bookmen, Men's Fashions, Theatrical, The Servian Massacre, Coon Hollow Folks, Children's Page, Ararat Kids and Brownies, Mother Goose Rhymes, A Fair of Dark Eyes, Buster Brown, Suburban Residences, Good Time Dresses, Giant Log Rafts, Military Sharpshooters, Happy Memories, Chief of Police, Switzerland of America, German Socialists Have Kaiser, and many others.

UNIFORM LABELS ARE NOW DESIRED

Manufacturers of Food Products Working For Legislation Along That Line.

STATE LAWS ARE DIFFERENT

Association of Manufacturers and Distributers Will Hold a Meeting at New York July 13 to Formulate Plans For Vigorous Campaign in Congress.

The Pittsburgh Gazette Bureau, Room 10, Postal Building, WASHINGTON, D. C., July 5.

A lively curiosity attaches to the operation of the recently enacted pure food law which went into effect on the first of this month. Interest in the subject has been stimulated by the extensive experiments at the "government boarding house" conducted under the direction of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry of the department of agriculture, for the purpose of definitely ascertaining the effect of preservatives, coloring matter and adulterants used in the preparation of food products.

The newly effective pure food law was contained in an amendment to the appropriation bill for the department of agriculture for the present fiscal year and authorizes the secretary of agriculture to analyze food products imported into the United States and the secretary of the treasury to refuse to deliver to the consignee those goods which the secretary of agriculture reports to him have been inspected, analyzed and found dangerous to health, or where their sale is forbidden in the countries where they are made or from which they are exported, "or which shall be falsely labeled in any respect in regard to the place of manufacture or the contents of the package."

This legislation was the outcome of a strenuous campaign conducted by the advocates of pure food laws and was a compromise between the Mann bill, supported by the National Association of Retail Grocers and certain wholesalers and jobbers of Chicago, on the one hand, and the Association of Manufacturers and Distributers of Food Products and their allies, who favored the Corliss bill on the other. The contest resulted in the passage by the house of the Hepburn bill, which was the old Brosius bill revised, but it failed in the senate owing to lack of time for consideration.

An attempt will be made during the coming session to secure the enactment of a law on the lines of the Hepburn bill and a meeting of the Association of Manufacturers and Distributers of Food Products will be held at the Manhattan hotel in New York on the 13th of this month for the formulation of the plans for the campaign. Many of the largest manufacturers of canned goods in the United States are members of the association and they desire to have interstate commerce in food products regulated so that a uniformity of legislation on this subject can be secured. Dr. Wiley will co-operate with them and it is hoped that the divergent views of all parties interested can be harmonized to secure united effort.

It is represented that the labeling and branding of food products so as to meet the requirements of the laws of the various states is now attended with great difficulties and expense. Dr. Wiley once jestingly said that it almost required the services of a lawyer to see that the labels were properly prepared and affixed in compliance with the laws of the different states into which goods were shipped. Pennsylvania stipulates that all food products not made of absolutely pure material shall be labeled "compound." Ohio and Massachusetts demand the use of a "composite formula label." In Minnesota they are required to be branded in heavily printed labels "adulterated mixture," while in Illinois the word "imitation" suffices.

The manufacturers claim they are willing to brand their goods with any of these labels if they can have a uniformity of laws which will permit the use of one label in all the states. They hope that if congress enacts a law on the lines of the Hepburn bill they can persuade the various state legislatures to pass laws to conform thereto.

SABBATH MARRED BY BRUTAL MURDER

Thomas de Paul of New York Kills His Wife at Atlantic City Hotel.

SLASHED THROAT WITH KNIFE

She Died at Hospital After Receiving Last Sacrament of the Church—Murderer Caught and Says He Didn't Mean To Do It.

The Pittsburgh Gazette Bureau, Young's Ocean Pier, ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 5.

A murder of a most revolting nature took place here this afternoon, when Thomas de Paul of New York cut his wife's throat.

The woman has been living here in a questionable resort at No. 127 North Carolina avenue until two weeks ago, when her husband suddenly appeared from New York and demanded that she return with him. She did so and was in New York several days when she suddenly returned here and took room 17 in the Mountain hotel at No. 1202 Arctic avenue. De Paul arrived here this morning at 11 o'clock, and at once went to the Postal Telegraph Company and dispatched a note to his wife at the old address. Not finding her there he caused the messenger to search for her.

The search resulted in her location at the Mountain hotel. De Paul followed the messenger closely, and when his wife opened the door she screamed. He forced his way in, however, and seized her. He demanded she return with him at once, and when she again screamed he whipped a knife from his hip pocket and slashed her across the throat. He then dashed from the house pursued by a mob.

Capt. Maxwell and Detective Baltzell arrived within a few minutes with the patrol wagon. The woman was laying on the floor moaning. Capt. Maxwell carried her down to the ambulance and she was taken to the hospital. Her condition was so serious that a priest was sent for and the last sacrament was administered. The woman died about 10 tonight, retaining consciousness to the last.

The couple have been married but one year and have a baby about two months old. They had been living with the wife's mother, Mrs. Julia Lamphir, at No. 163 East Ninety-ninth street, New York. De Paul will make no statement and will say nothing but that he didn't mean to do it.

MUNICIPAL BAKERIES SUCCESSFUL IN SICILY

Catania Makes Its Own Bread, Reduces the Price and Realizes a Profit.

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

ROME, July 5.—In the Swiss town of Basle they have a service of municipal feeding-bottles for babies, and Glasgow runs a municipal golf links, but Catania, in Sicily, has carried Socialism just as far by starting municipal bakeries. These bakeries make a specialty of bread and the experiment of starting them has turned out so well that the municipality is able to sell the staff of life at about two-thirds of the price it used to be sold for in the town, pay its bakers higher salaries for shorter hours than obtain in private establishments, and still make quite a goodly profit.

Catania, which has a population of about 100,000, undertook its rather novel enterprise last October, being practically forced into doing so by the greediness of the local bakers. The price of bread in the town had been outrageously high for some time, and at last the people got so mad that the municipal council, headed by the syndic or mayor, ordered that a reduction of 14 per cent be made in the amount then charged. The bakers struck as one man, and then it was that the municipality opened somewhat hastily improvised bakeries of their own, where bread was sold at the reduced price. These shops were a success from the start and the municipality lost no time in submitting a more ambitious scheme to the citizens, who approved it. New machinery was bought, the city's business was extended, and the price of bread was made still lower. For a long time the private bakeries showed fight, but now most of them have gone to the wall. There is no mourning for them, however, as it is calculated that the municipal bakeshops save the public about $1,000 a day. Meanwhile, the profits on Catania's bread business for the last three months—particularly expensive ones, too—is estimated at about $1,400.

TURKEY AGAIN DENIES CONCENTRATION OF TROOPS

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 5.—The porte yesterday sent circulars to the Ottoman ambassadors in Vienna, St. Petersburg, Berlin and Paris, vigorously repudiating the accusation made by the Bulgarian government of concentration of Ottoman troops at strategic points along the Bulgarian frontier. Representations to this effect have already been made to the Bulgarian government.

Thieves in Lower Penn Avenue.

VETERAN RAILROAD ENGINEER WITH LONG CAREER AS ROVER

James B. Crum's Travels Would Stretch 60 Times Around Whole Globe.

HIS SERVICE IN CIVIL WAR

Mobbing of Sixth Massachusetts at Baltimore Cause of His Enlistment—Cruise in Warship While Chasing Confederate Privateers.

James B. Crum.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

NEW CASTLE, PA., July 5.—James B. Crum, a veteran railroad man who was appointed by Mayor Jackson to wage war against the recent typhoid fever epidemic here, has probably traveled as far in a locomotive cab as any living man, for he has gone a distance equal to 60 times around the globe, at a conservative estimate. He ran an engine for more than 40 years, until he retired from railroading a few months ago.

He says 100 miles a day is a low estimate. However, in 40 years this distance daily would in itself reach over 1,460,000 miles. In addition he also cruised over 60,000 miles aboard the United States warship "Wyoming" between 1864 and 1868.

Mr. Crum was born at Frederick City, Md., in 1837, and was running a Baltimore & Ohio engine when the civil war broke out. He was in Baltimore April 9, 1861, when the Sixth Massachusetts regiment was mobbed there. All but one company were transferred through the city on horse cars before the excited populace learned that northern soldiers were in the city. Then the mob gathered, blocking the street cars, and the one company left behind had to march from the President street station to the Camden street depot to board the train for Washington. Crum was near and heard the captain tell his men not to fire unless they had to. Crum said:

"Let them have it, captain. They came to get it."

Soon the captain had to give the order to fire and blood was shed on both sides. Crum's martial spirit was fired by this and he tried to enlist, but was of too slight build to be accepted then. Later he enlisted in the navy as an assistant engineer, and his first cruise was in the "Wyoming," when it started from Baltimore in 1864 to chase confederate privateers. It found none, as the war soon ended, and it was then ordered to the Asiatic squadron. The warship rounded the Cape of Good Hope and was in the Inland sea of Japan when the "Colorado," the first steamer to cross the Pacific, arrived in Japan. It was a gala day, and all the foreign warships gathered there dressed ship and fired salutes in honor of the event.

Crum also visited Manila long before the eyes of the American people were directed to that far-off land. After he returned home he left the navy and resumed railroading. Before entering the navy Crum saw much service with the union army and ran the first train from Baltimore to Harpers Ferry after the battle of Antietum. He also ran the first train from Baltimore to Winchester after Gen. Shields inflicted upon "Stonewall" Jackson almost the only defeat that general experienced.

Engineer Crum enjoys the best of health and is widely known to railroad men in this part of the country, where he ran an engine for the past 16 years.

SECRETARY MOODY IS OPPOSED TO LYNCHING

Had No Especial Reference to Russia In His Fourth of July Speech.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Secretary of the Navy Moody today delivered a stinging rebuke to lynchers when asked to explain his very insignificant allusion in his speech delivered yesterday at the Independence day celebration on the White House lawn, when he stated that mob violence and such displays of passionate resentment as recently exhibited in Delaware and Illinois and southern states rendered our voice helpless when raised against oppression elsewhere. This utterance was generally interpreted here to apply to the protest filed against Russian persecution of the Hebrews. Secretary Moody said when asked to explain these remarks:

"I meant just what I said. There is no offense against the law so unpardonable and dangerous as that of lynching. Recent events have shown that the practice of violating the law in this respect is not confined to the south, but has been witnessed in Illinois and Delaware. Lynching is not an offense that may be ascribed to sectionalism. It has made its appearance in so many states that it might appear as though action should be taken by the government to prevent such abuse. But it is a condition which must be met by the separate states. There is no law now in existence that applies to this.

"I had no special instance or case in mind yesterday when I spoke of the debasing effects of lynching upon public morals. The fact of the matter is that lynching does no good."

MGR. SETON CONSECRATED.

Former Jersey City Prelate Inducted Into Office as Archbishop of Heliopolis.

ROME, July 5.—In the church of the American college, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion, Cardinal Martinelli, assisted by Archbishop Stoner and Mgr. Panici, the canon of St. Peter's, consecrated the Very Rev. Robert Seton, formerly of Jersey City, N. J., as archbishop of Heliopolis. Mgr. Marsolini, the under prefect of pontifical ceremonies, acted as master of the ceremonies.

Many friends of Father Seton, who was one of the first 12 members with whom the American college was inaugurated in 1859, witnessed the function. Dr. Kennedy, rector of the American college, all the rectors of the foreign ecclesiastical colleges and the American consul general, De Castro, were also present. A sumptuous collation in the refectory of the American college followed the function, and Cardinal Martinelli tonight gave a dinner in Archbishop Seton's honor.

TRIES TO THROW GIRL INTO WELL

ZANESVILLE, O., July 5.—(Special)—George Curtis, a colored barber, is under arrest charged with attempting to murder his former sweetheart, Jessie Bolen. Last night, about 11 o'clock, he picked her up and started toward an open well and tried to throw her down it. Three colored men rescued the girl and overpowered Curtis.

OLD MAN AND BOY DROWNED IN CANAL

WILKESBARRE, PA., July 5.—Elias D. Trimble, an old and well-known resident of West Nanticoke, and Wesley Kyttle, aged 14, were drowned in the canal near Harveys creek today. The former made an attempt to rescue the boy and both were caught in underbrush and drowned.

JOSEPH LAMOTHE DIES AS RESULT OF WOUND

He Remains Silent When Questioned by Priest About His Relatives.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, July 5.—Joseph Aguar Lamothe, the French Canadian, who was wanted in Winchester, Mass., on suspicion of having murdered Georgiana Guddu, died in St. Luke's hospital this morning. Death resulted from the revolver shot wound in the abdomen, which he received during a struggle with Detective Becker in the reception room of the hospital Saturday morning.

From the time he was shot Lamothe sank gradually and was unconscious until a few moments before death, when he regained consciousness and asked for a priest, who was summoned.

In reply to the questions of the priest as to his relatives, he turned his face away and was silent. A few minutes thereafter he died.

It is said that when the injured man was being taken to the ward of the hospital, he murmured, "I want to die."

After an examination today the coroner's physician gave it as his opinion that Lamothe had killed himself, probably intentionally.

Lamothe, it is stated, has a brother, a clergyman, attached to St. Francis' Xavier's church, Little Falls, Minn.

An examination of the dead man's clothes showed that in the coat were two bullet holes. One of them evidently had been made by the bullet which killed him, and the other, it is thought, might have been made by the bullet that killed Georgiana Guddu.

LYNCHING NEVER RIGHT.

The Rev. Mr. Christian of New Castle Talks to A. M. E. Church on Mob Rule.

NEW CASTLE, PA., July 5.—(Special.)—"When Lynching Is Right" was the topic of a sermon delivered here tonight by the Rev. R. W. Christian, pastor of St. Luke's A. M. E. church. He took for his subject, "Lord, shall we call down fire from heaven to consume them, as were Sodom and Gomorrah?"

"Mob rule has had a place in the history of the human family since the days of Cain and Abel," said Mr. Christian in beginning, "and it yet exerts its baneful influence for oppression."

He then cited many Bible incidents of the frenzied populace in wreaking vengeance upon supposed culprits by mob violence. The death of Christ was given as an instance of mob violence when the passions of the ignorant were inflamed by leaders who through that means sought to gain ends that could not have been accomplished by legal processes.

Mr. Christian said that mob rule is never right unless to punish crime when there is evidence that the courts will not administer justice. He closed by stating that so long as the courts of the land are unbiased mob rule is not only wrong but a menace to the existence of a national government.

Seven Held on Murder Charge.

LEWISTOWN, PA., July 5.—William Troberg, John Storick, W. N. Kline, W. E. Bumbardner, Woods Franklin, William Woomer and Harry Heagy, all of Lewistown, were placed in jail last night charged with being connected with the robbery and murder of the unknown man found near Lewistown junction yesterday morning. They were seen in this neighborhood raising considerable disturbance. One of the suspects had been seen in company with the murdered man.

Peace and Quiet Are Assured by the Closing of the Gates.

THERE ARE NO EXCURSIONISTS

Religious Services Are Not Obtrusive. Dr. Robinson Preaches on the Ten Commandments—Ite Pays an Eloquent Tribute to Eugene V. Debs.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., July 5.—The Chautauqua Sunday has become proverbial among those who have experienced its delights. It is in a class by itself and its counterpart is not to be found anywhere else. The quiet and peacefulness of the day, as well as the eliminating of the Sunday excursionists, is accomplished by the very simple device of closing the gates, and no boat is permitted to land at the pier from Saturday night until Monday morning. There are means of getting off the grounds in case of exigency, but only under unusual circumstances. The result is the ideal Sabbath. The religious observances are neither numerous nor specially obtrusive. One sermon, an hour for Bible study, another for Sunday school and a service entirely of song in the evening. The sermon this morning was by Dr. George L. Robinson of McCormick Theological seminary, and the subject of his discourse was the "Ten Commandments." In speaking of the right of private property as based on the eighth commandment, Prof. Robinson paid a glowing tribute to Eugene V. Debs, while disapproving of his social philosophy. He said:

"I take off my hat to him. If there is a sincere man, if there is an earnest man, if there is a whole-souled man whom I have ever heard on the public platform, it is Mr. Debs. But the difficulty of modern socialism is that it obscures individuality. I heard him recently at a western Chautauqua, and I asked him afterward how he could reconcile his Utopian views of life with the idea that the individual who labors ought to have what he earns without dividing it with those who do not work. His reply was that when socialism has won the victory everybody will be willing to work. When that time comes there are some who will have to be born again.

"The eighth commandment says that what we work for is ours. There is nothing free in this world except the air you breathe. Therefore you must labor in order to acquire wealth, and it is yours when you have won it."

Some Facts about Colorado

Here are some facts about Colorado which few people know:

It is the greatest gold-producing state.

The greatest silver-producing state.

The greatest health-restoring state.

The greatest scenic state.

The state of 300 mountains, half of which are not even christened, to say nothing of 900 lakes and more than sixty rivers.

The Rocky Mountains occupy in Colorado alone more than five times the entire space occupied by all the Alps.

Among the Alps there are nine peaks more than 14,000 feet high; in Colorado, forty-two—all higher than the famous Jungfrau.

There are a full score of incorporated towns, doing business every day in the week in Colorado on a higher level than the great St. Bernard Pass, with its monks and dogs and snow storms.

Reduced rates to Colorado are now in effect—$30 for the round trip from Chicago; $25 from St. Louis.

Still lower rates will be in effect July 1 to 10—$25 from Chicago; $21 from St. Louis.

CAPTAIN CLARKE MAY NOT BE ABLE TO PLAY ANOTHER GAME THIS YEAR

FRED CLARKE HAS TORN LIGAMENTS IN RIGHT SHOULDER

Dive for Dooin's Fly Saturday Disastrous and May Keep Him Out of the Game for Rest of the Season.

Capt. Fred Clarke's sensational catch of Dooin's line drive in the ninth inning of Saturday's game, by which the Pirate leader nipped what seemed to be a batting rally on the part of the Philadelphians, may prove more disastrous to the champions than was first thought.

In order to make the catch Clarke had to come in very fast and plunge forward after the ball, which he did, and consequently hurt his right shoulder very badly. Then it was noticed that Clarke was in pain because of the injured shoulder.

An inspection by a physician yesterday disclosed the fact that the ligaments in the right shoulder are torn. He, however, was not confined to his room all the day. This is sad intelligence to the followers of the champions, as it means that their captain may be forced to stay out of the game for the remainder of this season.

This puts the Pirate crew in a badly crippled condition. Bransfield is laid up with a bad knee, and Catchers Harry Smith and Eddie Phelps have split fingers. Not one of these men will be able to resume work for some time. President Dreyfuss, however, looks at the bright side of the state of affairs. Either Phillippe or Kennedy, pitchers, will be in left field today against Philadelphia. If one of the pitchers whom he will select to guard the field does not show up very well, he will then seek an outfielder. Harry McChesney of Homestead was suggested to him last night. Dreyfuss said he might get McChesney if it comes to the worst.

Chicago Protests Game When Bresnahan Leaves Stand to Relieve Mertes.

WARNER HAS FINGER SPLIT

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

CHICAGO, July 5.—Chicago gave the crippled New York team the game today by dumb playing and numerous errors. The game was stopped several times to allow injured players to recover. In the second inning Warner, who was catching in Bowerman's absence, had a finger split, forcing him to retire from the game. Bresnahan, who was injured in Saturday's game, was the only reserve catcher and was watching the play from the grand stand when called on to fill Warner's place. Mertes was called in from left field to finish the inning, while Bresnahan went to the club house to don his uniform.

When Bresnahan entered the game the umpire announced a protest in order not to disappoint the big crowd. The protest was made under rule 27, section 1, which requires all players, including substitutes, who are to take part in the game, to be in the field in uniform at the beginning of the game. The condition of the protest is said to be unique in the history of the National championship playing. Mr. Hart of the Chicago management said the game probbly will be ordered to be played over again, rather than allow it to be given to Chicago. Score:

SLUGGING MATCH.

Brooklyn Gets Decision Over Reds in Loose Game.

CINCINNATI, O., July 5.—Cincinnati was defeated today by Brooklyn in a slugging match. Although the Cincinnatis outhit Brooklyn they were not at all effective. The Brooklynas Suthoff and Garvin, who started in to pitch for each team, were knocked out of the box and their successors did not fare much better. Dobbs, Jordan and Peitz were ordered off the grounds by Umpire Moran for their kicking and back talk. Vickers, while running to second base, fell on Corcoran and hurt the Cincinnati outfielder's shoulder in the way that will probably keep him out of the game for some time. Score:

"SWELL" ARMSTRONG CREATES TWO LOCAL HURDLING RECORDS

William Armstrong.

Very few persons who attended the athletic games Saturday at the Schenley park oval were aware that two Western Pennsylvania records for hurdling had been broken. There was no announcement made to this effect, but such was the case and the athlete who accomplished this feat was William "Swell" Armstrong, the former Shadyside academy field and track captain, and now member of the Princeton university teams.

By covering the 120 hurdles in :15 flat he lowered the record by one second held by Bob Brazell, an old P. A. C. athlete. The 220 hurdles were negotiated by him in the fast time of :25 3-5, beating the mark of :27 flat held by himself, which was made in the championship interscholastic meet at Schenley park one year ago this spring. Shadyside won the championship in this meet, beating out Kiskiminetas by the narrow margin of four points. Of Shadyside's 26 points Armstrong scored 22, and at the same time creating the record. The students at Shadyside were so pleased with his performances in this meet that they voted to give him the trophy emblematic of the championship of Western Pennsylvania for schools.

Davy Sheenan, the veteran trainer who had charge of the Shadyside teams when Armstrong was there, predicts that he will be one of the shining lights in the college world of athletics. Armstrong is also a football player, having played fullback on the eleven two seasons.

BREAK IN CYCLE CIRCUIT IS EXPECTED BY RIDERS

Men Do Not Find It Profitable to Follow Motors Everywhere and Prefer the East.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

PHILADELPHIA, July 5.—Bobby Walthour, the champion cyclist, has had another offer from the Parc de Princes track, Paris, France, to ride during the month of September, and is thinking seriously of accepting the offer. During the winter months, when there was such rivalry between the two tracks in Paris, the other being the Buffalo track, they say Walthour can offer anything from $6,000 for 11 races, but Walthour refused these offers, as they were to take place during June and July, which is the best season in this country.

They made him other and good offers for September, but he refused them. He received $4,000 last Saturday renewing the offer, but Walthour states that he is undecided as to whether he will accept or not.

One of the main reasons that may induce Walthour to leave America is that the national paced circuit is now on the wane. Walthour can confer more races on these tracks. In speaking of this the Boston Herald prints the following:

"The expected break in the motor-paced championship circuit is at hand, and judging from present signs the wind-up will come at the end of the week. At Revere Beach Saturday evening Manager Ingraham announced to the N. C. A. officials, as well as to many racing men, that his track was through with circuit races and that hereafter he would hold only match races. Manager Wendleschaefer of Providence has ideas of the same kind and has withdrawn Mettling and Walthour from the circuit. Messrs. Spooner and Wells, race managers and promoters, have also stated that they will withdraw Nelson, Martin and other men. Eli Winsett has followed suit and Jimmy Moran says there is nothing doing for him on the circuit.

"The experiences of the men on the southern circuit have had much to do with the break. It cost the riders more in expenses than they could get back in prize money. A member of the board of control, too, it is claimed, violated the conditions of the circuit in refusing to pay the $200 guaranteed to the riders appearing at his track.

"The breaking up of the circuit means that all the pace followers will come east and look for money and this means better races and more interesting work. The east, and especially that section comprising Boston, Revere and Providence, has during the past three years been the places where the sport has bootned, and it looks as if history is to be repeated."

RECORD BREAKERS NOT ALWAYS BEST HORSES

Weights Will Bring Fastest Goers Down and There Are Other Reasons.

Many people not familiar with the finer points of horse racing wonder why it is that running records are so often broken by horses which have not the reputation of other animals that never make such fast time, says the Chicago Tribune. In harness racing fast time is practically an invariable index of a horse's racing quality and a good many people naturally suppose the same thing should apply on the running track. But such is not the case. The chief reason why the best horses do not hold more records than they do on the running turf is attributable to the matter of weight. Weight will bring the fastest horses down to an even chance with the slowest, if enough is put on the good horse, and, as good horses generally carry the most weight they may not run faster than poorer animals which have been favored in such a particular. In a great majority of instances—in fact, in nearly all of them—track record holders have carried only moderate weights. No such condition of affairs prevails in harness races, and it is one of the reasons why harness racing lacks the variety furnished by the runners.

But there are other important conditions affecting fast performances in either running or harness racing. Chief of these, of course, is the condition of the track. Often, however, when the track is at its best there will be too strong a breeze and it may be blowing in a way to handicap the runners the most, just as at other times it may be blowing the most favorable. It goes without saying that hot weather is most conducive to record breaking, this being true of all kinds of contests of speed by man or beast. Another feature is the nature of the pace. Just as a badly judged ride by a jockey may sometimes beat the best horse in a race, so a well judged pace, or a race in which the pace happens to be of the kind to produce the best results, may contribute to the record breaking time.

There are many more horses of ordinary quality than there are horses of high-class quality, and therefore many more races in which a horse may be favored with light weight and other conditions in their favor, have a chance to beat the records. Hence the record breakers are generally not the actual top notchers of their day.

WAYNESBURG AFTER SHORTSTOP KENNOY

Manager Risher Takes His Homestead Team on Trip to Greenville and East Liverpool.

SCHOLASTIC NINE IS BUSY

"Buck" Kennoy, the West Virginia shortstop who has been playing good ball at second for the Scholastics, is wanted by the Waynesburg summer team to play short. Kerr Price, captain and shortstop on the Scholastics, is contemplating a trip to Greene county, and the management of the Waynesburg team is also desirous of getting him to play some games in the infield. Kennoy, who has had many offers to play professional ball this summer, may go to Waynesburg.

Manager Howard M. Risher of the Homesteads was a very happy man yesterday. His team took the fast Wilmerding aggregation into camp twice Saturday, making it the third victory of the season over this nine. In the morning game at Homestead Alex Pearson, for Homestead, opposed Stettler of Wilmerding on the slab and the Steel Worker came out ahead in a bruising battle, 2 to 0. Homestead got 10 hits and Wilmerding 6. In the afternoon at Wilmerding, Buck Washer, the West Virginian, gave Wilmerding another shutout, 4 to 0. Coleman was on the firing line for Wilmerding.

These games abounded in good plays. Harry McChesney, the brilliant middle fielder, made one of the longest hits of the year at Wilmerding, by putting the ball over the right field fence for a home run, sending in a runner ahead of him. At the same time at bat McChesney hit over the fence, but it went foul by a few inches. Shortstop Ferguson did not play with Homestead. He was let off for the day to play with his former comrades at Johnstown. Left Fielder Arthur Tate again demonstrated his ability as a versatile player by putting up a game at short that bordered on the sensational. The best I ever saw in this league," remarked Red Calhoun, the Wilmerding third baseman in discussing his work. Tate, however, will not stay at the position. Ferguson will return to the team this morning and leave on the trip which Risher will make to Greenville and East Liverpool.

The team will play at Greenville today and tomorrow, at East Liverpool Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, returning to Homestead to play Dravosburg Saturday afternoon at the home park. The team starts on the trip with a record of 42 games won and 9 lost for the season.

The Scholastics will play three hard games this week, which will be setaway week for them. Tomorrow evening the team will play a twilight game with the Washington nine at Washington, composed of Wash. Jeff. players, and Wednesday and Thursday they will battle with the Johnstown club at Johnstown in a benefit game for a Johnstown player who was injured recently while playing against Johnstown (N. Y.) Tom Wilson will likely pitch against Washington and Don Doyle, the first pitcher to win from the Pittsburgh Amateurs this season, will be on the rubber in the first game at Johnstown. Some of the fast players of the players will begin to leave town for the summer and it would be hard to keep the team together.

AMONG THE AMATEURS.

The Melrose Journeyed to Shannopin, Pa., Saturday and took in the team of that place 15 to 12.

The Avalon Juniors defeated the Groton A. C. of McKees Rocks Saturday 16 to 12. The feature was the pitching of Jackson of Avalon, striking out 15 men.

The W. J. Ryans have Saturday, July 11, open and all dates after August 8, and would like to fill them with some 12 or 18-year-old teams. Address M. O'Brien, 229 Jones avenue.

Mt. Troy would like to arrange games with any first-class out-of-town teams for July 11 and 18, away from home, or any Sunday at home. Address E. Rupschoidt, No. 17 Loy street, Allegheny.

The Flowers Avenue Stars played the Empire A. C. a two and a half inning game on Saturday and the E. A. C. claimed the game on account of rain. The P. P. A. would like to hear from them for a game any Saturday for $2 a side.

The Admiral A. C. defeated the B. & O. team Saturday in a one-sided game 16 to 3. The features was the fielding and heavy hitting of Admirals. Wyland's opponents pitcher was on the rubber for the Admirals, and he pitched a good game, holding the B. & O.'s down to two hits and striking out nine men.

FAST YOUNG COLLEGE PITCHER IS WALTER TOPIC GRANGE

Walter Grange.

One of Pittsburg's best young pitchers in eastern colleges is Walter T. Grange of Trinity. Grange is a former Shadyside academy man, having pitched on the nine for four years and for the last two years of his career captain. The school year which just closed was his first at Trinity and for a freshman he did remarkably well on the rubber against the big universities and colleges. He pitched 11 games for Trinity the past season and seven were victories, all against strong teams. At Shadyside he was considered one of the best ever in the academy and was the first Shadyside pitcher that ever won games from the Pittsburg high school nine in one season. Grange did this feat last year, winning at high school park and the second at Shadyside. He also pitched in one of the most remarkable ball games that was ever played in this city, the contest taking place three years ago at Shadyside academy, high school, Shadyside coming out on the long end of a score 21 to 20, runs in the first inning. Phil Lewis, then captain of high school, left shortstop and went on the rubber. High school plugged away until the ninth, when the score was three all. In the ninth inning Lewis hit the school to right for two bases, stole third and sneaked home with the winning run. Grange is now home from Trinity and will pitch a few games with local amateur teams. It is likely he will be on the rubber for the Allister interscholastics Thursday at Johnstown.

MERCERSBURG ACADEMY TEAMS MAKE BIG RECORD

Field and Track Men Win Interscholastic Championships and Marks at Many Places.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

MERCERSBURG, PA., July 5.—The Mercersburg academy track team made a surprising record during the season just closed, not only winning a number of meets but establishing several individual records. Mercersburg won the Princeton interscholastic and the Yale interscholastic meet, the middle states championship on Franklin field and the Penn relay games. He pitched for Trinity the past season and seven were victories, all against strong teams. At Shadyside he was considered one of the best ever in the academy and was the first Shadyside pitcher that ever won games from the Pittsburg high school nine in one season. Grange did this feat last year, winning at high school park and the second at Shadyside. He also pitched in one of the most remarkable ball games that was ever played in this city, the contest taking place three years ago at Shadyside academy, high school, Shadyside coming out on the long end of a score 21 to 20, runs in the first inning. BLOOMINGTON IS HAULED DOWN IN THREE I LEAGUE

Race For Championship Getting Interesting—Buelow of Dubuque Leads at Bat.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

ROCKFORD, ILL., July 5.—The Three Eye league race, which looked for several weeks to be a runaway affair for Bloomington, has assumed a new phase. The Decatur team is responsible for the change. Meeting Bloomington in six games the Decatur aggregation annexed five of them and pulled the leaders down to a narrow margin of supremacy. Accidents to players were partly responsible for Bloomington's setback. Donovan was hurt and Herbert was required to do the catching, which left the infield wobbly. Decatur's base running has been a joke, but the fine work of the pitchers and steady stick work brought good results. The team, on the whole, has shown much more class than was expected of it, and now for the first time outside of Decatur talk is being heard of the aggregation being a serious pennant contender. Dubuque and Springfield are changing about in seventh and eighth position, both teams playing much better ball than they were a few weeks ago. Rowland has been deposed from the management of the Dubuque club and Buelow given charge of affairs.

Every week sees a procession of players out of the league and the introduction of new material. Manager Nicol parted company with Second Baseman Pollick and supplanted him with Middleton, from the Cotton States league. Shour, a new outfielder from Missouriana, is holding well, hitting hard, and proving a good base runner. Killian is hitting so well that he is kept in the outfield and Merrill on the bench.

Rock Island's new players are Gorman, a shortstop; Ransom, a catcher, who was with Davenport; Beatty, an infielder, from the Western league; Lally, an outfielder; Crum, utility man, and McClintock and Lister, infielders. Shortstop Callahan and Pitcher Cadwallader have been released. Donnelly's men have been warmly criticised for lack of interest, and the team appeared sadly disorganized. Graeber, a shortstop from the Southern league, is making good with Decatur. McClintock, formerly of Decatur, has gone to Rock Island, and is making good with him. Unofficial averages make Buelow of Dubuque the leader of the league batsmen. He is going along at nearly a .400 clip. Osteen of Davenport is given second place, Novacek of Cedar Rapids third and Hofford of Rockford fourth. Rockford leads in stolen bases and Decatur in team hitting.

DOPING OF HORSE CAUSES EXCITEMENT

SHARON, PA., July 5.—(Special.)—Excitement has been caused in Sharon over the doping of Frank Davis' trotting horse. The animal was matched to race a trotter owned by Charles Flowers at the meet of the Sharon Matinee club at the Sharon fair grounds yesterday for $500. On Thursday Mr. Frees, a veterinary surgeon, found Davis' horse in a very serious condition. Dope was found in the feed the animal had been eating. The animal was unable to race and Flowers' horse cantered around the track and won the money. It is not known who doped the horse.

A WIDE REGION WAS STORM SWEPT

Heaviest Rain in Years Floods Pittsburgh and the Surrounding Territory.

MANY LANDSLIDES REPORTED

Damage from Big Storm of July 4 Accentuated by Another One 24 Hours Later—A Comparison by the Weather Bureau.

A terrific storm, greater than any storm that has swept over Pittsburgh for years past, was experienced yesterday. There have been storms with stronger wind, but the flood of rain that fell yesterday has not been equalled for a long time. Great damage was done in the surrounding neighborhood. North, northeast, northwest and southwest of the city the storm raged with greater force than the one on the afternoon of July 4.

There were landslides on the railroads, traction tracks were undermined and streets in the two cities were filled with mud. Sewers were unable to carry off the floods of water, and the streets ran curbfull for nearly an hour. Saw Mill run was on a rampage for awhile, and a flood of water poured into the Ohio river from Chartiers creek.

For some reason Carnegie and the district surrounding that borough, a territory that usually feels the brunt of storms the worst, had comparatively little rain. Above Idlewood Chartiers creek was perfectly placid for hours after the storm, while below Idlewood it was a raging torrent. Ingram and Crafton streets were filled with mud and gravel from the hillsides.

In Allegheny damage from the flood of the day before that had not been repaired was accentuated by yesterday's rains.

Sweep of Storm Peculiar.

The storm was peculiar in its sweep. Its full force seems to have been felt beginning at a point on the Monongahela river, some miles this side of Monongahela. Then it worked north, following the right bank of the river, enfolding McKeesport, Braddock, Jeannette, New Kensington, Wilmerding, taking in Pittsburgh and Allegheny, and then working south, flooding Esplen, McKees Rocks, Crafton, Ingram and Idlewood, and then veering farther toward the southwest, practically giving that part of the Chartiers valley about Carnegie the go by.

Landslides on the Monongahela river division of the Pennsylvania, the Pittsburgh, Virginia & Charleston railroad, blocked the evening passenger trains on that line, and work trains were kept busy for hours cleaning up the tracks.

Last night cars on the Crafton branch of the Pittsburgh Railways Company traveled at a reduced schedule. The Crafton hill, it was feared, was partly undermined in places, tons of earth having slipped down into the valley from a point below the traction tracks. The traction tracks run under the Panhandle railroad at Idlewood, between the abutments of the railroad bridge. Cars on the line were held for an hour while a torrent from the stream coming from the Oakwood park dam poured down this narrow passage at a depth of 10 feet.

Bridge Washed Away.

A wagon bridge over the stream, on the road leading to the Panhandle freight yards, was washed away and dammed up the water so that the only free way for the water was over the traction tracks. In Crafton the water ran like a mill race on the streets the full depth of the curb, and the electric cars were obliged to stop to save their machinery from burning out. After the water ran off the streets were two inches deep in mud.

In the Thirty-fifth ward Sawmill run rose over its banks and the water covered the streets, penetrated the cellars and even flowed over the wagon floor at No. 8 police station. Traction cars had to stop until the fury of the storm was over. The line running to McKees Rocks was covered with mud for hundreds of yards at intervals, the earth having been washed from the hillside back of Esplen borough. The sewer in the Thirty-sixth ward, carrying the water from the steep street, burst, its mouth having been stopped up with mud, and flooded the cellars of the houses along the street.

Landslide at Esplen.

The landslide in Esplen is said by the street car men to be the worst ever experienced there. Men were kpt busy for hours uncovering the tracks, which were deluged with mud. Lightning struck the cupola of the United Presbyterian church, ripping and scattering the shingles in all directions. The bolt apparently forked, and one prong entered the roof of the house of Perry Santemeyer, ripped up the roof, tore into the living room and wrought havoc with the interior. Mrs. Santemeyer, who was drawing water from a faucet in the kitchen, was severely shocked. A woodshed in the yard of Councilman Francis Booth was completely demolished by another prong of the same bolt of lightning.

In Allegheny a veritable sea of mud flowed down into East street. Near California avenue there was a big cave-in and there was a landslide in Island avenue. A grounded feed wire charged the bridge that crosses Woods run with electricity and several persons were shocked, but not severely, as they crossed the bridge, when they put their hands on the railing. From all parts of Allegheny, at the foot of the hills and on the hillsides, landslides were reported, making many streets impassable.

Many Tracks Blocked.

The heavy rain caused many landslides in Braddock, earth falling on the traction tracks in four places. A fall of earth blocked the Calhoun park traction line. Tons of stones and earth fell on the tracks of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at the curve near the Glenwood bridge. Trains were delayed two hours.

The storm reached its height at Sewickley about 3 p. m. In Beaver street the cellars of business houses were flooded and in Blackburg avenue the cellars had three feet of water in them, the sewers being unable to carry off the water.

The report furnished by the United States weather bureau shows how much greater the rainfall of yesterday and, in fact, for the month of July so far as it has gone, was compared with former years. The total rainfall yesterday was 1.29 inches, an enormous amount when the small space of time is considered, and the excess for the day over the rainfall of the 31 preceding years was 1.05 inches. The excess in the five days of July over the corresponding five days of the last seven years is 2.02 inches, and to cap the climax yesterday's flood made an excess of four inches of rain over the normal precipitation, from January 1 until July 5, of the years from 1896 until 1902, inclusive.

DESPERATE FIGHT ENDS BALL GAME

Two Men Fatally Hurt in Battle With Bats at Perrysville, O.

ONE'S SKULL IS FRACTURED

Rooters from Shreve Resent Assertion That Umpire Was Trying to Steal the Game—Official Has Narrow Escape. Police Badly Beaten.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

PERRYSVILLE, OHIO, July 5.—A riot over a ball game, which may result in the death of two men, occurred here late yesterday afternoon.

The game was between amateur teams representing this village and the neighboring village of Shreve, between which two places there has for years been the most intense rivalry. The local players claimed toward the close of the game that the umpire, who was brought by the Shreve players, was trying to steal it. Accusations flew back and forth until actual hostilities with ball bats, knives and clubs broke out.

Tony Bell and William Lamereux were knocked down with bats, the former having his jaw broken and the latter his skull fractured. Marshal Carl Schroff received a broken nose and two of his deputies, Ren Miller and Jacob Kiner, who helped him in his effort to quell the riot, were badly used up.

Samuel Barrett, Holly O'Harrow, Ray Robinson and Abner Barrett were drawn into the trouble and are now under the physician's care as a result.

It required the utmost vigilance on the part of the local officers to prevent the team's sympathizers from mobbing the umpire after he had taken refuge in a local hotel. Had not the score stood where it was when the riot broke out, 6 to 3 in favor of Perrysville, nothing could have prevented an assault upon the umpire.

Several of the Shreve rioters were taken before a special session of the court this morning and assessed fines. Perrysville has always been a quiet village and the affair has attracted the more attention on this account. The villagers lay the outbreak of lawlessness to the recent advent here of two new saloons. The village has never before had but one.

UNEXPECTED STRIKE CAUSES HEAVY LOSS

Smelter Furnaces "Frozen" and Ore Will Have to Be Cut Out.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

DENVER, COL., July 5.—James B. Grant, chairman of the executive committee of the American Smelting and Refining Company, estimates the damage at the Grant and Globe smelters, caused by the unexpected strike of the employes, at $25,000 to $30,000. All but two of the 11 furnaces in use were "frozen," and the ore will have to be cut out before the furnaces can again be used.

President Charles F. Meyer of the Western Federation of Miners says that he does not think it will be necessary to call out the miners of the state in support of the smelter men. The failure of the legislature to pass an eight-hour law is given by the strikers as the cause of the trouble, and the company is accused of using improper means to defeat legislation.

A large force of police is guarding the smelters in this city, and no serious disturbance has occurred, though 12 men have been arrested for disorderly conduct and making threats.

PLAYING FOR TIME.

Colombian Advocates of Canal Treaty Hoping to Win Opponents Over Later On.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(Special.)—According to reports reaching the Colombian legation from Bogota, the discussion of the canal treaty will certainly be continued into the regular session, which meets July 20.

It is the scheme of the opponents of the canal to force a vote at the earliest possible moment, as they are confident of a majority. The government's supporters realize the overwhelming sentiment in and out of congress is at present opposed to the treaty, but hope later on to win over by some means a sufficient number from the opposite side to push the treaty through.

Thus the work of the senate has been largely occupied in the appointment of committees, and so far as the Colombian legation has heard there has been no extensive discussion on the canal in that body. There have been several spirited debates in the house, which show the opposition to the treaty has lost none of its bitterness.

THREE RIDE ON TENDER; ONE DEAD, TWO INJURED

Fatal Collision Between Two Electric Cars at Irvindale Park.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

WARREN, PA., July 5.—As the result of an accident on the Warren Electric Traction Company's road at Irvindale park, three miles outside this city, shortly after 12 o'clock Sunday morning, Arch Stricters, aged 20, is dead; John Jenson, aged 20, will die, and Alfred Graham, aged 20, is seriously injured.

A heavily loaded car, on which the men were riding, collided with another coming in an opposite direction. Stricters, Jenson and Graham were standing on the forward fender. Graham jumped and Stricters and Jenson were caught between the cars, and their bodies crushed.

The former died before reaching the city, and the latter is injured internally and cannot recover.

NEW PENNSY TRAIN TO ATLANTIC CITY

Regular Weekly Excursions Will Be Run from New York at Reduced Fare.

MAKES RUN IN FOUR HOURS

Great Multitude Gathers at the Shore to Seek Rest or Recreation Over Sunday. Mrs. Charlemagne Tower Takes a Cottage and Hires Servants.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, Young's Ocean Pier, ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 5.

If Atlantic City was crowded on the Fourth it was filled to overflowing today. The railroads during the morning had all they could do to bring the throng which crowded about the ferries in Philadelphia to the shore. Besides this the Pennsylvania brought 12 carloads from New York. This is something new, and the inaugural of a special excursion train from New York and Brooklyn today marks a radical departure in the traffic department of the Pennsylvania railroad. The train is operated, not as an experiment, but is one of a series of weekly through trains which will run through the entire summer season. The Pennsylvania railroad is helping to build up traffic from the New York terminal of the line, and as an inducement to travel has reduced the fare from $4 25 for the round trip on this special to $2 50 for the round trip.

The special will leave New York at 6:45 a. m. and is scheduled to arrive in Atlantic City at 10:46 a. m. The train pulls out of the Jersey City station at 7:15 a. m. The run is made in about four hours from New York, which is about half an hour longer than by the regular trains.

In railroad circles the new train is looked upon as an experiment, which, if it will pay, as they expect it will, will result in the railroad cutting down the time within easy measure of the express train. Furthermore, it will introduce Atlantic City to one-day visitors. Owing to the cost it isn't likely that the objectionable class of excursionists will come on the special. The special is to leave Atlantic City at 7 p. m., which will give the visitors plenty of time to "do" the city. More of these trains will be run through the week if there is a demand made for them.

Mrs. Tower Takes a Cottage.

Mrs. Charlemagne Tower, the wife of the American ambassador to Germany, has leased a cottage in Chelsea and has been busy organizing a staff of domestics to conduct the establishment. She has not been accustomed to personally directing her household affairs and this is her first attempt and is somewhat vexing to her. Pending an adjustment of the arrangements under way, Mrs. Tower and her sister, Mrs. Garrick, who is to reside with her in the cottage, has been dining at one of the hotels. The difficulty seems to be that the servants desired are not easily found. Furthermore, the demand for good and faithful help in the hotels causes worriment. Cottagers find the hotels an aggravating nuisance. They will import for their personal comfort a high class of domestics. They are liked until they get the "hotel fever." That spoils the best of servants. The cottage domestics and the hotel help tell stories of the vast amount of tips they receive. This makes the cottage servants envious. The first opportunity they have of entering the hotel service they accept it and leave the cottager to import a new servant. The visitors in the hotels are mainly responsible for the servant problem in the cottages. They are free and easy with their tips, and money and the servants some times make several times the wages earned in these gifts. It is impossible to convince any servant that cottage life is superior to life in a hotel when more money is to be earned. Likely Mrs. Tower has felt this competition in her efforts to organize her household. Ambassador Tower is expected to visit her before the summer season wanes.

Ventnor Gaining in Importance.

There will be no boardwalk in Ventnor, other than is now in existence this summer. This was the statement of one of the officials. The reason for the suspension of plans is the delay interposed by the riparian commissioners to whom the new city applied for a right of way for its projected esplanade. They have been asking for maps and other things which has delayed the plans to an extent which has forced the new city government to the conclusion that nothing can be done for this summer, but that work on the new structure will be undertaken and put through during the fall and winter.

The fact that the city has at its command considerable money to spend in municipal improvements has created confidence in Ventnor's future, and the city is gaining in population through having lighted streets and promised school facilities and police protection. A half dozen families are to move down there during the course of a few weeks and there are some Atlantic City people in Pleasantville who want to move to Ventnor in preference to being off shore.

Delinquent Taxes an Asset.

Regarding the division of property between the township of Egg Harbor and Ventnor, the city got, in addition to a sprinkling cart, considerable delinquent taxes, which are good assets, and will be collected in due time. From a financial point of view Ventnor is wealthy. It has a large enough revenue to permit payment in cash for such improvements as are needed, to make the city more habitable than it has been throughout the year.

BOSTON GREETS MANY EDUCATORS

25,000 Strangers Gather for Convention of National Educational Association.

MANY TRAINS WERE DELAYED

Unexpected Rush of Traffic Overtaxes the Facilities Provided by the Railroad Companies—Special Services Are Held in All the Churches.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

BOSTON, July 5.—Thousands of educators from all parts of the country reached this city today eager for the great convention of the National Educational association, which begins its annual session here tomorrow. Special trains from the west and from New York rolled into the great terminal stations at frequent intervals all day, and at a late hour tonight all the railroads reported that others were still on the road, many hours behind time, due to the unexpected increase in the number of excursionists over that first provided for by the transportation companies. The system of steering hotelward the incoming visitors was severely taxed. However, it stood the strain to a remarkable degree, assisted in a great measure by the excellent weather and the general good nature of the strangers, notwithstanding their long and tiresome journey.

Those who came yesterday or early this morning spent most of the day in sightseeing, and groups of 20 and 30 were met at frequent intervals, guide books in hand, looking at the different places of historic interest throughout the city. A large number went out into the suburbs on trolley rides, while those from the west seemed particularly eager to get a sight of the ocean, so that all the harbor boats were well patronized. Nearly all the churches held special services during the day and all were well filled.

It was estimated tonight that by the time the first meeting, which begins tomorrow, there will be between 25,000 and 30,000 men and women, closely identified with the different educational institutions in the country, ready to take up the week's work. The convention will open tomorrow with a meeting of the National council at 9:30 a. m. There will be an adjourned meeting of the council at 2:30, followed by a reception to the visiting press representatives at the Boston Press club, and at 5 o'clock the banquet of the American Institute of Instruction to the officers of the association will be given.

The opening of the general session of the convention will be the main feature of the day and will be held in Mechanics hall at 8 o'clock in the evening. The program includes addresses of welcome by Governor Bates, Mayor Collins and President Pritchett of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; responses by Albert G. Lane of Chicago, chairman of the board of trustees, and William T. Harris of the executive committee, and an address by Charles W. Eliot, president of Harvard university and president of the association, who will speak on the "New Definition of the Cultivated Man." Andrew F. West of Princeton will also speak on the "Present Peril of Liberal Education."

COLUMBUS, S. C., July 5.—The military company sent to Norway last night returned today. They had no clash with the negroes and report the town quiet, although some of the citizens there are still apprehensive.

DISAGREE AS TO CAUSE OF DEATH

Hospital Authorities Say Appendicitis; Coroner's Physician Says There Was Assault.

A QUARREL IS HINTED AT

Attempt Made to Throw Mystery About the Death of Walter Emery of Chicago. Coroner Is Making an Investigation.

Walter C. Emery of No. 351 West Adams street, Chicago, died at the West Penn hospital early yesterday morning. The physicians at the hospital say appendicitis caused the man's death. The coroner's physician says that injuries inflicted apparently in an assault produced death. A post-mortem examination was held yesterday, and it is said that it was found that the young man was badly bruised about the body and abdomen. After an investigation it could not be learned where, when or how Emery received his injuries or who inflicted them. Coroner Jesse M. McGeary is still investigating the case.

Emery, with Louis Kohn of No. 566 East Forty-eighth street, Chicago, came to this city from Chicago on June 16. The boys went to the home of their uncle, John Schmidt of No. 3815 Penn avenue, and after remaining there a few days went to the home of Emery's aunt, Mrs. Anna E. Lay of Aspinwall. The boys came here for the purpose of securing employment and were continually going between their relatives' homes.

On June 20 Emery complained of being ill. He could give no reason for his illness. On June 24 he became worse and was removed to the West Penn hospital. Emery's relatives believe he and Kohn had a quarrel with some boys in Penn avenue and refrained from saying anything about it.

The physicians at the hospital on Saturday decided that Emery had appendicitis and operated on him. Early yesterday morning he died. When the boy was taken to the morgue it was found that he had a number of bruises on his stomach and back.

Louis Kohn went to Chicago on the day Emery was taken to the hospital. Coroner McGeary believes that he can tell where Emery received his injuries and whom they quarreled with Emery was 18 years old and was a clerk when employed in Chicago. During the boys' stay in this city they were unable to secure employment.

The physicians at the hospital are positive that Emery died from appendicitis and the coroner's physician is equally certain that his death was due to injuries received in some unknown manner. The boy's mother was notified of his death yesterday.

The boy's relatives are mystified about his death. They say he never told them of having any quarrel during his stay here.

PREACHING AND ART COMBINED BY PRICKETT

LANCASTER, PA., July 5.—(Special.)—The Rev. Samuel Prickett, pastor of Grace Methodist church at Manheim, an artist of marked ability, is now at work on a series of paintings which will be used in illustrating his sermons. The first of these paintings, "Lost in the Storm," was used in the sermon delivered this evening.

BURNING SLACK PILE ALARMED THE HILLTOP

Knoxville People Imagined They Had Been Visited by Great Conflagration When Rain Storm Revived Smouldering Embers.

A burning slack pile at the entrance to the Pittsburgh Coal Company's Saw Mill run mines, under Coal Hill, yesterday caused consternation among the residents of the Thirty-eighth ward and the borough of Knoxville and Monteoth. The mountain of refuse from the pits in McKinley park have been smoldering for more than a year, and the heavy rain yesterday afternoon caused the burning mass to bubble and sputter, emitting a choking vapor and gases that drove some of the people in the vicinity from their homes.

While the rainstorm was at its height the people of Knoxville were alarmed by seeing great clouds of brownish smoke floating from the hollow. It was thought that some frame dwellings had been struck by lightning and half the town's population turned out to form a bucket brigade, if necessary, to check the supposed conflagration. Reaching the hill overlooking the mine the crowd was driven back by the poisonous fumes.

Gas generated by the sudden fury of the fire blew slag and cinders high into the air and the whole hillside had the appearance of the crater of a volcano. A crowd of boys on the opposite hill threw stones into the slack heap and increased the volume of smoke. John Handly, a watchman in McKinley park, ran into the hollow and risking his life in the smothering fumes, drove the boys back. He was armed only with a light cane, but hoist the mischief makers at bay until daylight. A breeze sprang up in the evening and the smoke became less troublesome. Late last night the mass was still burning and today the city fire department will be called out to take measures to check the progress of the fire.

STRONG FEATURES AT THE TRACTION PARKS

Music and Vaudeville Entertained Crowds at Four Healthy Spots.

There were large crowds at the traction parks yesterday and when the rain fell in half shortly before 5 o'clock there was a big rush for the cars. The rain kept the crowds down in the evening.

At Kennywood Rocereto's band gave both concerts, and on the program was a number that kept everybody guessing until after it had started. When that part of the program was reached the crowds were astonished at seeing the different members of the band leave their places, first one by one, then in little groups, until Rocereto was left alone. Then, as if the men had held a hasty conference, all returned to their respective places and the piece wound up with a rousing movement that put everybody in good humor. Signora Rotunai and Schols played a duet on the horn and flute, and William Minto played a trombone solo. Selections from Wagner's compositions were played, as were numerous popular airs.

The Homestead Library band held forth at Calhoun and numerous selections were applauded generously. Mlle. Gertrude St. Clair, who was injured on the Fourth, made a balloon ascension at 4 in the afternoon on a bicycle attached to the balloon. Collins and Reynolds, a team of comedians, and the Ramsey sisters, clever musical comediennes, were special features of the program.

The crowds at Oakwood were entertained by two fine band concerts given by the Second Brigade organization. Bailey's "A Hunting Scene" was well played, and the well-known military descriptive number, "The Fall of Santiago," was given with good effects. One of the numbers consisted of a medley of Irish airs, and it took well. There were a number of popular airs on the list. Andy McLeod, the Irish minstrel, was there, and Dancing Dan Doyle proved himself a clever entertainer. Marion and Dean, a team of up-to-date entertainers, were also on the list.

The Southern park crowds were entertained by good concerts by the Great Western band, under the direction of the veteran leader, B. Wets. Carey's "A Trip Through Dixie," was one of the features of the band program.

ANOTHER BIG DEAL IN COAL LANDS MADE

WASHINGTON, PA., July 5.—(Special.)—Gen. A. J. Warner of Marietta, O., Dawson of Cambridge, O., and C. W. Taylor of Washington, have just closed a deal for 12,000 acres of coal land in Washington county and Brooke and Ohio counties, W. Va., just over the line. In some instances the entire coal rights have been secured, but in the majority of the Pittsburgh vein is included. The land lies in the Buffalo Creek valley. The price paid was $100 an acre.

RUPTURE

Men, Women and Children CURED IN 30 DAYS

I not only effect positive, permanent cures of Rupture in 6 short weeks, but I effect these cures WITHOUT CUTTING, PAIN OR DANGER. I do it without keeping the patient from work. I do it with almost comfort to the patient.

If you will call on me during my CONSULTATION AND FREE EXAMINATION I will show you why current operations are dangerous, and point out the reasons why a truss is harmful and should be worn. Then you and I will talk business where hard working men in the mills and shops of the grand business men have been cured by me after they had trusted to vain years and years to get a cure and even relief from trusses. People called about to risk their lives to the knife, wearing trusses when they can come to my office and receive a positive cure in a few weeks. A cure that will make them as perfect and strong as persons who were never ruptured.

X-RAY EXAMINATION FREE

PILES AND FISTULA CURED IN 10 TO 30 DAYS.

Dr. Brinton, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Dear Sir—Since receiving your treatment I am pleased to state that there is not a sign of the return of either piles or the fistula, and I am satisfied that I am entirely well. This seems almost too good to be true, but I assure you that I feel very kindly toward your treatment for the entire relief it has given me. I tried all the patent pile cures I could find, and had been operated upon for rectal ulcerations nearly two years without getting any very satisfactory results when I began your treatment.

MATERIAL WORLD MADE OVER AGAIN

Dr. Josiah Strong Takes Look Backward to Note Our Advance in 50 Years.

GOD'S HAND IS IN IT ALL

Revolutionary Changes in Religious Thought Will Not Trouble Foundations of Christianity—All Kept in Harmony by Creator.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU.
Public Ledger Building.
PHILADELPHIA, PA., July 5.

A patriotic service, arranged by the Central Young Men's Christian association, was addressed by Dr. Josiah Strong, president of the American Institute of Social Service, this afternoon in Association hall. Special music was furnished by a sextette of trumpets by musicians of the First Regiment band.

"If the signers of the Declaration of Independence had been sent back to participate in last Saturday's celebration of the Fourth of July," Dr. Strong said, "they would have wandered up and down the streets and asked 'where is Philadelphia?' It would have been necessary to assure them that this was the United States.

"Prof. Elliot, addressing Yale students, said recently the world had been made over again in the last 50 years. Some years before the signing of the Declaration of Independence Englishmen were wrestling with the problem of rapid transit, and solved it, they thought, by running a coach between London and Manchester which made the trip in four days and four nights.

"Today, the 'Flying Dutchman' makes a journey more than twice as long—from London to Edinburgh—in eight hours. Benjamin Franklin used to publish news three months old, and call it fresh; today news which happened three days ago is considered old.

"In the matters of transportation, the dissemination of intelligence and modern manufacture, the world has been made over.

"Changes no less revolutionary have taken place in the world of thought and many good men today are troubled lest the old foundations of religion shou d be removed, forgetting that God has made the world of thought, and that the universe is God's mighty organ on which he plays with two hands the great movements in the material world and in the world of thought, making of both one harmony."

MONSTER PICNIC IS WHAT ALL AIM FOR

Bishop Canevin Urges Work for Success of Orphans Affair at Calhoun Park.

If present plans are carried out, the picnic to be given at Calhoun park for the benefit of St. Paul's orphan asylum will be the greatest ever given for this laudable purpose. Extensive arrangements are being made, and nothing will be left undone to have a large crowd and consequently big receipts to be applied to charity.

The Rt. Rev. Regis Canevin, coadjutor bishop, attended the meeting of the picnic managers last night in the Catholic lyceum. He made an address in which he told of the work that is being done at the asylum and praised the men who have been laboring to bring in money for its support. He asked each member of the committee to see the pastor of his church during the coming week and make arrangements to have a deliverance from every pulpit in the diocese next Sunday that will create general interest in the picnic.

The ticket for a trip to Europe was placed in charge of a committee headed by Leopold Vilsack. His assistants are P. J. McNulty, Peter Nolan, Frank K. Lanahan, Harry Frauenheim, Eugene S. Reilly, Thomas Coyle, Albert Loeffler, Jeremiah Dunleavy, Jr., and P. Nauley. They will have a booth on the grounds, where the tickets will be disposed of and the drawing held.

The deed for the lot donated by the Federal Land Company will be prepared in advance, and as soon as the drawing takes place the winner's name will be placed in it and the papers delivered on the grounds. The lot is in the Keating West View plan and is worth $400.

Messrs. Molamphy, Dunn and Dowling reported that they had completed arrangements for disposing of the $250 diamond ring. The drawing will take place at the park on the second day of the picnic, but no tickets will be sold on the grounds on either day.

The women who are to have charge of the booths are requested to meet at Calhoun park at 3 o'clock next Friday afternoon. A committee will be present and the location of the various stands will be decided upon at this time.

Councilman D. F. Crawford was added to the committee on police.

HONORED PLACE GIVEN TO JAPANESE WORKER

Delegates Begin to Assemble at Denver for Y. P. S. C. E. Convention.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]
DENVER, COL., July 5.—Christian Endeavor hosts already have begun to assemble in this city and until next Thursday, when the international biennial convention will open, large delegations from all parts of the country will arrive daily. Plans have been made to care for 25,000 visitors.

Fifteen acres of ground near the City park have been set aside as a convention camp and the general meetings will be held in a large tent, which will give seating room for 10,000. The opening session will be held Thursday, following a meeting of the trustees. Officers for the ensuing two years will be elected. The Rev. Francis E. Clark, who organized the first Christian Endeavor society at Portland, Me., February 22, 1881, will be re-elected president, and W. Shaw, treasurer.

President Clark will open the convention and addresses of welcome will be delivered by Gov. Peabody for the state, and the Rev. Robert F. Coyle for the churches. On Thursday evening President Clark will read his annual address, after which a platform reception will be held by the officers, trustees and state presidents.

The four days following will be crowded with religious services, missionary rallies and addresses on topics of interest to the societies by prominent clergymen and other Christian workers from all parts of the country. The official program gives an honored place to Chuzo Ogawa, of Japan, who will represent officially the Endeavorers of that kingdom.

Vicissitudes of Carbolia.

George Carbolia, in Espien, last night escaped a terrible death under the wheels of a trolley car, and was landed in the borough lockup charged with drunkenness. Carbolia fell in front of an approaching car and was unable to rise. Burgess W. D. Barr and his chief of police dragged the man from the track and placed him in a cell for safekeeping.

CHURCH TO STAY ON THE CORNER

Older Members Defeat Project to Move German United Evangelical Lutheran Edifice.

LAUER'S BID WAS REJECTED

Proposed to Erect a Twelve-Story Office Building at Sixth Avenue and Smithfield Street—Other Property to Be Released in September.

After an exciting session of almost two hours the congregation of the German United Evangelical Lutheran church yesterday afternoon voted unanimously to keep the church building at Smithfield street and Sixth avenue and to reject all bids to lease the corner for an office building. The proposition, which had been under consideration for many months, was to move the church to Smithfield street and Strawberry alley and to lease the balance of the ground, between Strawberry alley and Sixth avenue, a frontage of about 185 feet on Smithfield street.

Four bids, received by a special committee, were submitted to the congregation yesterday. The highest bid was presented by Architect F. C. Sauer, who is supposed to be acting for other parties. Mr. Sauer's bid was the only one considered. He wanted to lease the corner at Sixth avenue and Smithfield street for 80 years, with a possible extension to 99 years, upon the following terms:

A Progressive Rental.

For the first 10 years he would pay a yearly rental of $20,000; for the next 15 years, $25,000; for the next 15 years, $30,000, and for the next 10 years, which completed the 50 years, $35,000; for the 25 years following, $40,000, and for the last 24 years, $45,000. Mr. Sauer offered to build an entirely new church building for the congregation at Smithfield street and Strawberry alley, without galleries, using the windows and organ of the old church. He stated that an office building of steel frame, of at least 12 stories, would be erected on the ground now occupied by the church.

The defeat of the project to move the church was due to the efforts of the older members of the congregation, who bitterly opposed the scheme. They argued that the present site was so much superior to the proposed new location that the church would be greatly injured by the change. Speeches in favor of retaining the church building on the present site were greeted with loud applause. John Dimling spoke in favor of the plan to move the church, but he was decidedly in the minority.

Another Proposition Considered.

Another motion was adopted to release the property belonging to the church, between the church building and Strawberry alley, and to hold a meeting of the congregation in September for that purpose. This property now brings the congregation a yearly rental of about $18,000 and it is the opinion of the members that it ought to yield more revenue. It was argued it ought to produce as much money as offered by Architect Sauer for the Sixth avenue corner. Nearly all the tenants on the church property are members of the congregation and it was claimed yesterday that some of them had been sitting on the committees that had reported adversely to moving the church. Mr. Dimling protested against tenants acting on committees.

Charles Guenther, who has been secretary of the congregation for 15 years, announced yesterday that he intended to resign.

The Rev. Gustave Brobst of Carthage, O., who has been selected as assistant to the Rev. Frederick Ruoff, the pastor, conducted his first service in the church yesterday. He will be installed next Sunday.

DR. MAZZONI DESCRIBES CONDITION OF THE POPE

Illustrious Patient Inclined to Dispute With Physicians Concerning Treatment.

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]
ROME, July 5.—The Associated Press correspondent saw Dr. Mazzoni this afternoon on his return fom consultation at Pope Leo's bedside. The doctor said:

"The situation this time is certainly really grave, in view of the great age of the patient and his state of extreme weakness. However, the case is not yet desperate, and especially with a man having such unexpected reserves of energy and vitality which at the age of 93 is indeed astonishing. The exact definition of the pope's illness is senile dynamic pneumonia, but his holiness has not the least idea that he is attacked by any organic disease. In fact, he was not in bed when I went to the vatican, but was seated in his usual arm chair where I am accustomed to see him every time I visit the palace. He believes that the oppression on his chest and the accompanying difficulty of breathing are merely the results of extreme weakness. As soon as he saw me, his holiness repeatedly requested me to turn my attention to the best means of restoring his strength, which he said was all he required, except a little fresh air. Now and then the pope has recourse to his inveterate habit of snuff taking, saying that he finds it very refreshing.

"The weakness of the patient's pulse and his short and irregular breathing gradually approaching to gasping, are the only external symptoms of any serious nature, but, as I said before, the pope this morning was full of spirit and would not take a grave view of his own case. When I left him his holiness said: 'Come again soon. I will try to give you a better reception.'"

BLESSED THE BELLS.

New Chimes in McKees Rocks German Catholic Church Fittingly Installed.

The elaborate service of the blessing of the bells was observed yesterday afternoon in the McKees Rocks German Catholic church upon the installation of a new set of chimes recently donated to the congregation. The largest bell weighs two tons and the others graduate in size down to the smallest "silver" bells. The doners are Peter Herrly, John and Peter Yunker, the Rev. C. F. Tener, the Rev. Lucas May and Mrs. Mary Hufnagel.

The Rev. Father Joseph Suehr of the East End led the procession of choir boys from the sacristry to the front of the church, where, by special delegation of the bishop, he blessed the bells. The procession then proceeded to the altar of the church and the Rev. Father Herman Goebel delivered an eloquent address in German. Following this was the benediction and blessed sacrament by Father Suehr. The services closed with the singing of the "Te Deum."

KILLS HIS WIFE AT SUMMER HOME

Adolph Dahlem Then Kills Himself and Bodies Are Found On Porch.

FAMILY QUARREL IS CAUSE

Independent Income of Wife Believed to Have Led to Tragedy in Suburb of Philadelphia—Niece Discovers the Victims.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., July 5.

The motive that led Adolph Dahlem to murder his wife, Sophia, the sister of G. A. Muller, president of the Bergner and Engle Brewing Company, and then commit suicide in their summer home at Byberry on Saturday, will probably never be known, but the police think that the tragedy was preceded by a quarrel, as when last seen alive Dahlem was quarreling with his wife. That morning Dahlem talked to several persons about trouble with his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Dahlem lived during the winter in their town house at 2002 Spring Garden street. On Friday night they decided to go out to their summer home at Gravel pike and Knights road, on an estate that had been in Mrs. Dahlem's family for years. But when they got to Torresdale they found no carriage waiting to take them to the cottage, three miles away, and returned to the city.

Saturday morning they started for the country again, taking with them five pieces of hand baggage and some cooked victuals. On the way out Dahlem got off the car line ending at Frankford, where the Torresdale line begins, and went into the fruit and confectionery store of Frank Duree. Duree asked Dahlem if he was not feeling well.

"No, I'm not well," Dahlem replied, "I have had some trouble."

Duree said he was surprised, and Dahlem continued:

"I've had a lot of trouble at home with my wife. She said I stole $10 from her pocketbook, and we've quarreled. I would have stolen the whole business if I could have laid my hands on it."

Dahlem bought some cigars and then went to the Red Lion inn, on the other side of the county line, in Bucks county, where his wife was waiting for him. Samuel Rankin drove them over to the little frame house used as their summer home.

On the way over, Rankin told the police, Dahlem was in a quarrelsome mood.

Three hours later Miss Anna Walther, a niece of Mrs. Dahlem, accompanied by Dr. F. L. Kanaga, arrived at the house to spend the Fourth of July with her aunt.

Miss Walther ran up the walk, telling Dr. Kanaga to wait at the gate until she informed her aunt of the doctor's presence. At the front door she found her aunt lying face downwards upon the floor, her head extended beyond the door frame, with two bullet wounds in her body. She was dead, and lying by her side with a revolver in his hand was the body of Dahlem.

"Dahlem was an architect by profession," said Mr. Muller last night, "and was a young man of ability and promise. He was only 32 years old, and was for a time in the employ of the Bergner & Engel Brewing Company. In this way he got into the saloon business temporarily at Eighth and Sansom streets. About eight years ago he married my sister, Sophia, against the wishes of her family. She had a comfortable income and this proved his ruin. He would do no work, began to drink in excess and became what might be called an alcoholic degenerate. He had been under treatment for alcoholism a score of times."

BRAKE FAILS TO WORK.

One Man Killed and Another Suffers Broken Leg in Street Railway Accident.

MARINE CITY, MICH., July 5.—As a result of a rear-end collision on the rapid railway, an interurban electric line, three miles from here, early this evening, one man was so seriously crushed that he died a short time after.

The dead man's name is George Oxford and his residence is given as Sombrae township, Ontario. John Brabmer of this city, escaped with a broken leg.

Both men were standing on the platform of the forward car. The accident is said to have resulted from brakes failing to work.

DISCOURAGED ARTIST PUTS END TO TROUBLE

NEW HAVEN, CONN., July 5.—(Special.)—Discouraged on account of financial straits and because a work of art upon which he based his hopes of fame and fortune had failed to win expected award, John Donahue, a sculptor of New York city, shot and killed himself Thursday morning at Whitneyville, a suburb of this city. Today a man who said he was Donahue's nearest friend identified the remains.

NEW CASTLE ESCAPES WITHOUT AN ACCIDENT

NEW CASTLE, PA., July 5.—(Special.)—The Fourth of July passed off in this city without a single mishap or accident of any kind. While the demonstration of patriotism was noisy, it was harmless. While the police prohibited the use of cannon crackers and fireworks in the principal streets, dynamite canes and other forms of noise making were not interfered with, and a perfect pediam resulted until late last night. There were only two fire alarms, and neither resulted in any loss.

REPUBLICAN CONFEREES HAVE BIG TASK AHEAD

The Republican conferees in the Twenty-fourth congressional district will hold another meeting at the Hotel Henry next Saturday afternoon to decide upon the method of making nominations for their representative in congress. The district embraces Washington, Lawrence and Beaver counties, and the conferees have a heavy task upon their hands.

YOUNG MANIAC KEPT CHAINED TO FLOOR

CANAL DOVER, O., July 5.—Bert Dickson, the insane man who shot his father, ex-Coroner James Dickson, to death last Friday afternoon, has been taken back to his home and chained to the floor. He will be kept there for 17 days, until all danger of smallpox, with which his father was suffering and to which he has been exposed, has passed. As soon after that as possible he will be turned over to the probate court at New Philadelphia.

Texas Boy Kills Father.

DALLAS, TEX., July 5.—L. A. Moore, secretary of the city of Dallas, was shot and almost instantly killed this evening by his son, Ernest, aged 22. Moore, it is alleged, had been drinking and had attacked his younger son, the other son, Ernest, was remonstrating with the father who turned upon him, when the son fired the fatal shot.

ANXIETY INTENSE AT PAPAL PALACE

Church Dignitaries Coming and Going Constantly in Search of News.

TELEGRAMS ARE POURING IN

Great Crowds Surround the Vatican, All Entrances to Which Are Barred By Swiss Guard in Splendid Uniforms. Cardinal Oreglia Keeps Well Informed.

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]
ROME, July 5.—In these days when the life of the venerable pontiff, Pope Leo, hangs by a thread, the excitement and perturbation which prevails within the vatican is intense. While the illustrious patient lies in a quiet chamber, assiduously and affectionately watched and attended by his favorite physician, Dr. Lapponi, and his trusted valet, Piocentra, the rest of the vast palace is in a state of continual unrest.

Telegrams are following each other in quick succession from foreign powers, high church dignitaries or individuals, and are being read and answered by a busy staff of secretaries. Carriages are driving up incessantly to the court of St. Damaso, in which the apartments of the pope open. Ecclesiastical dignitaries of various ranks are standing in an axious crowd about the doors of the palace in the hope of obtaining the latest news. Monsignors are hurrying to and from the palace, all making anxious inquiries. All sorts and conditions of men are waiting about the doors or in the vast plazza in front of St. Peter's, seeking scraps of intelligence.

The Swiss guards in their brilliant black, red and yellow uniforms, are pacing up and down before the portals, receiving the eager inquiries with their customary imperturbable calmness.

Cardinal Oreglia di Santo Stefano first sent his secretary this morning to inquire and look for the appointment which his eminence, in his capacity as camerlingo, will occupy after the demise of the pope, when he will take the reins of the pontifical power during the interregnum. Later the cardinal himself went to the vatican and had a long conversation with Cardinal Rampolla. It seems that Cardinal Oreglia will choose as his apartment the rooms next to the hall in which the pope usually receives the congratulations of the cardinals and which is called the loggia of Raphael, from the name of the painter. If the condition of Pope Leo shall become much worse Cardinal Oreglia will sleep in the vatican tonight. Many members of the diplomatic corps called today on Cardinal Rampolla, including the French ambassador, all anxiously asking for the latest news. Baron von Botherham, the Prussian minister, showed Cardinal Rampolla a telegram from the German emperor expressing his majesty's deepest regret on learning of the pontiff's illness, and the hope of a speedy recovery and asking to be kept continually informed by telegraph about the condition of his holiness.

Cardinals Gotti, prefect of the propaganda, and Di Pietro, the prodatary, had long interviews with Cardinal Rampolla. A fact significant of the anxiety pervading the officials at the vatican, as well as the sacred college, is that Marquis Sacchetti, the high steward of the palace, with his son as coadjutor, and Commendator Mannucci, who directs the temporal affairs of the vatican, are continually in attendance, the last named having the responsibility of the preparations regarding the summoning of a conclave in the event of the pope's death. Monsignor Piffert, the Augustinian monk, who holds the office of confessor to the pontiff, and Cardinal Serafino Vannutelli, the grand penitentiary, have been requested to keep themselves in readiness to be called if Pope Leo's illness takes a still more serious turn. Cardinal Serafino Vannutelli's office consists of administering the last communion to the dying pontiff.

HORSE FAILS TO JUMP.

Rider Is Thrown Over Animal's Head and Is Seriously Injured.

NEW YORK, July 5.—While schooling a three-year-old horse to take a hedge jump on his farm at Hempstead, L. I., today James L. Kernochan was thrown over the animal's head and seriously injured.

The horse had taken several of the jumps in good style, but at the Cedar barrier stumbled. Mr. Kernochan fell clear of the horse, but fell on his head. He sustained a severe scalp wound, and it is feared his skull is fractured.

Owing to the state of Mr. Kernochan's health previous to the accident the attending physician fears for the outcome of the accident.

THREE PERSONS WERE SHOT IN HOMESTEAD

Injuries Attended a Strenuous Celebration of the Fourth of July---An Aged Man Suffers Peculiar Mishap.

Homestead's strenuous celebration of the glorious Fourth resulted in three persons being wounded by revolver bullets and an aged man, who was returning from a holiday visit, was badly injured by the falling of a porch. One of the victims may die.

Michael Grashy, a bartender at the Hotel Norosky, Homestead, was shot in the shoulder late Saturday evening by a careless patriot on the street. The ball crashed through the plate glass window in front of the hotel while the man was at work. The wound is not dangerous.

Alice Uelson, a waitress in the restaurant of Levi Emler at Ann street and Sixth avenue, was shot in the leg between the knee and hip while passing along the street near the restaurant. The girl is about 22 years of age and states that she did not see anyone in sight when the shooting occurred. The ball penetrated to a considerable depth and she was removed to the Mercy hospital yesterday.

John Chusick of Sixth avenue was shot in the knee late Saturday night by a fellow countryman named Antony Shalosal. The shot was evidently accidental and at very close range. The missile entered the knee of the victim and passed under a portion of the knee cap. On account of the delicate position of the shot it is regarded as serious and possibly fatal. The injured man was taken to his home on Sixth avenue and Shalosal is being held at the lockup to await the extent of his victim's injuries.

William McArthurs, an aged resident of Twelfth avenue, Homestead, yesterday was injured seriously by the falling of the porch columns and roof at his home. He with a number of relatives had returned from visiting friends in the country and as they stepped on the porch, the posts beneath gave way, coming down on the old man and breaking his collar bone, one rib, and dislocating his shoulder.

HANNA DISCARDS BUSINESS CARES

Disposes of Immense Interests to Devote His Time to His Political Career.

NOW HAS TIME FOR VACATION

Pittsburgh Coal Company, the Steel Corporation and the Cleveland Electric Railway Company Have Acquired His Coal, Iron and Traction Properties.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]
CLEVELAND, July 5.—No better evidence of the fact that Senator Hanna intends to make the most vigorous fight of his entire political career this fall may be had than the fact that he has practically disposed of his business affairs in such a way as to leave himself care free. His steamship lines, his iron ore lines, his coal mines and last, but not least, his street railways, have been disposed of so effectually that he could not only take a two weeks' vacation but one lasting 10 years or more, without any thought as to how they would be conducted during his absence. In fact, as it was stated today, the only tangible property possessed at the present time by the M. A. Hanna Company is the office furniture on the sixth floor of the Perry Paine building, where they have their offices.

For a long time the business affairs of Senator Hanna have been a source of worry to him. It has been his ambition to devote all of his time to public affairs and even though his business enterprises were varied and important he has yearned for the freedom which would enable him to leave the details of business to others. Since 1895, when he became active in politics, he has carried a double burden. His political career alone was sufficient to any ordinary man, but on top of this he had a thousand and one details to look after in connection with his private business. His business interests were vast.

There were coal mines in bituminous regions; there were iron ore mines in the great ranges of the north; there were steamships to carry the ore from the upper lakes and there were furnaces where the ore was smelted to pig iron. Then there were a number of banks in Cleveland in which he accepted the position of director. There were a number of smaller commercial and industrial enterprises among his vast resources and finally there was the Cleveland City Railway Company.

The iron ore business of M. A. Hanna & Co., together with the steamship lines and the Hanna furnaces, were disposed of to the United States Steel Corporation, his coal mines to the Pittsburgh Coal Company and his street railways, as has been stated, to the Cleveland Electric Railway Company.

PUBLIC ENTHUSIASM THE MISSING FACTOR

Wall Street Developments Foreshadow No Enduring Change in the Character of the Market for Some Time to Come.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, July 5.—Nothing developed during the week in Wall street which foreshadows an immediate change of enduring character in the speculative security market. Efforts made to stimulate activity, predicted upon the highly gratifying outcome of the Pennsylvania stock subscription and certain other favorable factors, failed utterly to arouse any public enthusiasm and ended merely in revealing the fact that the future is regarded as too uncertain to inspire confident buying either of bonds or stocks. On the other hand, however, adverse developments, such as were contained in the sorry exhibition made by a number of industrial corporations, was followed by no manifestation of public disquietude. There was no liquidation worthy of the name, the late selling in the market representing nothing more than the closing out of unprofitable bargains by the professional element.

In several particulars the fundamental situation showed improvement and to a degree sufficiently pronounced to furnish more encouragement for the future of industrial development. The chief consideration of all, the outcome of the crops, contains many uncertainties. But aside from the backwardness of corn and cotton the situation is better. There is an assurance of a satisfactory wheat crop, and if through abundant yield or some other fortuitous development prices for this cereal can be held within reasonable bounds and wild speculative adventures checked there is hope of liberal export shipments. Of these the country stands in great need, to repair some of the ravages wrought by extravagant imports, inordinate borrowing from abroad, and the buying at ridiculously high prices of stocks and depreciated articles which Europe had for sale.

Aside from the delay attendant upon the growth of corn and cotton, there is less occasion for alarm over the crop outcome than seemed possible only a few weeks ago. It is not in the order of things to expect bumper yields of either staple, for both have had much to contend with. A late season is rarely ever a good season, and with corn and cotton reported in various districts delayed from two to four weeks, the likelihood of damage by frost before maturity is heightened and the anxiety over the final outcome is accentuated and prolonged.

Were other things equal speculative Wall street might extract more comfort from improvement in crop conditions than it otherwise can. Few men with a knowledge of the mischief which has been done in recent years through the schemes of overcapitalization, the transference of floating into fixed capital, the conversion of stocks into bonds on the basis of two for one, and all the other phases of unsound finance to which the country has been treated, believe that one satisfactory crop season can repair the damage to credit, much less provide the surplus funds necessary for a sustained speculative movement for the advance. Some improvement might reasonably be expected, as a natural rebound, from the long period of depression or as the outcome of purely professional or manipulative movements devised for the purpose of unloading stocks on the public. There are, however, too many skeletons in the closet, some of which revealed themselves during the week and others of which are still undisclosed, to give complete assurance that all the wreckage has been swept away and resdjustment made complete.

In the Oil Fields

Field developments in the lower southwest during the past week were not marked by any new or startling discoveries in any quarter. The drill is unusually busy in every quarter in the effort to increase the production. In many of the old districts in West Virginia, where operations have been practically abandoned for a number of years, new work has been started again. Some of the districts have but one or more wells under way, but in the aggregate they form a considerable part of the whole. While this class of work swells the total of completed work, it furnishes but a small amount of new production. It, however, is the last resort in old territory.

In the recently discovered extensions to the deep-sand developments in Wetzel county, W. Va., there is great activity, and the result is very satisfactory, as shown by the completed wells. From this source comes the largest amount of new production, and if the result of this class of work was less remunerative, the volume of new production recorded at the end of each month would make a very poor showing. At best these districts, with the exception of the Pine Grove extension, in Wetzel county, are able to do no more than supplant the decline in production of the older wells. The Folsom district, the most pretentious discovery of the past year, is scarcely able to maintain its production at a given point, and for several months it has been weakening in new production. Occasionally a good well is drilled in, but the majority for some time have been light, and dusters have had a considerable part in the new operations.

To the northeast of the Pine Grove extension in Wetzel county the outlook for good producers is very encouraging. The South Penn Oil Company's gusher on the Showalter farm, after a two weks' trial has proved to be the best producer discovered during the year and makes those holding leases in that locality feel very confident. When first drilled in this well started at 50 barrels an hour, and there was some speculation as to how it would stand the test when it had been producing for several days or weeks. It will be recalled that the South Penn Company's test on the Jesse Talkington farm in the Folsom district was a quitter, and the showing at the start was as good or better than the Showalter gusher. At the end of the second week the last named well was producing at the rate of 600 barrels a day and showing no signs of weakening. There is no longer any doubt but the Pine Grove extension will now be united with the old Rocky Run development to the northeast, forming a continuous line of producing wells, beginning at the southwest and extending to the northeast for a distance of 10 miles or more.

On the west side of the extension the South Penn's test on the Lemasters farm, located about two miles in advance of developments, is a good producer at the end of four weeks and makes the outlook almost as encouraging in that direction.

In the Big Injun sand development on Fallen Timber run, in the same county, there is a little better prospect for some new production. The Mellon & Co. well on the Ice farm is producing 200 barrels a day and is the best well that has been found in that district. The initial well, Z. T. Francis No 1, has been and is still a very good producer. Operations in this district are increasing, and the same can be said of the territory lying southwest of Littleton.

In the Big Injun sand development on Fallen Timber run, in the same county, there is a little better prospect for some new production. The Mellon & Co. well on the Ice farm is producing 200 barrels a day and is the best well that has been found in that district. The initial well, Z. T. Francis No 1, has been and is still a very good producer. Operations in this district are increasing, and the same can be said of the territory lying southwest of Littleton.

In the Ritchie county operations are still very active, but there is less work of an experimental nature than several months ago.

South of the Whisky Run extension, the Carter Oil Company drilled in a test well on the J. J. Mahaney farm that started at 1,100 barrels a day and makes room for one or more locations in the pool. Shooting the old producers in this district is necessary to keep them going. It only helps them temporarily, and then the dose must be repeated.

In Wood and Pleasants counties more work is now starting than at any time since last year. Neither county has any new pools and the new work consists of drilling on the outer edges of the old pools or putting down additional wells where there is room inside of the defined limits.

Nothing has come of the effort to open new producing territory outside of the old producing districts, and there is still much work of this kind doing in Calhoun, Roane and Jackson counties. The gas companies are getting Mayfield, Bennett and Braxton counties, and, while they have been quite successful in their search for gas, none have made any new oil discoveries in these counties. It was thought that those interested in this class of work might locate some new pools of oil outside of the old developments.

In Wirt county operators are having fairly good success in developing the shallow sand territory in the Burning Springs district. The wells are small, but it is not expensive drilling.

On the Ohio side operators are very busy developing the old and searching for new pools. The new discovery near Woodfield, Monroe county, is growing in activity and promises to become one of the most active developments on the Ohio side. In completed work the shallow sand territory in Washington and Morgan counties is in the lead. Noble county is another that is forging to the front. The producing territory is extending to the west and new pools are found on that side of the pool. Parker & Edwards have recently completed a 50-barrel producer on the Schott farm.

In the new development on Sheets and Rays runs, in Washington county, another good producer was completed during the week and the outlook for considerable new production from this district is encouraging.

Near Barnesville, Belmont county, there is more work under way than at any time during the year. The Uniontown development in the same county has been pretty fully defined, but is still active.

The Plum Run district in Harrison, and the Knoxville pool in Jefferson county are in very much the same condition. Extensions can scarcely be expected in either pool, but there is still room for a number of wells inside of defined limits, and it is this class of work that is now claiming attention.

IN JAIL FOR MURDER.

Grand Jury to Consider Cases of Persons Charged With Capital Offense.

Notwithstanding the hot weather, the present grand jury will have to get down to work again this morning to consider a supplemental jail calendar. Eleven persons are charged with murder, among them Charles Cawley, the Homestead boy who nearly wiped out his entire family. Some of these cases were on the last jail calendar, but were not reached.

In addition to Cawley, these persons are charged with murder: John Crosby, Nicholas Glazner, William L. Hartley, I. V. Hoag, William Szwabowski, William Young, Albert Dobrydrio, William G. Rees, William Davis, William O. Willhouse.

Other prisoners in jail charged with more or less serious offenses number 78.

Good News Awaits Mrs. Enderson.

Superintendent of Police John P. McTighe is anxious to learn the address of Mrs. Emma D. Enderson, formerly of Jefferson county, Tex. She left there three years ago, but is known to have been in this city two weeks ago. The superintendent has some information that is of value to her.

Looking for John Rogan's Friends.

The police were asked by telegraph yesterday to locate the friends of John Rogan, who was killed by falling from a train at Thomasboro, Mo., Saturday. He was employed by the Walter L. Main circus.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF MARKET PRICES

Weaker Hay and Grain Situation—All Produce Easier. Pure Lard Lower.

During the past week there was a decidedly easier feeling in the hay situation, and quotations for all grades declined. Receipts were more liberal than they had been for some time, while demand showed some falling off. Straw was stronger, with higher prices ruling for rye. Oats receded from the advance position taken a week ago, and while declines occurred, the market closing on Friday fully 2 cents below prices ruling last Monday. Shelled corn is unchanged, while ear is easier, with lower quotations prevailing. Millfeed is weak, and quotations for white middlings and bran both declined. Rye is steady, only two cars arriving during the week.

Easier wheat conditions through the west brought about changed conditions in the flour market, although there was no decline in nominal quotations except in a few instances where jobbers had followed the market very closely and had put figures up beyond their competitors. At present it looks as though there might be some weakening in mill prices if there is a continued decline in the price of wheat, or to affect speculative prices of wheat, which will have some influence upon cash purchases. Coffee is firmer in primal markets, although the local spot situation remains as at the opening of the week. Sugar is unchanged locally. During the week the Arbuckles refinery reduced prices 5 points, but this was not followed by the Spreckels refinery, as was at first promises to become one of the most active developments on the Ohio side. In completed work the shallow sand territory in Washington and Morgan counties is in the lead. Noble county is another that is forging to the front. The producing territory is extending to the west and new pools are found on that side of the pool. Parker & Edwards have recently completed a 50-barrel producer on the Schott farm.

Butter, cheese and eggs are firm, and prices have changed but little. Canned goods show no actual change in quotations, although corn is very firm, some packers having withdrawn quotations for futures, while tomatoes are very weak both for spot and future, prices just about holding their own. Seeded raisins are slightly higher.

Clover and timothy seed are firm, and prices have changed but little.

Good growing weather has had its effect on the produce market, and the trend of quotations has been downward. Old potatoes are about gone, with fresh most very plentiful and offering for sale. New potatoes, while still clinging to high prices, are easier than they were at the opening of the week. New Orleans onions have gone down. Cucumbers, both home and southern, are lower. Beets, parsley, radishes and carrots are more plentiful and lower in price. Florida celery is a poor seller, and prices are down. Egg plant is cheaper. Tomatoes have had a week of great plenty, and quotations have ruled very low. Home string beans are on the market, and southern beans are plentiful at lower prices than ruled during the week. Asparagus is out of the market. Peas are coming more freely and are cheaper. Berries of all kinds have ruled fairly firm all week, and prices do not show a great deal of change, although the general direction is downward. Watermelons are unchanged. Cantaloupes held steady all week until Saturday, when they advanced. California cherries are scarce and higher, while apricots are much lower.

Creamery butter declined one cent a pound last Monday, since which time the market has been firmer. Cheese has maintained its position taken a week ago, and while declines occurred, the market closing on Friday fully 2 cents below prices ruling last Monday. Shelled corn is unchanged, while ear is easier, with lower quotations prevailing. Millfeed is weak, and quotations for white middlings and bran both declined. Rye is steady, only two cars arriving during the week.

SCHENLEY RESEMBLED AN OLD BATTLEFIELD

Debris Caused by the Fourth Celebration Will Be Cleaned Up Today.

Like an abandoned battlefield Schenley park lay strewn yesterday with the debris of Pittsburgh's official celebration of the glorious Fourth. Waste paper, empty luncheon boxes, tattered handkerchiefs, broken canes, shattered firecrackers and hundreds of other remnants were left as mementoes of Saturday's big "throng. A few of the refreshment stands have been removed, but the general work of cleaning up will begin today.

Yesterday afternoon's rainstorm will do much in preserving the growth of grass which was trampled down under thousands of feet, and Park Superintendent George W. Burke says that in a week the green sward will be as attractive as ever. The flowers suffered little and the task of cleaning the park will be small compared with the same work last year.

The usual Sunday crowd did not turn out yesterday. A few visited the Carnegie institute and the conservatory, but the people seemed weary after their strenuous exertions of the previous day and lingered but a short time. A crowd of boys went to the park early to gather up stray coins which had dropped around the refreshment stands, but got little reward. The largest piece of money found was a quarter, and the juvenile searchers soon gave up their work in disgust.

Convenient Location.

The United States National Bank is open for business in its new quarters, 503 Market st. An inspection of the new home is invited.

The Three Rivers

CINCINNATI, O., July 5.—The stage of the river is 6.8 ft. at sunset, 57 degs. and rising, following a rise of 2.4 feet during the past 24 hours. Weather clear and hot. The City of Louisville made two trips out of here and was loaded to her limit with excursionists to south Ohio river points. The Hudson, which has arrived there, including the W. W. O'Neil, Tornado, Ranger, Pablo, D. M. Finch, Little Fred, Jim Wood, Jim Brown and Joe Cook. The J. M. Lewis arrived from the Kanawha. The W. W. O'Neil, Jim Cook, Mariner, Pablo were sent south with their tows. The others returned with empties. The Boaz passed up at noon with empties for Pittsburgh.

POINT PLEASANT.—River 8 feet and falling. Heavy rain. Up, Charles Brown, T. N. Pitt.

STEUBENVILLE.—River 6 feet 6 inches and falling. Raining. Darling down, 2:30, Up, Voyager, 5 a. m.; Ben Hur, 8:30 a. m.; S. W. Tobbins, 9:30 a. m.; Kanawha, 11:30 a. m.; Crystal State, 1 p. m.

WARREN.—River .9 foot.

OIL CITY.—River 1 foot 10 inches and rising.

GALLIPOLIS.—River 8 feet 5 inches and falling. Heavy showers.

PARKERSBURG.—River 9 feet and rising. Heavy rain. Up, Hudson, at 8 p. m. and barge for Wheeling at 4 a. m. Heavy rains are reported throughout this part of the valley. Communication with the Little Kanawha valley is cut off by the storm this afternoon. Logs in the river are preparing for big runouts. All side streams are rising.

At 9 o'clock last night the marks on the gauge at the Point showed that the river had risen to a stage of 8.8 feet, and the river was rising again.

NEW TOWBOAT CRUSADER.

Experiment to Be Made in Tubular Boilers in Local Steamer.

A new towboat will be started today on the Elizabeth marine ways for the Monongahela Consolidated Coal & Coke Company. She will be named the Crusader. Two tubular boilers are being built at the Rowe iron works, and they will be the first boilers of this kind ever placed on a towboat in these waters. The Rowe iron works built the big Sprague. This boat will take the place of the Little Dick, which will be dismantled.

The Crusader's boilers have cylinders 13 inches in circumference and a four-foot stroke. It is expected that with these new boilers she will be able to carry 250 pounds of steam, which is 100 pounds more steam than those of the Little Dick. Towboats of this type are seldom licensed to carry more than 150 pounds of steam. She will be 175 feet long and 32 feet deep, with a depth of four feet. This is somewhat of an experiment and if it is successful she will be the fastest pool boat on the Ohio rivers.

ARRIVED.

J. C. Woodward, Morgantown.

DEPARTED.

Columbia, Atlantic, Morgantown.

NOTES OF THE RIVER.

The most large excursions were run yesterday on the Monongahela river.

The Ben Hur from Parkersburg and the Kanawha from Charleston are due to arrive this morning with their usual amount of land people.

The Keystone State is the down-river packet today. She was due to arrive from Cincinnati during the night, and will leave at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Come waters down today, July 12, a hearing on establishing Harlan Rock from Hawks Island dam to Lock No. 5, near Osborn, Pa., will be held before Capt. William L. Sibert, Board United States engineer.

Judy is starting well in the matter of supplying lots of rain for the rivers. They have been falling steadily for the past week, but the heavy rains of Saturday and Sunday will raise the rivers and keep a good packet stage for some time.

NOVEL ENTERTAINMENT AT WASHINGTON HOME

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(Special.)—Quite an novel in conception as it was gracious in spirit was the entertainment given by Mrs. Alfred Barnes at her new home in Sherman circle this afternoon. Every workman who had been employed on the beautiful building, with his wife or daughters, was invited to come and enjoy her hospitality in an informal way and inspect the general effect of their interior finish with its rare collection of art treasures from many lands.

W. K. VANDERBILT HURT BY AUTOMOBILE MISHAP

PARIS, July 5.—(Special Cable.)—W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., is confined to his bed at the Hotel Ritz as a result of a serious automobile accident which occurred Friday while he was touring near Paris. It appears that something went wrong with the machine and Vanderbilt got down to investigate. While he was lying in the road partly under the machine there was a sudden flash and an explosion.

CANADA IS GOOD CUSTOMER OF OURS

Exports From United States to the Dominion $125,000,000 in 1903.

ARE STEADILY INCREASING

Manufactures of Iron and Steel, Coal, Breadstuffs, Raw Cotton and Manufactures of Cotton Are the Principal Articles—The Treasury Figures.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
WASHINGTON, D. C., July 5.

Exports from the United States to Canada in the fiscal year just ended show a larger total than in any preceding year. Eleven months' figures just completed by the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce show that the increase in exports to British North America has been $12,000,000 in the 11 months of 1903, compared with the corresponding months of the preceding year, and indicate that the increase for the entire fiscal year will be something more than $12,000,000. This is a larger increase than in any year in the history of our commerce with Canada, except 1896, when the increase was slightly greater than that of the last fiscal year.

Under the term British North America the bureau of statistics group Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba and the Northwest territory; Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward island; Newfoundland, Labrador and British Columbia. By far the most important of these groups, commercially, is Quebec, Ontario, etc., the exports from the United States to which form 80 per cent of the total exports to British North America, and it is in the exports to those provinces that the chief growth has occurred. During the 11 months, ending with May, the total value of exports to Quebec, Ontario, etc., was $98,000,000 against $87,000,000 in the corresponding months of the preceding year; to Nova Scotia, etc., the total was $7,000,000 against $5,500,000 in the 11 months of 1902; to British Columbia, $3,500,000, compared with $7,000,000 in the corresponding months of the preceding year; to Newfoundland and Labrador, $2,500,000 against a little less than $2,000,000 in the same months of 1902.

Total of Exports to Canada.

The total exports to British North America from the United States for the full fiscal year seem likely to be about $123,000,000, against $112,000,000 in 1902, $107,000,000 in 1901 and $97,000,000 in 1900.

Not only has the growth in exports from the United States to Canada been greater in the year just ended than in any preceding year, with a single exception, but that growth has been greater than to any other country except Germany. To Germany the increase in the 11 months of 1903, for which figures are now available, was $21,000,000, to Mexico the increase was $2,000,000, to Argentina, $1,500,000; to all of South America, $2,500,000, and to all of Africa, $4,000,000. Thus the actual increase in our exportations to Canada in the fiscal year just ended will be greater than to any country except Germany.

Meantime the imports into the United States from Canada have grown, but not with equal rapidity. The total imports for the year just ended will amount to about $56,000,000, against a total of $48,000,000 imported from British North America in the fiscal year 1902. Comparing 1903 with 1893, the growth will amount to about $17,000,000, the total imports from British North America for 1893 having been about $38,000,000, while the growth in our exports to British North America during that same period will be about $77,000,000. Thus, the total exports to British North America from the United States are a little more than double the imports into the United States from that section, and the growth in exports between 1893 and 1903 has been twice as great as the growth of imports.

Articles of Export.

The most important articles which form that exportation of $125,000,000 to British North America are, stating them in the relative order of values: Manufactures of iron and steel, coal, breadstuffs, raw cotton, manufactures of cotton, agricultural implements, chemicals, lumber and manufactures of wood.

The following table shows the total exports from the United States to, and total imports into the United States from British North America in each year, from 1893 to 1903, the figures for the month of June, 1903, being estimated:

Fiscal year.	Exports from United States to Canada and North America.	Imports into United States from other British North America.
1893	$ 48,625,508	$ 38,186,342
1894	38,312,731	31,826,731
1895	53,981,768	37,006,163
1896	61,080,046	41,212,600
1897	70,628,725	40,722,702
1898	84,889,819	32,242,091
1899	80,580,456	31,604,135
1900	97,237,404	39,981,833
1901	107,746,519	42,962,478
1902	111,703,275	48,187,573
1903	*125,000,000	*55,000,000

KHEDIVE OF EGYPT IS AN ABSTEMIOUS PERSON

Neither Drinks Nor Smokes and Confines Himself to One Wife Instead of Many.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

LONDON, July 5.—Abbas II., khedive of Egypt, first of the rulers to visit England this year, is a model in a good many ways. Not only does he follow implicitly the injunctions of the Koran by never indulging in wine or spirits, but he is a non-smoker, too, which is rather remarkable in the head of a country where most people use "the weed" all day long. However, the khedive's conscience is superior to the usages of his domain, which he flouted openly by electing to content himself with one wife instead of setting up a royal harem. Probably, however, his highness is not dissatisfied, for his consort is described as a Circassian of rare loveliness. She lives with her children in the complete seclusion prescribed by Mohammedan law, in the palace of Koubbeh, where dwells also the khedive's mother, who, by the way, is only a little over 40.

The khedive gets a salary of $500,000 a year and has $500,000 more with which to support the various members of his family, who, however, number nearly 100. But Abbas II. has a large private fortune as well, and owns immense tracts of farm land in the Nile delta, for the working of which he insists on having the latest machinery from America. And he oversees his estate personally, as far as possible. He is up and on horseback by 6 almost every morning and spends several hours in riding from point to point to consult with his different superintendents.

Abbas II. was in London last in 1900, when it was noticed how well he spoke English. His highness is in fact rather famous as a polyglot, for besides our tongue he speaks French, German, Italian, Turkish and, of course, Arabic.

FOUGHT FOR LIBERTY BUT ENCOUNTERED DEATH

OSKUB, EUROPEAN TURKEY, July 5.—In a conflict between Turkish troops and Bulgarians near Vodena, 46 miles north of Salonica, the latter had 10 killed and the Turks two wounded. The dead Bulgarians wore uniforms bearing badges inscribed "Liberty or Death."

AIRSHIPS READY TO ENTER CONTEST

Three More Americans Will Attempt the Capture of the $100,000 Prize.

WILL APPEAR AT ST. LOUIS

Colorado Mining Engineer Designs Machine Which is Independent of Gas. It Will Travel 100 Miles an Hour. Streator, Ill., Will Also Be Represented.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

ST. LOUIS, July 5.—Three more airships have been invented and will be entered in the World's fair aerial tournament to compete for the grand prize of $100,000. W. M. Morris, a Monte Vista, Col., mining engineer, is very sanguine that he has solved the problem of aerial navigation. His machine will be 30 feet in diameter and 150 feet long when fully rigged. Aluminum will be the material used in its construction, but no gas bags will be used as in other flying machines. Mr. Morris says his machine will travel 100 miles an hour without lunging, tilting or tipping. He is carefully guarding the details of his plans.

E. A. Kindler, a Denver, Col., man has completed a model for an airship and conducted a satisfactory test. He will enter it in the contest for the $100,000 prize at the fair. Mr. Kindler claims his machine will average a speed of 80 miles an hour. Safety appliances are a feature of the airship. Canvas flaps three feet wide extend entirely around the balloon. These are limp except in case of sudden descent, when they open out like umbrellas or parachutes and are large enough to check descent to a gentleness devoid of danger, should the gas bags fail completely. Motive power is furnished by a storage battery.

The framework, which is made of aluminum and light steel tubing, with the motor, battery and propeller, which is six feet from tip to top and has four blades, will weigh about 300 pounds. A test made recently of the model was entirely satisfactory. The machine described a circle about 50 feet in diameter, rising, dipping and finally descended to its moorings without a hitch in its mechanism. The machine will be truly a formidable one in the coming contest.

Streator, Ill., will be represented in the aerial tournament by an airship planned by Mr. Reiferscheid of that town. Reiferscheid's machine consists of a balloon pointed at both ends and lying in a horizontal position. Around this balloon are strips of aluminum strong enough to make substantial framework. At each end are the propellers, six in all, to be used in raising and lowering the machine and to assist in guiding it. A six horsepower gasoline motor will provide the motive power and the balloon will be filled with hydrogen gas and hermetically sealed. Large fans will provide a safety device which will permit the ship to slowly descend in case the balloon collapsed.

The news also comes by cable from Paris, France, that Santos-Dumont has made a very successful experiment with his latest model, leaving his balloon shed, going a considerable distance and returning with the airship under perfect control during the entire trip.

The largest hotel ever erected for an exposition will be within the World's fair grounds at St. Louis. A contract has been signed for the construction of this mammoth building, the rates in which will be controlled by the exposition. Rooms will be divided into four classes, according to size, not less than 500 rooms of each class. The rates will be, on the European plan, for each person $1, $1.50, $2.00, $4.00 and $5.00 per day. Meals will be served to such of the guests as desire them at the following prices: Breakfast and noon luncheon, 50 cents each; evening dinner, 75 cents. The hotel management will collect from each guest 50 cents extra each day to cover the price of admission to the exposition grounds. The hotel will be made larger than now contemplated if the advance bookings of guests shall warrant.

LIVELY TIME AT DUBOIS.

Stabbing and Shooting Affairs and Fire Features of Independence Day.

DUBOIS, PA., July 5.—(Special.)—A stabbing affray, a fire and a fight, in which several shots were exchanged and one man seriously injured, helped enliven Independence day here. Charles Davis was perhaps fatally stabbed on the platform of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh depot Saturday night by an unknown Italian, who escaped.

Pat Shanahan, a resident of Falls Creek, was with a party of young men who engaged in a pitched battle with several Austrians early this morning. Shanahan was shot through the thigh, and a brother was badly beaten by the foreigners.

Fire late last night partly destroyed the millinery store of Miss Alice Hines.

NEW WAY TO SELL MEDICINE

Schilling Bros. Give Guarantee Bond With Mi-o-na, the Flesh-Forming Food.

The proprietors of Mi-o-na, the marvelous flesh-forming food and digestion regulator, have made arrangements with Schilling Bros. to sell this remarkable preparation in a new and hitherto unheard of way; furnishing a guarantee bond with every package.

GUARANTEE BOND.

In buying a package of Mi-o-na, the purchaser is requested to have this guarantee signed by Schilling Bros. as their absolute agreement to refund the money if Mi-o-na does not give an increase in weight and cure dyspepsia and all stomach troubles.

Signed.....

Schilling Bros. will give the above bond with every 50c box of Mi-o-na they sell. You run no risk in buying Mi-o-na.

For years there has been a demand for a natural means of increasing the flesh and Mi-o-na has come to supply this need. It is not a cod liver oil preparation, but a combination of flesh-forming elements with remedies that regulate and aid digestion and restore health.

Everyone who is troubled with dyspepsia, headache, distress after eating, dizzy feeling or loss of appetite or who is losing weight and in a run-down condition, should take the guarantee bond to Schilling Bros. and commence the use of Mi-o-na at their risk, remembering that the treatment costs you nothing unless it does all that is claimed for it.

EARLY CLOSING. During the July and August hot spell, except on Saturdays, our store will close for the day at 5 P. M.

Campbell's "THE PEOPLE'S STORE"

MAIL ORDERS. We will fill all orders by letter at advertised prices until the goods are completely sold out. Better hurry.
